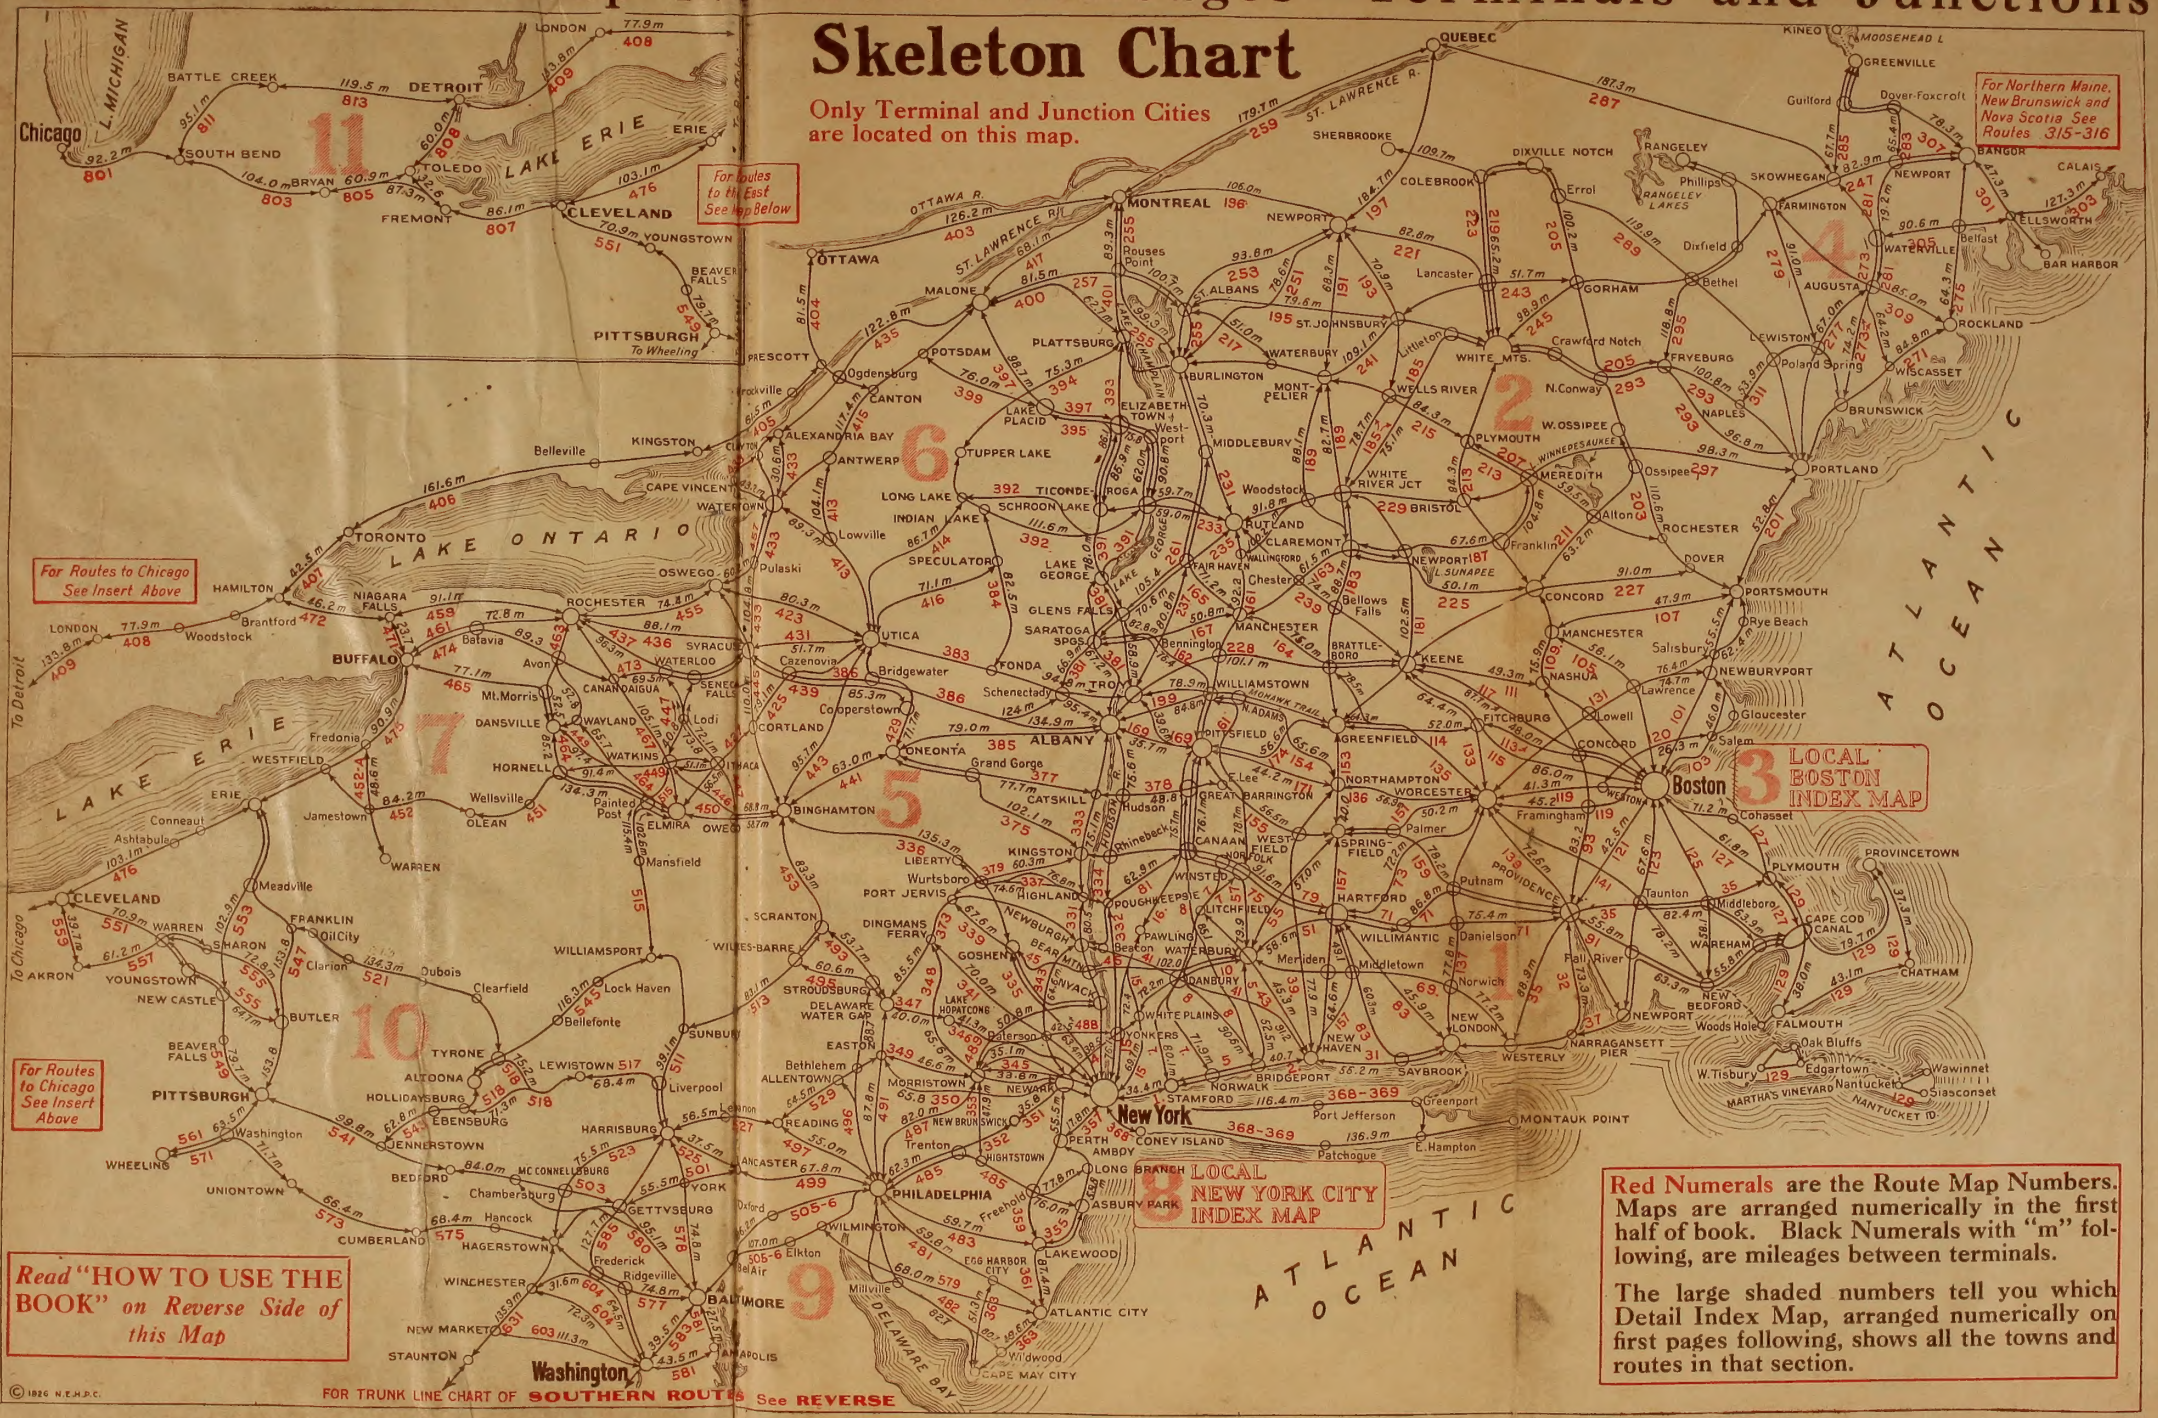
Routes—Route Map Numbers—Mileages—Terminals and Junctions

Skeleton Chart

Only Terminal and Junction Cities are located on this map.



Red Numerals are the Route Map Numbers. Maps are arranged numerically in the first half of book. Black Numerals with "m" following, are mileages between terminals.

The large shaded numbers tell you which Detail Index Map, arranged numerically on first pages following, shows all the towns and routes in that section.

COMPLETE MILEAGE CHARTS, giving the Total Distances between all Important Cities in this Territory, are arranged in the Last Eight Pages of this volume

Trunk Line Chart of Southern Routes

See the MILEAGE CHARTS, last 8 pages of book.

HOW TO USE THE BOOK

For Local Routes or Short Trips

Complete information for each town is found in the index or local information section, where all towns are arranged alphabetically, in the second half of the book. Under each town are printed the routes and their numbers, also hotel accommodations, points of interest and population.

For Long Routes or Lengthy Trips

If you are traveling further than what is shown on any one Route Map or from some route terminal on our Skeleton Chart (inside front cover) to another route terminal on this chart, locate both your objective and your starting-point, and select the Red Route Numbers on the most direct lines between these towns. They correspond to Route Maps, numerically arranged in the first half of the book.

If you are in a small town, not shown on the Skeleton Chart, and going to another small town, locate the nearest terminal city to these towns by referring to the alphabetical index where the "Key to the map location" is found. (For instance, ELBRIDGE, N. Y., has the "Key" H-12, and by reference to the map at point "H-12" we find it is on Route 473 and that Syracuse, N. Y., is the nearest Route Terminal City.) Now locate (in the same manner) Athol, Mass., and you find its key location is "J-21" and that it is on Route 114 and that Greenfield is its nearest terminal. Now refer to the Skeleton Chart (inside front cover) and select the route numbers between these terminals or Nos. 473, 431, 383, 199, 114.

See the second and third pages following for key to contents or general subdivision of this volume.

Mileage Chart of Distances

Total distances between all important points in this territory are conveniently arranged in chart form on the last eight pages of this book.

HOW TO USE THE BOOK

On the second preceding page will be found a brief explanation of the simple method of selecting routes.

Table of Contents

Index: Arranged alphabetically in the second half of the book, with the following information about the respective towns:

(a) Population—taken from the last census report.

(b) "Key" to its location on the Index Maps.

(c) Route numbers of the route maps on which each town is located. These route maps are arranged numerically in first half of book.

(d) Points of Interest are briefly described where the subjects warrant the space.

(e) Hotels or garages recommended with descriptive information.

(f) Illustrations of local color under many sections.

Route Maps

350 Strip Maps showing all the necessary detail to make the touring of strange roads a pleasure, are arranged numerically in first half of the book.

Each map gives street diagrams of the best ways through each congested section; the highway number or color symbol with which each section has marked certain highways; mileage between all towns en route; the Route Map numbers for all connecting routes at terminals or junctions.

Points of Interest

Historical or local Points of Interest are quite fully described in the Index Section and briefly carried alongside each Route Map on which such localities appear.

Maps

Trunk-line chart on inside front cover, is of great convenience for selecting routes, and figuring distances between terminals or junctions.

HOW TO USE THE BOOK

General Index Maps

for each locality are on the first 29 pages of the book. These maps show all towns and routes contained in this book.

City Maps

of the larger or more important cities are to be found in the Index Section.

Distances

A table of towns and mileages is arranged alongside each strip map.

Mileages are also shown between all towns on each strip map and the accumulated mileage along the margins of the maps.

Distance Charts—The last eight pages contain tables of the distances between the more important points in their respective localities.

The map on the inside front cover of this book shows the mileage for each route.

Tours

For the convenience of those not familiar with the different tours promoted in the East, and for the advancement of touring, sixteen (16) tours are described (last pages of book); these only partially cover the interesting trips throughout this wonderful touring country, but will act as suggestions. They traverse most of the best roads in the East.

Ferries and State Laws

Such information as was available at time of going to press is briefly told on the last pages of this book.

Accommodations

Hotels, Restaurants, Tea Rooms and Garages listed in this book have been selected with great care. They offer the best of accommodations in each locality. We will welcome the names of such places where the accommodations and services have been a factor in making your stops especially comfortable.

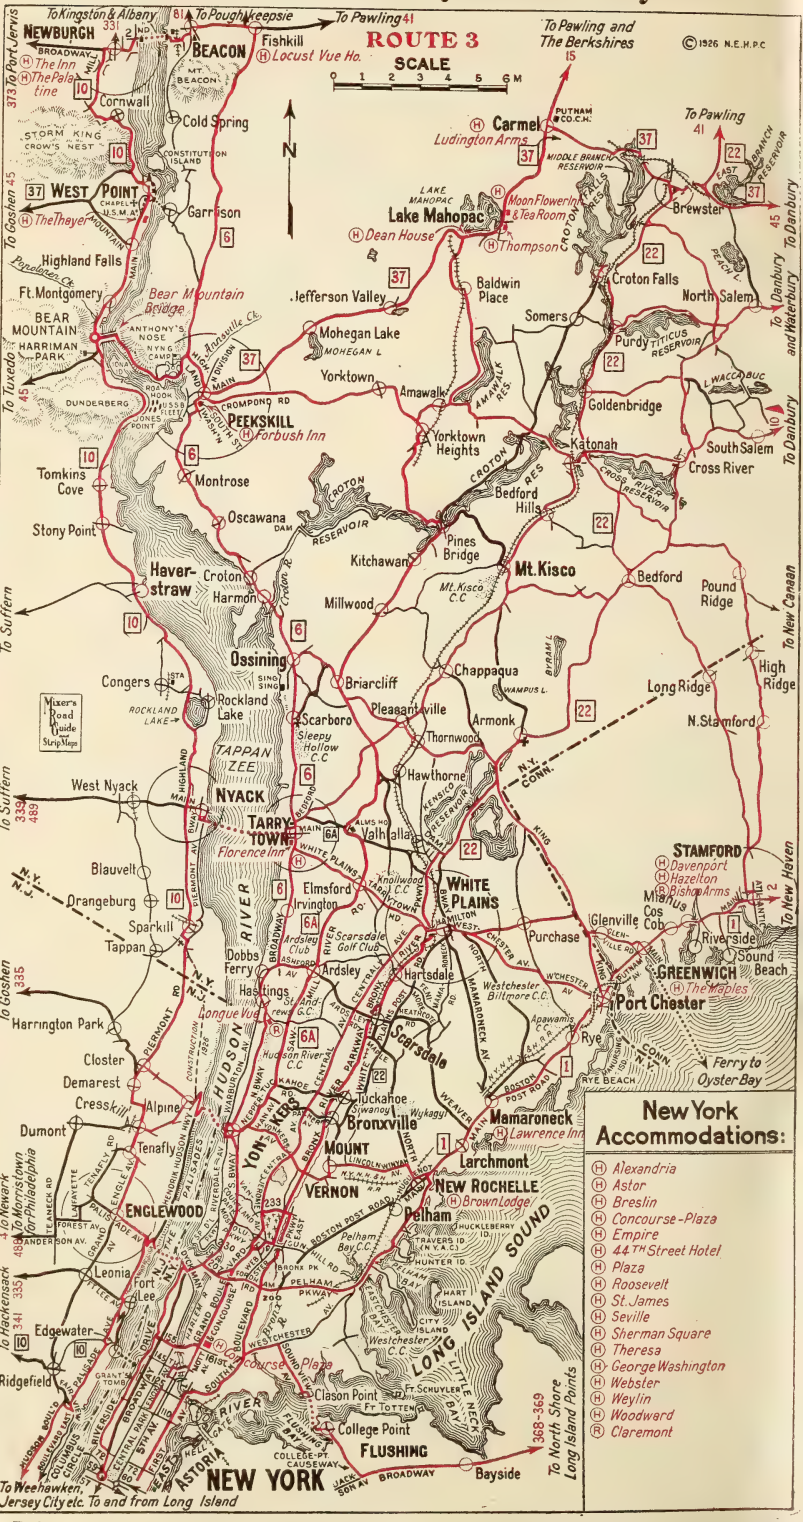
Westchester County and Vicinity



Refer to the INDEX for information on the Accommodations listed on above maps

WESTCHESTER COUNTY, N. Y. and CONTIGUOUS TERRITORY

The remarkable diversity of scenery, the astonishing number of important cities, towns and villages, and the unparalleled mileage of well-paved roads in this district have precluded the possibility of covering it with regulation strip maps. The map shown opposite is drawn to scale (about 6 miles to the inch), and shows almost all the roads suitable for motoring. The most important of these are displayed in red; those next in relative worth in heavy brown; while comparatively negligible highways are given as light lines.

Bear in mind that this is a very broken country—all hills, lakes and brooks, which is why there are few straight stretches of road. Most of the lakes east of the Hudson are component parts of the Catskill-Croton system of New York City's water supply. All roads shown are macadam, concrete or pavement.

Ardsley, N. Y.
Ardsley - on - Putnam (shown here) is the home of St. Andrews Golf Club; the Ardsley Club is on the Hudson just south of Irvington.

Beacon, N. Y.*

Bear Mountain, N. Y.
(Palisade Park.) One of the State's great public playgrounds. Brand new highway bridge crosses to Peekskill.

Bedford, N. Y.
Surrounded by farms of New York's well-to-do.

Bronx River Parkway. Magnificent new boulevard paralleling Bronx River from Kensico Dam to New York City.

Bronxville, N. Y.
Popular suburb, with Lawrence Park west of the Harlem tracks.

Carmel, N. Y.*

Chappaqua, N. Y.
Pretty suburb, former home of late A. H. Smith, Pres. N. Y. Central R. R.

Elmsford, N. Y.
James Butler's large horse-farm and private track on northern edge of town.

Greenwich, Ct.*

Hastings, N. Y.*

Irvington, N. Y.
Residential suburb, once the home of Washington Irving.

Kensico Reservoir*

Lake Mahopac, N. Y.*

Larchmont, N. Y.

Mount Kisco, N. Y.*
Extensive village with lovely estates on hillsides all around.

Mount Vernon, N. Y.
Second-largest city in Westchester County—residential, with increasing industrial side.

Newburgh, N. Y.*

Peekskill, N. Y.*

Constantly growing in popularity as a suburban habitat.

Port Chester, N. Y.
Industries and commuters' homes.

Rye, N. Y.
Smart suburb — Apawamis (golf) and Manursing Island Clubs.

Scarsdale, N. Y.
Together with Hartsdale a very beautiful suburb in the valley of the Bronx. The hilly terrain lends itself to landscaping, and the estates are charming as the golf links is sporting.

Stamford, Ct.*

The county seat.

Yonkers, N. Y.*

37.8	Harrison	0.7
38.5	Newark	0.0

A useful, and easily followed, route between the New Jersey metropolis and the hub-city of Westchester County. The red line here shown was chosen after careful investigation because the Editor found it the easiest to follow of all the many possible options. The Yonkers-Alpine Ferry runs capacious boats at 15-minute intervals, with moderate charges for car and passengers. All roads shown are paved.

White Plains, N. Y.*

Pop. 27,428. An historic city. Washington was twice headquartered here, the Provincial Congress convened here to hear the Declaration of Independence, and a tablet on Chatterton Hill marks the scene of the Battle of White Plains. Now the county seat.

Yonkers, N. Y.*

Pop. 113,647. Settled by Dutch early in 17th century. Yonkers' boast is that it is "next to the largest city in the country."

Hackensack, N. J.

Pop. 17,667. An old Dutch settlement, now dedicated to suburban homes and varied manufacture.

Newark, N. J.

Pop. 414,524. Founded 1666 by Connecticut men. Scene of Washington's retreat in fall of 1776. Aaron Burr born here. Now largest city in State — many manufactures. Newark's main streets are full of traffic, and too much stress cannot be laid on the necessity for keeping one's eye on the policemen.

The northeastern three-quarters of the best New York-Waterbury connection. For White Plains-New York see Route 3 or Route 15. Over rolling country on excellent State roads, amidst pretty scenery (especially so for a mile or so along the Housatonic).

Waterbury, Conn.*

Pop. 91,715. Waterbury spells Brass—has 50 per cent of country's output. Largest clock factory in world, and many other industries.

Waterbury is, however, much more than a busy and populous manufacturing city. It is happily situated in a hilly and highly picturesque part of the State, the centre of a network of excellent State highways.

Middlebury, Conn.

Pop. 1,067. Westover School for Girls.

Danbury, Conn.

Pop. 22,325. The Hat City of America. A mile or two out are the Fair Grounds, where annual fair is held.

45.3	New Haven	0.0

The shortest and best connection between the heart of the exquisite Litchfield Hills and the Connecticut Metropolis. Over hilly roads all the way, through charming little villages north of Waterbury. Good gravel (some of it oiled) north of Watertown; balance State macadam. The scenic Naugatuck Valley route Naugatuck-Derby offers a delightful option, and is only 5½ miles longer.

Litchfield, Conn.*

Pop. 3,200. Aaron Burr's brother-in-law established first law school in country here. Burr was a student at outbreak of Revolution. Birthplace of Lyman Beecher, Henry Ward Beecher, and Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Waterbury, Conn.*

Pop. 91,715. Waterbury spells Brass—has 50 per cent of country's output. Largest clock factory in world, and many other industries. The centre of an interesting touring country.

Naugatuck, Conn.*

Pop. 15,051. Busy industrial city—borough form of government.

Ansonia, Conn.

Pop. 17,643. Together with Derby and Shelton, great industrial centre.

New Haven, Conn.

Pop. 162,567. Founded 1638 by Pilgrims from Boston. Early a stronghold of patriotism. Shipbuilding now given place to manufacturing. City has given many famous sons to the country and has schooled many more at Yale University. Many famous old houses.

The best connection between New England and south-central New York, with no delays for ferries. A beautiful trip, scenic all the way, over State roads.

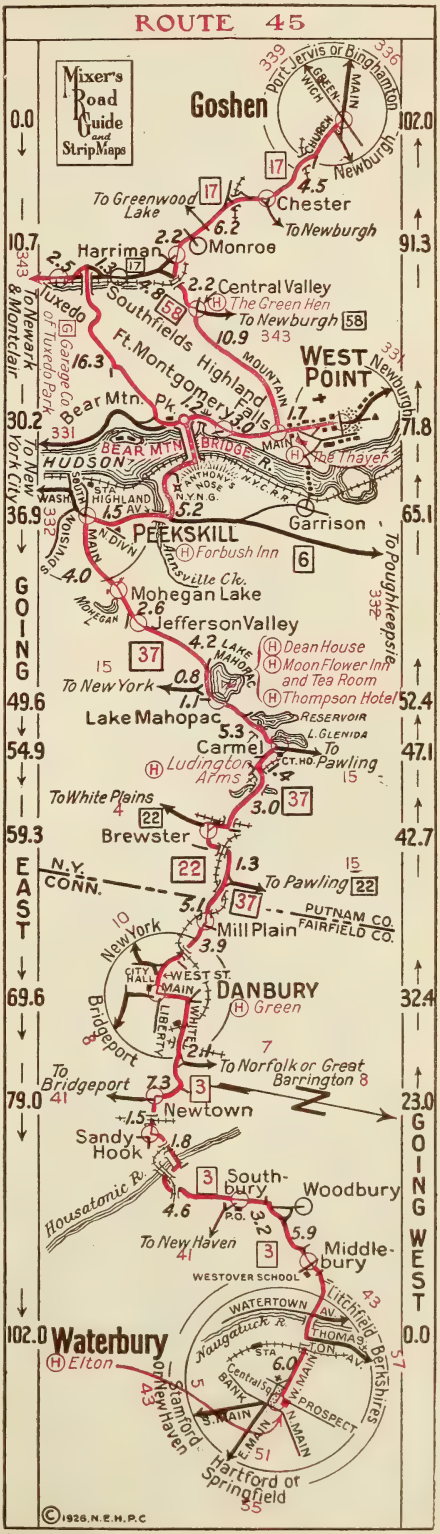
Bear Mountain

A great reservation operated jointly by the States of New York and New Jersey for the benefit of city dwellers in those States — and others as well. The splendid park was largely made possible by the munificence of Mrs. E. H. Harriman.

The fine new Bridge was opened to traffic Thanksgiving Day (Nov. 27), 1924. It is a suspension structure 155 feet high; 2,257 feet long; span 1,632 feet; width of roadway 38 feet. Toll, car and driver, 75c; passengers 10c; children under five, free. It is the only highway bridge across the Hudson south of Albany.

West Point

For those who have never visited the U. S. Military Academy we unhesitatingly recommend a stop-over at this historic spot. Aside from its sentimental lure, West Point is probably the most beautiful location in the vicinity of New York. Dress Parade daily at five.



It is advisable to make hotel reservations in advance during the height of the season

A favorite east-and-west highway, connecting at Willimantic with two equally-popular roads to and from Providence.

Willimantic, Conn.

Pop. 12,300. Many silk, cotton goods and thread factories run by water power of the Willimantic River.

Manchester, Conn.

Pop. 18,370. Where the American silk industry had its start.

Hartford, Conn.*

Pop. 138,036. Home of firearms and insurance. Fine old Bulfinch State House, rose garden in Elizabeth Park, Trinity College, new State Capitol, Morgan Memorial. Travelers Tower highest building in State.

New Britain, Conn.*

Pop. 59,316. Founded 1708 by residents who thought Farmington too far to go to church. Now an industrial city with hardware the leading product.

Farmington, Conn.

Pop. 3,844. Farmington School for Girls, one of most exclusive and thorough in East.

Waterbury, Conn.*

Pop. 91,715. Waterbury spells Brass—has 50 per cent of country's output. Largest clock factory in the world, and many other industries.

A short and fast connection, avoiding all cities and large towns. Between Milldale and Southwick this is a section of the "College Highway." It is very direct, well marked, and State road all the way.

Springfield, Mass.*

Pop. 142,224. Industrial city manufacturing firearms, motorcycles, paper, automobiles, etc. Fine churches, wealthy art museum worth seeing. New Bridge over Connecticut completed 1922. Springfield Rifle made at U. S. Arsenal here. New Civic centre and City Hall conspicuous improvements.

Farmington, Conn.

Pop. 3,844. Farmington School for Girls, one of most exclusive and thorough in East.

Waterbury, Conn.*

Pop. 91,715. Waterbury spells Brass—has 50 per cent of country's output. Largest clock factory in world, and many other industries. Waterbury is, however, not only a great industrial city; it has its cultural side too; but its chief claim to the attention of the tourist is its remarkable accessibility. Excellent State roads radiate to all points of the country, and the scenery of its surroundings is extremely good. The road down the rugged valley of the Naugatuck is perhaps the finest of the many drives near Waterbury, but the trip up that stream is hardly less attractive; and the cross-country tour to Danbury and New York is picturesque all the way.

A highway east and west through southern New England fast growing in popularity as an alternate to the heavily-traveled Boston Post Road along the shore. At Waterbury connection may be made with Hudson River-Bear Mountain Bridge, or ferries for travelers to and from points west and southwest of New York, thus avoiding driving through the Metropolis. The road here shown is very pretty all the way and is all State macadam and concrete, except for twelve miles of excellent gravel west of Marlboro. Though longer in mileage it is a great time-saver over the shore line.

Westerly, R. I.*

Pop. 11,177. Westerly and granite are synonymous.

Norwich, Conn.*

Pop. 29,685. Formerly cherished ground of Mohegan Indians; now industrial city producing woolens, silks, cottons and firearms.

Middletown, Conn.

Pop. 13,628. Wesleyan University near centre of town.

Meriden, Conn.*

Pop. 29,867. Known as the "silver city." Also manufactures cutlery, guns, woolens, etc. Hanging Hills and Cathole Pass to west of city.

68.4	Woonsocket	14.8
83.2	Providence	0.0

A north and south connection, avoiding all large cities and congested roads. State macadam all the way, except for about four miles of gravel north of Woonsocket.

Nashua, N. H.

Pop. 28,379. Second city of the Granite State, Nashua thrives on the product of her cotton mills, driven by the waters of the Merrimac.

North Acton, Mass.

Pop. 112. A popular resort on the shores of azure Lake Nagog.

Concord, Mass.

Pop. 6,461. To attempt to describe what Concord stands for were to gild the lily. All that can be has been said by such writers as Emerson, Thoreau, Hawthorne, Alcott; but we can advise the tourist by all means to turn aside and view the Concord Bridge, Battlefield, Minute Man (by French), British Graves and Wright Tavern.

South Sudbury, Mass.

Pop. 465. Page Mr. Ford! He now owns the Wayside Inn, where Longfellow used to write and Owen Wister learned to know the Golden Fizz.

Woonsocket, R. I.

Pop. 49,681. Every foot of both banks of the Blackstone River is occupied by Woonsocket's 157 factories.

Providence, R. I.

Pop. 267,918. See preceding page.

The short line (Turnpike) Boston-Newburyport, in conjunction with the Beach road and the Lafayette Boulevard south of Portsmouth. The former, though seven miles longer, is to be preferred, as it follows the shore closely, affording magnificent views of the Atlantic, and (near Portsmouth) the picturesque Isles of Shoals. Both ways all State macadam.

For map showing Boston-Newburyport via North Shore resorts, see Route 103.

Portsmouth, N. H.*

Pop. 13,569. See Index.

New Hampshire Beaches

Hampton Beach, Great and Little Boar's Head, Rye Beach and Rye North Beach form a long stretch of fine sand backed by rocks and cliffs, and in summer crowded with swimmers.

Newburyport, Mass.*

Pop. 15,656. An ancient town with quaint tavern, churches, old shipyards, etc. Many people think there are more good Colonial houses and doorways in Newburyport than in other nearby cities.

Boston, Mass.*

Pop. 781,529. See Index.

BOSTON, MASS.— THE NORTH SHORE

Showing the various exits from the metropolis to Newburyport, Gloucester and points on the North Shore, Cape Ann, and all the better cross-roads and variants; with copious detail of more important streets in the several cities. The territory covered by this map presents a galaxy of attractions hard to equal anywhere in America for scenic or historic interest. Main-traveled routes in red. All State roads.

Newburyport, Mass.*

Pop. 15,656. See Route 101.

Ipswich, Mass.*

Pop. 6,201. A quaint little town on the river of the same name. Oysters on the flats; alewives from the stream.

Gloucester, Mass.*

Pop. 23,407. Still redolent of fish, yet most popular with tourists. Eastern Point a smart summer colony.

Bass Rocks, Mass.

Exclusive and highly attractive seaside residential settlement.

Cape Ann

Almost an island, its rocky shores dotted with summer communities, one lovelier than the next — Rockport, Pigeon Cove, Annisquam.

Wenham and Hamilton

Delightful homes of the wealthy. Myopia Hunt Club entertained the Prince of Wales in 1924.

Essex, Mass.

Pop. 1,748. Still builds fleet fishing schooners.

Magnolia, Mass.

Pop. 1,620. One of Boston's smartest summer colonies.

Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass.

Pop. 2,466. Houses of the elect, and the unique "Singing Beach." Great estates line the highway through Beverly Farms and Pride's Crossing.

Salem, Mass.*

Pop. 42,512. City of witches, Hawthorne, and colonial homes. Once the home port of scores of Yankee clippers.

Marblehead, Mass.*

Pop. 7,324. Quaintest of the quaint, unspoiled by modernity. Headquarters of Eastern and Corinthian Yacht Clubs.

Swampscott, Mass.*

Pop. 8,101. Very popular resort, short distance out of Boston.

Lynn, Mass.*

Pop. 103,147. Shoes, and General Electric shops. Beautiful residence streets and attractive Lynn Woods.

Nahant, Mass.

Pop. 1,318. Late Senator Lodge lived here.

Malden, Mass.

Pop. 51,789. Residential suburb.

Revere Beach, Mass.

Boston's Coney Island.

Somerville, Mass.*

Pop. 99,206. Residential and manufacturing suburb with an historic past.

A short and somewhat less traveled alternate between the Hub and the Daniel Webster Highway to and from the White Mountains. North of Boston, through suburbs and the wool centre, Lawrence; beyond, through a fairly level farming district, in the Granite State. Macadam and State gravel all the way.

Manchester, N. H.*

Pop. 78,384. Industrial city, famous for production of cotton and woolen goods and shoes.

Lawrence, Mass.*

Pop. 95,136. Greatest cloth mills in America, employ thousands of foreign-born, including forty nationalities.

Shawsheen Village, Mass.

The model village of the American Woolen Company.

Andover, Mass.*

Pop. 10,291. Delightful town of white streets. Phillips Andover Academy here, and Abbott Academy for girls.

Boston, Mass.*

Pop. 781,529. Once the hub of the universe, the holy place of American letters and philosophy. Now, the Pericleans gone, Boston is the greatest New England industrial city, mistress of the boot and shoe trade.

A quick trip over nearly level and rather sandy country. All State gravel roads, smooth and well oiled.

Portsmouth, N. H.

Pop. 13,569. New Hampshire's only seaport is indeed worth a visit. At no time during her 301 years of life has Portsmouth been otherwise. Now the city lives in her glorious past. Here Governor Wentworth (whose mansion still proclaims the good taste of its owner) entertained in state; hence sailed Paul Jones in U. S. S. Ranger, flying the Stars and and Stripes to France, where the colors received its first salute from a foreign war fleet; here the Constellation first kissed the waters of the Piscataqua; she now lies at a dock in Newport for an inspiration to the bluejackets at that Training Station.

New Castle, N. H.

Pop. 728. On an island connected with Portsmouth by bridges, occupied by old Fort Constitution and a superb hotel.

Exeter, N. H.

Pop. 4,604. To nine persons out of ten Exeter connotes the ancient and venerable preparatory school for boys, officially known as Phillips Academy. Among its alumni were Daniel Webster and Edward Everett.

Manchester, N. H.

Pop. 78,384. The largest city in the Granite State. The Merrimac River falls some feet here, hence the mills which caused the founding of the city. Cotton is the chief product, and the Amoskeag Mill is the largest in the country.

Concord, N. H.*

Pop. 22,167. Capital of Granite State. Quarries furnished granite for Congressional Library. St. Paul's School for boys here. Also homestead of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder of Christian Science.

Manchester, N. H.*

Pop. 78,384. Amoskeag Cotton Mill largest in world. Thirty other industries. Winter carnival brings crowds to city.

Nashua, N. H.*

Pop. 28,379. Manufactures cotton goods, shoes and iron products.

Lowell, Mass.*

Pop. 110,542. See Index.

Cambridge, Mass.*

A lovely cross country drive over rolling wooded territory north of Monadnock's lonely peak. All State roads.

Keene, N. H.

Pop. 11,210. A really attractive manufacturing city in the heart of a farming country, but somewhat of a resort as well. The Ashuelot River provides the power that runs the mills; the beautiful surroundings and network of good roads tempt the visitor.

Dublin, N. H.

Pop. 408. One of the prettiest (and highest) resorts in Southern New Hampshire, near a lovely lake, and almost as near to the foot of romantic Mount Monadnock. Dublin is almost a cult with some of its devotees.

Peterboro, N. H.

Pop. 2,615. At the crossing of two valleys, Peterboro is extremely popular in summer with those who know the fascination of its beautiful wooded walks and drives.

Milford, N. H.

This improved State road (101) is being constructed to Manchester, and is now in fair shape all the way. This cut-off saves many miles to those bound for points north of the Daniel Webster Highway.

Nashua, N. H.

Pop. 28,379. The mills at the confluence of the Nashua and the Merrimac turn out miles of cotton cloth daily; also carpets and kindred woven goods; and iron products as well. The residence part of Nashua is attractive, with an inviting country club and golf-links.

West of Concord the highway traverses rolling farm country, skirting Camp Devens near Ayer. All State roads. (Be sure to ignore the "7" markers if desirous of visiting Lexington.)

Fitchburg, Mass.

Pop. 44,034. Industrial city, famous for the Fitchburg Railroad opened in 1845.

Concord, Mass.*

Pop. 6,461. Historic home of minutemen and of philosophers: Emerson, Thoreau, the Alcotts, etc. No one on his first visit should fail to see the famous Concord Bridge, the British graves and D. C. French's superb statue of the minuteman, who, on April 19th, 1775, "fired the shot heard round the world."

Lexington, Mass.*

Pop. 6,350. Tranquil town of Revolutionary fame.

Cambridge, Mass.*

Pop. 120,053. (Route 109.)

Boston, Mass.*

Pop. 781,529. Fifty years ago the cultural centre of America. Now an important port, capital of Massachusetts, headquarters of shoe industry, financial ruler of New England, and impeccable social authority.

Greenfield, Mass.*

Pop. 15,246. Eastern end of Mohawk Trail. Several large industrial plants. Greenfield is a very pretty town, extremely popular with tourists, pleasantly located at the junction of the Connecticut and Deerfield valleys. Only a few miles south lies Deerfield, a delightful old town with a sad history of Indian massacres.

Turners Falls, Mass.

Pop. 5,860. Falls of the Connecticut River furnish immense quantities of electric power whose distribution is almost State-wide.

Gardner, Mass.*

Pop. 18,770. Manufactures millions of chairs annually.

Winchendon, Mass.

Pop. 5,904. Known as "Toy Town" from chief manufacture. Its charming surroundings and excellent hostelry combine to make Winchendon a favorite centre for winter sports.

Fitchburg, Mass.

Pop. 44,034. Industrial town of importance. Fitchburg Railroad opened 1845.

Special Federal excise taxes paid to U. S. Government by automobile industry in 1923, $155,000,000.

The main-traveled route, part of the Atlantic Highway. Also a much-favored, though somewhat longer, alternate, for use when the principal artery is likely to be congested. Both are macadam, except for about 20 miles of concrete south of Dedham.

Boston, Mass.*

Pop. 781,529. See Index.

Dedham, Mass.

Pop. 13,918. As charming a suburb as one could find—elm-shaded streets lined with old white houses, and the Charles River bending close to the town. County seat of Norfolk County. Fine old court house.

Wrentham, Mass.

Pop. 2,900. Home of Helen Keller, and of great duck farm. Manufactures tools and straw hats.

Pawtucket, R. I.

Pop. 69,760. Manufacturing city on Seekonk River. Cotton and woolen goods, paper, thread, machinery chief products.

Providence, R. I.*

Pop. 267,918. Great industrial centre making jewelry, tools, cotton goods, silver and machines. City rich in places of historical interest. Rapidly developing as deep-water port. Brown University well merits a visit.

The shortest and quickest way. A very pleasant trip and extremely attractive—especially the water views south of Dighton and the ten miles north of Stoughton. One enters Boston by way of the splendid Parkway system laid out by Frederick Law Olmstead, landscape architect. State road all the way.

Boston, Mass.*

Pop. 781,529. See Index.

Fall River, Mass.*

Pop. 129,662. Has its name and water power from falls in Quequechan River. Enormous cotton mills—weaving over 2,000 miles of cloth daily.

Newport, R. I.*

Pop. 27,757. Once a prosperous shipping town, now millionaires' playground. Bailey's Beach, Cliff Walk and Ocean Drive hunting grounds of society. U. S. Naval Training Station here. Newport is a thing apart among American cities. Its old trees, box hedges and velvety lawns remind one of an English town, as do its narrow streets. Each summer the Casino stages an invitation tennis tournament (in August) at which all the ranking players compete. The Ocean Drive (12 miles) is comparable only to the Corniche Drive along the French Riviera. (See map.)

(*)Via Hanover; via Cohasset, 9.4 m. longer.

This map shows (in red) the three main routes between Boston and the Cape Cod Canal, with approved options and useful cross-roads. Two ways are shown between Quincy and Boston, the red line being longer but pleasanter. All roads shown are hard-surfaced.

Boston, Mass.*

Pop. 781,529. See Index.

Quincy, Mass.

Pop. 60,131. The home of the Quincy and Adams families. Granite quarries and shipyards.

Milton, Mass.

Pop. 12,861. Lovely suburban homes; Milton Academy in the forefront of prep. schools.

Nantasket Beach

Long strip of hard white sand with municipal and private bath-houses; amusement-places and cottages. Boat connection with Boston.

Brockton, Mass.

Pop. 65,731. The men's-shoe centre of New England. Annual Brockton Fair, in October, is a great and popular feature.

Cohasset, Mass.

Pop. 2,639. The Jerusalem road north of here, with its superb estates, vies with the coast to the south—together constituting the inimitable "South Shore," largely preempted by Boston's smart set.

North Scituate Beach*

One of the smoothest and whitest of Bay State beaches.

Duxbury, Mass.

Pop. 1,553. Delightful old village of Miles Standish and John Alden. Fine view from Monument.

Plymouth, Mass.*

Pop. 13,176. The birthplace of a nation. See Index.

Cape Cod Canal

Cuts many miles off Boston-New York route, besides offering sheltered waters all the way.

Sagamore, Mass.

Pop. 790. Eastern terminus of Canal, with superlative beach.

Marion, Mass.*

Pop. 1,288. Attractive resort. Summer station of Beverly Y. C.

Fairhaven, Mass.

Pop. 10,827. Fishing village, embellished by late H. H. Rogers, whose birthplace it was.

New Bedford, Mass.*

Pop. 120,494. The old whaling port is now given over to cotton mills. Don't miss Bourne Whaling exhibit in Dartmouth Museum, and view great trees in County Street.

From Haverhill one may follow the "110" poles to Salisbury, there joining Atlantic Highway ("1") for Portsmouth.

Newburyport, Mass.*

Pop. 15,656. See Index.

Haverhill, Mass.

Pop. 49,084. Shoes again! but other things as well. The poet Whittier was born a few miles from Haverhill.

Lawrence, Mass.

Pop. 95,136. This large and handsome city is the result of the experiment of some wealthy Bostonians, whose enterprise and thrift could not resist the lure of the great falls of the Merrimac there. Lawrence has grown to be America's greatest wool city; one of the mills is a mile long.

Lowell, Mass.*

Pop. 110,542. Cotton mills clustered about the Pawtucket Falls of the Merrimac gave Lowell its start, but now its manufactures are more varied. James McNeil Whistler born here.

Worcester, Mass.*

Keene, N. H.*

Pop. 11,210. An exceedingly sightly little city among the rolling country of Cheshire County. Its salubrious climate and its accessibility have brought Keene into prominence as a touring centre.

Winchendon, Mass.*

Pop. 5,904. Widely known as "Toy Town" on account of its toy industry, and its being the home of Toy Town Tavern, Winchendon is admirably located for both summer and winter sports and is therefore very popular with tourists and vacationists who look for golf and motoring in summer, tobogganing, skiing, ski-jumping, skating and other stunts in the winter time.

Fitchburg, Mass.

Pop. 44,034. On the Nashua River, this busy city produces manufactured goods of many kinds; in the Wallace Free Library is a good collection of works of art.

Wachusett Reservoir

Cap., 63,000,000,000 gallons. Supplies Boston and many other towns with water.

Worcester, Mass.*

Pop. 192,242. The Bay State's second city, and unique in that it is the largest manufacturing city not on or near a navigable river. Its museum and library are excellent, and culture is furnished by Clark University, Holy Cross College, Worcester Polytechnic Institute and Worcester Academy.

A convenient cross-country route between Central Massachusetts and the Connecticut River Valley. Over rolling country all the way on good macadam or gravel roads. No lack of scenery between the several attractive towns.

East Northfield, Mass.*

Pop. 700. The Seminary Dwight Moody founded is still going strong, likewise the Conference each August. Mount Hermon School for Boys is not far away.

Greenfield, Mass.

Pop. 15,246. Its lovely maples disguise the fact that Greenfield is not wholly a residence city. Taps and dies are its most widely-known product.

Barre, Mass.

Pop. 3,357. Between this pretty town and Petersham one traverses Barre Woods (Harvard Forest)—a splendid preserved area of varied timber. The drive through these woods is truly beautiful.

Rutland, Mass.

Pop. 1,743. High up on its hilltop, Rutland houses the State Sanitarium, where the rarefied air combats pulmonary diseases. Rutland attained considerable notoriety in 1924 when it gave asylum to several Rhode Island State senators.

Those bound to or from Hartford may use cut-off "2-A," avoiding congested part of Springfield.

Worcester, Mass.*

Pop. 192,242. A flourishing city, combining culture and industry in great variety. See Index.

Spencer, Mass.

Pop. 5,930. A very sightly town with good public buildings whose diverse manufactures include the finest of tools.

Brookfield, Mass.*

Pop. 2,216. An historic and sightly old village which, keeping up with the times has allowed shoe manufacturing to displace farming.

West Brookfield, Mass.*

Here one may turn off Highway No. 5 direct to Amherst, etc. (Route 136).

Palmer, Mass.

Pop. 11,075. An industrial town in the valley of the Quabaug. South of Palmer is a State Almshouse.

Springfield, Mass.*

Pop. 142,224. A splendid up-to-date city whose growth smacks of a Western boom town, yet so orderly withal that social workers and industrial "engineers" cite Springfield as the ideal industrial community. The group of municipal buildings just off Main Street, the imposing Library, green grounds of the U. S. Arsenal —all vie with one another in attracting the tourist.

Springfield, Mass.

Pop. 142,224. A really handsome industrial city, with fine streets, monuments, public and private buildings, and no slums.

Southbridge, Mass.

Pop. 15,533. Varied manufactures, most important being the plant of the American Optical Company.

Putnam, Conn.

Pop. 8,397. A pretty little city on the Quinebaug River, near which is Pomfret with its well-known school for boys.

Thompson, Conn.

Pop. 5,055. An attractive village with an ancient and famous inn.

Providence, R. I.

Pop. 267,918. A city of diverse interests. Its commercial prosperity is based primarily on the cotton industry, though steel products are a close second in importance. Providence is now a deep-sea port, with regular sailing to Europe and Atlantic Coast American cities. Brown University, the Athenaeum, the several great churches and Roger Williams Park merit a visit.

A delightful trip over mountainous and hilly country through small but attractive villages on State gravel roads all the way.

Lake Sunapee, N. H.

One of the Granite State's prettiest bodies of water, ringed round by hotels and inns, public and private camps. The popularity of this resort section grows year by year.

Newport, N. H.

Pop. 4,109. A sightly little town with an ambitious green. Not far away is Blue Mountain Park, the large game preserve established by the late Austin Corbin, former president of the Long Island Railroad.

Claremont, N. H.

Pop. 9,524. A manufacturing town on the Sugar River much patronized by motorists because of its central position.

Springfield, Vt.

Pop. 5,283. A market village on the edge of the Green Mountains.

Chester, Vt.

Pop. 657. A quaint town in the foothills offering many attractions to the tourist.

Manchester, Vt.

Pop. 423. It is a question as to whether Manchester owes its popularity to its lovely location under the Equinox Mountain, or to its excellent hotels or to the splendid qualities of the Ekwanok Links — probably, though, to the happy combination of all three.

The shortest and best connection between two important points. The road is hilly all the way, and very scenic—especially so as it winds along the valley of the West River. No difficult grades, and State gravel throughout.

Manchester, Vt.*

Pop. 423. One of the prettiest villages in Vermont—high among the hills. Good hotels and the peerless Ekwanok golf links attract people from all over the country.

Brattleboro, Vt.

Pop. 7,324. A rich and pleasing town. Here Rudyard Kipling married Miss Balestier and dwelt for a short time.

Lake Spofford, N. H.

One of the prettiest lakes in the State, with an attractive club on its shore.

Keene, N. H.*

Pop. 11,210. Very neat-appearing little city, seat of Cheshire County, whose importance to the motorist is due to its being the hub of a network of good roads, and to the excellence of its inn. Mt. Monadnock and several popular villages on its slopes are within a few minutes' drive.

Two equally good routes to and from Burlington and the North; both scenic in the highest degree. There is little to choose between them, both being fine gravel all the way.

Middlebury, Vt.*

Pop. 1,993. Co-educational Middlebury College with 550 students dates from 1800.

Lake Dunmore, Vt.

Four miles of limpid water under noble Mt. Moosalamoo. One may drive round southern end of lake to Falls of Lana, 652 feet drop in several cascades.

Brandon, Vt.*

Pop. 1,650. See Route 231.

Rutland, Vt.*

Pop. 14,954. Famous for production of marble and the Howe scale.

Hyde Manor, Vt.

The Manor (with its own golf links) is noteworthy in that its management has been in the hands of the same family for some 129 years.

Lake Bomoseen, Vt.

Eight miles long, and its banks lined with camps and attractive summer hotels.

Dorset, Vt.

Pop. 1,226. Slate and marble quarries cannot mar the peaceful beauty of this lovely little village.

An excellent connection between two important resorts. Roads all macadam and concrete in New York, fair-to-good gravel Cambridge - Arlington; balance good State gravel. Fairly level west of Cambridge, and a beautiful winding trip along the Batten Kill among the Green Mountains.

Manchester, Vt.

Pop. 423. A nationally famous resort with splendid mountain scenery, unexcelled hotel accommodations, and the Ekwanok golf links, which rank high among the very best inland courses in America.

Arlington, Vt.

Pop. 1,370. A pretty town whose history is linked with Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain Boys.

Cambridge, N. Y.

Pop. 1,559. On the old Indian trail to Saratoga.

Schuylerville, N. Y.

Pop. 1,625. Monument marks site of Battle of Saratoga.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Pop. 13,884. Those who feared lest the abolition of gambling, the drastic anti-betting laws inaugurated by former Governor Hughes, and the growth of the automobile industry would relegate Saratoga to the discard, have lived to see their fears proven groundless. Times have changed, that is all; and where once the swells of the country drank healing waters between races they now lead a more healthful and normal existence motoring over the splendid roads of which Saratoga is the centre. And even yet, in August each summer, the horse is still king.

Road fairly level between the mountain and Albany—rolling farmlands Alps-Troy. All excellent State roads, marked as shown.

Albany, N. Y.*

Pop. 117,820. The beautiful capital of the Empire State. One should visit the Capitol, Education Building, Washington Park; and by no means miss the exquisite Gothic Delaware & Hudson Building flanking the Plaza, Broadway and State Street.

Troy, N. Y.

Pop. 72,223. More people know Troy for its output of collars and shirts than are aware that it is a considerable educational centre. Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute stands high in its field as the Russell Sage Academy and Emma Willard School also do in theirs. Troy is at the head of navigation of the Hudson.

Pittsfield, Mass.*

Pop. 47,241. Twofold importance as summer and winter resort and as manufacturing town.

The "Berkshire Trail," one of the three beautiful highways east and west through the Berkshire Hills. Through numerous small towns on a broad, smooth, well-graded road, affording many glorious views of a rather wild section.

Pittsfield, Mass.

Pop. 47,241. The Metropolis of the Berkshire Hills, a beautiful city as well of homes as of industry. Broad streets, tree-fringed, and tasteful public buildings lend an air of quiet dignity. As a resort, no less than as a route centre, Pittsfield is of prime importance.

Goshen, Mass.*

See Route 174.

South Hadley, Mass.

Pop. 5,527. Under the shadow of Mount Holyoke stands the oldest women's college, Mt. Holyoke (1837), with 800 students.

Holyoke, Mass.

Pop. 60,892. The "Paper City," with enormous mills along both banks of river and canal.

Northampton, Mass.

Pop. 24,000. Here, in its verdant campus, stands Smith, largest of women's colleges. The buildings are in extremely good taste and well located. Smith, founded in 1871, has 2,100 students.

Amherst, Mass.

Pop. 5,500. On a high plateau overlooking the broad Connecticut, this village is the home of Amherst College (1821), 540 students, and of the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Shelburne Falls, Mass.

Pop. 1,350. Great falls of the Deerfield River.

Ashfield, Mass.*

Pop. 867. Pretty village in the heart of the hills. Highly popular with people of aesthetic tastes.

Goshen, Mass.*

This very attractive hamlet is the scene of many winter parties of Smith College girls, and is equally gay in summer.

Dalton, Mass.

Pop. 3,752. This handsome mill village betokens the quality of the paper it produces.

Pittsfield, Mass.*

Pop. 47,241. Here is an example of how good taste can combine with utility in civic affairs. Pittsfield is an important industrial centre, the cultural focus of the whole Berkshire region, and also a great drawing-card with tourists in winter as well as in summer.

Via Interstate Highway No. 10, an alternate to Route 183, not so scenic, but less congested in mid-season. Macadam and State gravel.

Hanover, N. H.*

Pop. 1,551. Here stands Dartmouth College (1769), an institution of higher learning whose chief claim to fame was Daniel Webster, until, in 1903, its football team beat Harvard. From then on Dartmouth's fame has reached the four corners of the country, and its scholastic side has kept pace with the prestige of the "big green team."

Newport, N. H.*

Pop. 4,109. See Index.

Keene, N. H.*

Pop. 11,210. The waters of the Ashuelot turn a few of Keene's mills, but the town is essentially a market place, and an agreeable stopping place for tourists.

East Northfield, Mass.

Pop. 700. Here Dwight L. Moody married education to religion. The Northfield Seminary for young women is located here, and Mount Hermon School for young men a few miles away. The Northfield Summer Conferences hold their annual sessions here in the summer.

Bernardston, Mass.

Pop. 769. A small but beautiful village whose bellicose history belies its present pastoral peace.

Greenfield, Mass.*

White River Junction, Vt.*

Pop. 2,625. A great railroad centre, and of late years of equal importance as a tourist objective.

Woodstock, Vt.*

Pop. 1,252. One of the Green Mountain State's most beautiful spots, with excellent inn and sporting golf links.

Windsor, Vt.*

Pop. 3,061. Old-fashioned market town and home of the late William M. Evarts, sometime Secretary of State and U. S. Senator.

Cornish, N. H.

See Route 189 (under Windsor).

Claremont, N. H.*

Pop. 9,524. In summer Claremont adds the entertainment of tourists to its other flourishing industries.

Walpole, N. H.*

Pop. 2,553. A dreamy little farm village on the river steadily growing in favor with the motorist.

Bernardston, Mass.*

Pop. 769. A little town with a most comfortable inn.

Greenfield, Mass.*

Pop. 15,246. A route centre of growing popularity; and industrial town with mapled streets and comfortable homes.

The two highways shown here, one on each bank of the noble Connecticut, are about equally good. If there be a choice, we might recommend the New Hampshire Boulevard in the morning, the Vermont side afternoon. Both roads are good State gravel.

White Mountains.

A relatively small terrain with some of the highest peaks east of the Rockies. The loftiest group is the Presidential Range on the eastern edge of the area.

Bradford Vt.

Pop. 739. Pleasantly located high above the river.

Fairlee, Vt.

Pop. 459. Lakes Fairlee and Morey are dotted round with Camps.

Hanover, N. H.

Pop. 1,551. Beautiful setting for ancient Dartmouth College.

White River Junction, Vt.

Meredith, N. H.

Pop. 1,680. Popular resort town on one of Winnepesaukee's many bays.

The Weirs, N. H.

Pop. 212. At the outlet of Winnepesaukee into Lake Paugus, a great convention centre with Methodist leanings.

Laconia, N. H.

Pop. 10,897. A prosperous town whose looks betoken its wealth; makes trolley and railroad cars and entertains tourists.

Franklin, N. H.

Pop. 6,318. At the point where the Winnepesaukee, Winnisquam and Pemigewasset Rivers meet to form the Merrimac. The birthplace of Daniel Webster is two miles southwest of Franklin.

Lake Sunapee

A lovely body of water of exceeding popularity. Its attractive shores are dotted with hotels and camps, public and private.

Newport, N. H.

Pop. 4,109. A pretty village in a strategic position at the crossing of two much traveled highways.

Claremont, N. H.

Pop. 9,524. A thriving manufacturing town which is not too busy (nor too ugly) to attract many tourists in the summer time.

Two splendid scenic routes—one following the Connecticut and White Rivers; the other farther inland, but quite as picturesque, and including Woodstock, one of Vermont's well-known resorts. The Williamstown Gulf is a narrow cut in the hills, one of the loveliest in the Green Mountain State. All fine State gravel, winding and hilly. No difficult grades.

Montpelier, Vt.

State capital.

Northfield, Vt.

Pop. 1,916. Here is located Norwich University.

Woodstock, Vt.*

Pop. 1,252. One of the most charming of New England towns, highly popular in summer, and winter as well.

White River Junction, Vt.*

Pop. 2,300. Railroad and trade centre.

Windsor, Vt.*

Summer artist colony, at Cornish, N. H., just across the Connecticut, includes Percy Mackaye, Winston Churchill, Maxfield Parrish. Saint Gaudens' Studio is now a public museum, well worth a visit.

Claremont, N. H.

Pop. 9,524. Town has woolen, paper, cotton mills and machine shops.

A pleasant drive along the eastern slopes of the Green Mountains. The road is rolling all the way, winding constantly along the shores of silvery brooks. When it has just been dragged (which is immediately after rain has fallen) it is smooth as glass and resilient as rubber. While the scenery is not exactly grand, one nevertheless gets some surprisingly fine views, and we unhesitatingly recommend this route to the discriminating tourist.

Newport, Vt.

Pop. 4,976. A fast-growing industrial and railroad centre whose popularity as a tourist resort is increasing from year to year. Its location at the southern end of Lake Memphremagog as well as its proximity to the more liberal Province of Quebec have added to Newport's importance from the standpoint of the motorist.

Barton, Vt.

Pop. 1,187. A live little town whose enterprise caters largely to the tourist trade. Sprightly Crystal Lake, a mile or so away, affords excellent fishing and bathing.

Hardwick, Vt.

Pop. 1,550. Hardwick granite goes all over the nation.

Montpelier, Vt.

Pop. 7,125. The attractive capital of Vermont. A prosperous small city on the swift Winooski. Montpelier has more insurance companies for its size than even Hartford, Connecticut. The dignified State House and the State Library are well worth a visit.

Excellent north and south connections between two important route centres. The road follows close enough to the rivers to afford excellent view, not only of the rivers themselves, but of the higher peaks of the White Mountains over to the east. Lake Willoughby is one of the most popular lakes in Vermont, and the approach thereto from the south is singularly lovely. All fine State gravel. Caution—not to pass the reverse forks just north of Lyndonville.

Newport, Vt.*

Pop. 4,976. U. S. Customs and immigration station. Produces lumber, granite, clothing, veneer, etc. Railway junction.

Barton, Vt.

Pop. 1,187. Farming region. Some manufacturing in the town. Lovely lake nearby.

St. Johnsbury, Vt.*

Pop. 7,163. Fairbanks Scale Works, largest in the world. Maple sugar produced in large quantities.

Woodsville, N. H.*

The "East-side Boulevard" over rolling farm country south of Ossipee, becoming more undulating toward the north, until it penetrates the White Mountains beyond Conway. Nowhere are the grades difficult, and the scenery is very grand in places. For some miles Mt. Chocorua is the outstanding feature—not one of the higher peaks, but certainly most impressive. The roads are all State gravel—most of them oiled.

Conway, N. H.*

Conway and North Conway are mountain resorts of great popularity.

Portsmouth, N. H.*

Pop. 13,569. New Hampshire's only seaport. Navy-yard, naval prison (in Kittery), famous toll bridge (now superseded), many fine old buildings with stately doorways. After the Battle of Santiago, Admiral Cervera and his men were quartered here; and the treaty of peace between Japan and Russia was negotiated (1905) on an island in the Piscataqua.

A useful connection for those driving between southwestern Maine and the Quebec frontier. From Colebrook roads lead to Sherbrooke, Quebec, or Connecticut Lake, the source of the river of that name. State gravel in excellent condition.

Colebrook, N. H.*

Pop. 1,910. Excellent sporting opportunities in neighborhood.

Dixville Notch, N. H.

One of the most popular summer resorts in the White Mountains. Scenery, golf, motoring, etc., to enchant the visitor.

Berlin, N. H.

Pop. 16,100. Extensive knitting, saw, paper and pulp mills, and largest sulphite pulp mill in world.

Gorham, N. H.*

Pop. 2,750. In a beautiful country, town has mining and lumbering industries to attend to when the hosts of summer visitors leave it in the fall.

Jackson, N. H.*

Pop. 550. Resort town with glorious mountain scenery.

Intervale, N. H.

Pop. 300. Summer and winter resort.

North Conway, N. H.*

Pop. 925. Long a popular summer resort, is now scarcely less desirable to those in search of winter sports.

Fryeburg, Me.

Pop. 500. Chiefly known as town where Daniel Webster taught school.

The best connection between the "East-side" and Merrimac Valley Boulevards—joining the Coast route with the Daniel Webster Highway. A trip through rolling country, for miles within sight of water. From the shore of Winnepesaukee one may see the famous Mt. Whittier and, on clear days, stately Chocorua and other outposts of the White Mountains. All State gravel road, much of it oiled.

Plymouth, N. H.*

Pop. 2,353. On Pemigewasset River. State Normal School in centre of town.

Holderness, N. H.*

Pop. 600. The Holderness School for boys here.

Squam Lake

A lovely body of water, with islands and numberless deep bays, on whose shores are a great many summer camps—notably the Summer Engineering Camp of Harvard University (dating from 1901) where courses are given in surveying, etc.

Meredith, N. H.

Pop. 1,680. Beautiful view of Lake Winnepesaukee.

The Weirs, N. H.*

Pop. 212. On Lake Winnepesaukee. Reunion ground for G. A. R.

An optional connection between the New Hampshire capital and the White Mountains. The road traverses a somewhat rolling farm country, past any quantity of lakes—good gravel all the way, oiled between Ossipee and West Ossipee.

West Ossipee, N. H.

Pop. 160. Over to the north stands the bold outline of Mount Chocorua with its 600-foot rocky horn. Many count Chocorua the sightliest peak of the whole chain, though in altitude outpassed by many. Four miles east of West Ossipee is Silver Lake, near whose shore is the remarkable Madison Boulder—a huge monolith, said to be of meteoric origin.

Wolfeboro, N. H.

Pop. 2,178. An important resort town on Winnepesaukee, New Hampshire's largest lake. There are three hundred islands in the lake, and apparently at least that number of camps.

Pittsfield, N. H.

Pop. 1,914. A sightly village nestling among the low hills.

Concord, N. H.

Pop. 22,167. The Granite State capital—of multiple importance. Concord produces granite and marble where it used to turn out Concord coaches. Mrs. Mary B. G. Eddy, founder of Christian Science, lived at Pleasant View, out Warren Street; St. Paul's School for boys is here; and, last but by no means least, the State Legislature meets here in the handsome State House every other year.

A wild and beautiful drive between the centres of the Granite and Green Mountain States. Up and down hill all the way, with frequent and splendid views of mountains, lakes and rivers. State gravel roads all the way—no steep grades or sharp curves. A worth-while trip.

Montpelier, Vt.

Pop. 7,125. The capital of Vermont and the "greatest insurance centre in the world for its size."

Barre, Vt.

Pop. 10,008. The granite centre of America, and a very agreeable city besides.

Woodsville, N. H.*

Pop. 1,275. Small, perhaps, but an important touring centre.

Bradford, Vt.

Pop. 739. Pleasantly situated on the hillside above the Connecticut, Bradford is a favorite summering place.

Lake Tarleton

A most attractive lake under the western spur of Mt. Moosilauke.

Plymouth, N. H.

A cross-country drive through some of the wildest scenery the Green Mountain State has to offer. The stretch through the narrow Smugglers Notch is especially grand. The road between Waterbury and Fairfax winds continually; north of Fairfax it is fairly direct, over open and reasonably level country. The ten miles along the Lamoille are quite scenic, too, though of course not so much so as the Notch itself. Roads all good State gravel and improved gravelly dirt.

St. Albans, Vt.

Pop. 7,588. An orderly and attractive little city three miles from Lake Champlain.

Jeffersonville, Vt.*

Pop. 700. Right at the head of Smugglers Notch.

Cambridge, Vt.*

Pop. 293. Small but important little village at strategic cross-roads on picturesque Lamoille River.

Stowe, Vt.

Pop. 526. An attractive little village whose chief importance lies in its propinquity to Mt. Mansfield, the highest peak (4,406 ft.) of the Green Mountains. The ascent of the mountain is not steep and the road good; the views are splendid and most extensive. There is a hotel at the summit, and the sunrises are especially fine.

Waterbury, Vt.

Pop. 1,515. In the narrow valley which the bubbling Winooski cuts through the mountains, Waterbury has much to offer the visitor. The walks are lovely and the motorist will find in the surroundings much to tempt him to bide a while and stretch his legs.

The northermost link in the Daniel Webster Highway. Along the broad valley of the Connecticut (north of Lancaster) on a surprisingly level road; east of Colebrook more hilly and winding. This last good gravel; balance fine oiled State road.

Dixville Notch, N. H.*

A narrow winding ravine at whose northern end are three little lakes and a great hotel, stunningly situated. Very fine and sporting, golf may be had on the links up the hillside. This is a great territory for walkers, and many interesting trails lead into the surrounding hills. The Canadian frontier is but seven miles away.

Colebrook, N. H.*

Pop. 1,811. A neat little town with a fine cool climate in summer. On the Vermont side stands Mt. Monadnock, lonely as the New Hampshire peak of the same name 150 miles to the south.

White Mountains

The network of good roads, following river-valleys for the most part; have contributed more than any other one factor to the pleasure one derives from a visit to this section of New England. To be able to motor in comfort and safety from one enchanting resort to any other is a boon which all too few automobilists are ready to acknowledge.

Showing the shortest and best way between the mountains and the Quebec frontier, or (from Newport) the northern end of Lake Champlain. Through rolling valleys between mountain ranges — no grades of consequence or dangerous curves. All State gravel, most of it oiled in New Hampshire.

Newport, Vt.*

Pop. 4,976. U. S. Customs and immigration station. Produces lumber, granite, clothing, veneer, etc. Railway junction, also popular summer resort.

From Newport a fine Provincial highway leads to Montreal, providing the shortest connection between that city and the White Mountains. (No. 196.)

Island Pond, Vt.

Pop. 1,837. Chiefly a farming village, yet with railroad shops of the Grand Trunk.

N. Stratford, N. H.

Pop. 450. Lumbering is principal industry of this resort town.

Lancaster, N. H.

Pop. 2,819. A lumbering town which has also some manufacturing. Important tourist centre of White Mountain region.

A useful connection between the top of New Hampshire and the southern part of the Province of Quebec. Good gravel all the way, except for two and a half miles of dirt, rutty and slippery when wet, in the Province, between Canaan and Averill Lake.

Sherbrooke, P. Q.*

Pop. 23,515. Important railroad centre. Many large industrial plants making woolen goods, tire-duck, steel and machinery. City finely situated on hills.

Coaticook, P. Q.

Pop. 3,165. This lumbering town has some factories and is a port of entry.

Averill Lake, Vt.

A lovely body of water, with several attractive camps; the fishing is unsurpassed.

Colebrook, N. H.*

Pop. 1,910. Excellent sporting opportunities in neighborhood.

White Mountains, N. H.

Lacking the gentleness of their neighbors, the Green Mountains, and the urbanity of the Adirondacks, the White Mountains have a vigor and wild beauty unattained by either of the others.

A cross country highway between Merrimac and Connecticut, taking in the Lake Sunapee section of the Granite State. Over gently rolling country devoted to farming and the cultivation of summer boarders. All good gravel roads.

Claremont, N. H.

Pop. 9,524. A busy manufacturing town whose chief products are machinery, shoes, paper and woolens. Nevertheless, Claremont has preserved itself as a residence town, and holds no little attraction for tourists.

Newport, N. H.

Pop. 4,109. This pleasant little town gains importance from its propinquity to numerous points of interest. Among these we may mention Blue Mountain Park, a vast game preserve (25,000 acres) laid out some forty years ago by the late Austin Corbin.

Lake Sunapee

A hill-girt lake with deep bays, extremely popular with those who know it. Its banks are fairly dotted with camps, and numerous good hotels may be found on all sides. The lake is about nine miles long and three miles wide at its broadest.

Concord, N. H.

Pop. 22,167. The capital of the Granite State. In addition to certain industries (granite quarrying and finishing not the least of these), Concord revels in politics; the New Hampshire Legislature which meets biennially is bigger than the Federal Congress. Nearby are Pleasant View, Mrs. Eddy's late home, and St. Paul's School for boys.

The main State highway, over rolling farm-country. Hilly in places, but no steep grades. Occasional views of Lake Champlain and Adirondacks. Poles marked "4." All good fast gravel road with total of 11 miles macadam.

Burlington, Vt.*

Pop. 22,779. Situated on sloping hill graciously overlooking Burlington Bay. Settled 1775, now largest city in Vermont and principal port on Lake Champlain.

Middlebury, Vt.*

Pop. 2,914. Shire town of one of leading agricultural counties of New England. Has quarries and marble-finishing mill. Seat of Middlebury College, a co-educational institution.

Brandon, Vt.*

Pop. 1,650. Attractive village. Birthplace of Stephen A. Douglas, the "Little Giant," whose famous debates with Lincoln throughout Illinois resulted in the Republican victory in the election of 1860.

Lake Bomoseen, Vt.*

This lovely wooded body of water is most popular among campers, and no less so with those who prefer the comforts of the several hotels.

Rutland, Vt.*

Pop. 14,954. Famous for production of marble and the Howe Scale. Rutland is literally surrounded by marble quarries, and the output goes into buildings and monuments throughout the country.

One of the favorite connections across Lake Champlain. There is a choice of two ferries each of which gives good service. Both run on signal. The roads are good gravel, with macadam Paradox-Schroon Lake.

Schroon Lake, N. Y.

Pop. 648. A popular resort village at the head of beautiful lake. Golf, swimming, fishing, mountain-climbing combine to attract the outdoor-loving tourist.

(See map 398 for Adirondack Section.)

Ticonderoga, N. Y.

Pop. 2,102. In Colonial days a bone of contention between French and British; later taken by Americans. The old fort is now a museum and well merits a visit.

Sudbury, Vt.

Pop. 417. A mile to the south is Hyde Manor, which holds the distinction of having been managed by the same family for 128 years.

Brandon, Vt.

Pop. 1,631. Beautiful village with remarkable old trees.

Rutland, Vt.

Pop. 14,954. Vermont's second city, a railroad centre and shipping-point for enormous quantities of marble. Splendidly located among the hills, with quarries all about.

An excellent connection. Over gently rolling country all the way, very scenic between Fair Haven and Rutland. Fine State macadam and concrete in New York, balance good State gravel.

Rutland, Vt.

Pop. 14,954. Next to Burlington, Vermont's largest City. Rutland's importance lies in its marble industry—the hills on all sides are covered with quarry-derricks. In addition there are other manufactures, notably the plant of the Howe Scale works.

Fair Haven, Vt.

Pop. 2,182. Here the chief industry is slate—of the finest quality, largely used for roofing purposes.

Hudson Falls, N. Y.

Pop. 5,761. This busy town turns out great quantities of wood-pulp and paper. Box-boards and paper bags are made here.

Glens Falls, N. Y.

Pop. 17,851. A well-built and pretty city at the high falls of the Hudson. The falls (mentioned by Cooper in the Last of the Mohicans) are well worth a visit.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Pop. 13,884. Now, as formerly, a favorite resort. The springs are fully as curative as of yore, and a census would show that more, rather than fewer, visitors come to enjoy Saratoga's attractions than did when Canfield and others offered aleatory conflict and hotel bars purveyed the "cup that cheers." As for the Horse, his popularity seems greater than ever judging by the crowds who attend the races for a month each summer.

A short way between western Vermont and eastern and central New York. Over a gently-rolling farm and dairy country on fine macadam and concrete in New York and smooth State gravel in Vermont. A quick trip.

Fair Haven, Vt.

Pop. 2,182. Here the chief industry is slate—of the finest quality, largely used for roofing purposes.

Poultney, Vt.

Pop. 1,371. Also a slate-quarrying community. The once ubiquitous Welsh quarryman is fast being displaced by the "Polander."

Granville, N. Y.

Pop. 3,024. A thriving industrial community.

Cambridge, N. Y.

Pop. 1,559. Prominent during the Revolution, this patriotic village recruited two regiments 1861-1865.

Hoosick Falls, N. Y.

Pop. 4,896. Busy manufacturing city, at falls of the Hoosick River.

Troy, N. Y.

Pop. 72,223. A great industrial centre at the head of navigation of the Hudson. Its chief products are collars and shirts, iron and steel and cotton and woolen cloth. In the way of culture, the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute ("Troy Tech") ranks very high; the Emma Willard School and the Russell Sage Academy furnish higher education to girls and young women.

Rutland, Vt.*

Pop. 14,954. Famous for production of marble and the Howe Scale.

Plymouth, Vt.

Pop. 449. At Ludlow one may deviate from the main road and make a pilgrimage over a fascinating improved highway through woods and past shining lakes, to the hamlet made famous of late as the birthplace of President Coolidge. The northbound tourist may continue thence to West Bridgewater and (Route 229) over Sherburne Mountain to Rutland.

Chester, Vt.

Pop. 1,037. Tranquil village in beautiful country. Fishing and hunting in season. Lumber chief product.

Springfield, Vt.*

Pop. 5,283. Much frequented village at the foot of picturesque Mount Ascutney.

Bellows Falls, Vt.

Pop. 4,860. Had first paper mill in Vermont and first canal in U. S. chartered for navigation. Large paper mills here.

Walpole, N. H.*

Pop. 2,553. Farming is principal industry.

Keene, N. H.*

Pop. 11,210. Manufacturing town in agricultural section. Home of Lincoln's Secretary of Treasury, Salmon P. Chase.

The shortest and most satisfactory way. Along the Winooski Valley; winding and rolling Williston-Montpelier, balance over low hills through agricultural region. All good State gravel, some of it oiled in New Hampshire.

White Mountains, N. H.*

Lacking the gentleness of their neighbors, the Green Mountains, and the urbanity of the Adirondacks, the White Mountains have a vigor and wild beauty unattained by either of the others.

Montpelier, Vt.

Pop. 7,125. State capital with fine State house. Important insurance centre. Birthplace of Admiral Dewey.

Burlington, Vt.*

Pop. 22,779. Situated on sloping hill graciously overlooking Burlington Bay. Settled 1775, now largest city in Vermont and principal port on Lake Champlain. Shipping centre connecting with St. Lawrence and Hudson Rivers. Trades in lumber, dyes, stoves, children's clothes. On hill 367 ft. above Bay, buildings of University of Vermont.

A fine trip across the top of New Hampshire, skirting the northern slopes of the White Mountains. Rolling and slightly winding through a sparsely-settled farm country. State gravel roads all the way.

Gorham, N. H.*

Pop. 2,734. A rendezvous for tourists on the banks of the Androscoggin River, which stream is a source of revenue to the town between seasons. Gorham is the starting point for excursions up Mt. Washington (the auto road is but eight miles south), through the Pinkham Notch, up the Dixville Notch and into the State of Maine.

Randolph, N. H.

A well-patronized resort in a picturesque location.

Lancaster, N. H.

Pop. 2,819. The Connecticut here furnishes power to the mills, but Lancaster is rather more of a resort than an industrial centre.

Whitefield, N. H.*

Pop. 1,935. Another popular mountain-resort. The town is admirably situated in full view of the higher hills, the Presidential Range may be seen to advantage in the far distance.

St. Johnsbury, Vt.*

Pop. 7,163. This lively city has diverse manufactures, chief of which (at least from the tourist's standpoint) is the making of maple syrup and maple sugar. Another product known the country over is the Fairbanks Scale. But St. Johnsbury is of almost equal importance as a touring centre, and its accommodations for automobilists are of the best. It is a sightly place, with fine trees.

Farmington, Me.

Pop. 1,650. A market town, with some industries, at falls of the Sandy River. Mme. Lillian Nordica, prima donna, hailed from here. The best of three roads to Rangeley starts from Farmington.

Bethel, Me.*

Pop. 745. This attractive village is fortunate in possessing an unusual inn, which, more than any other factor, draws tourists from all over the country.

Gorham, N. H.*

Pop. 2,734. The town's location is its fortune. In the Androscoggin Valley, where the south-flowing stream turns east, and at the head of Pinkham Notch, Gorham is handy to the roads and trails among the Presidential Range. The auto road up Mt. Washington starts from a point but 8 miles south of Gorham.

A link in the central highway across the State. Shortest connection between the White Mountains and the East, and connecting at numerous points for the various resorts in the Pine Tree State. Mostly good State road—some short stretches of dirt, to be improved 1925. Maine has made giant strides in road construction in the past decade. When one considers the size of the territory and the mileage of the roads, one may wonder how so sparsely-settled a country can afford to undertake the task.

Bangor, Me.

Pop. 25,978. At merging point of Kenduskeag and Penobscot Rivers. Greatest lumber city in East. Also has shoe factories, shipyards and foundries.

Skowhegan, Me.

Pop. 5,981. Manufactures pulp and paper. New $1,000,000 dam in Kennebec River.

Norridgewock, Me.

Pop. 1,532. Famous for encampment of Arnold's forces en route to Quebec and for Indian Village at Old Point, burned by English, 1724.

Farmington, Me.

Pop. 1,650. On Sandy River. Birthplace of Mme. Lillian Nordica, famous prima donna.

Montreal, P. Q.

Pop. 618,516. The Metropolis of Canada, a great and beautiful city, interesting from every point of view. See Index.

Islands of Lake Champlain

The Heros, Grand Isle, Isle La Motte and the Alburg Tongue are as interesting as beautiful; their history is bound up in that of Champlain, Cartier and the rest of the French explorers of the 16th and 17th centuries.

Swanton, Vt.*

Pop. 1,371. A popular place in summer—bathing in Maquam Bay, canoeing on Missisquoi River.

Malletts Bay

A delightful arm of the lake, lovely views of which may be enjoyed from the T. R. Highway.

Burlington, Vt.

St. Albans, Vt.*

Pop. 7,588. Popular summer resort and a manufacturing centre.

Swanton, Vt.*

Pop. 1,371. Delightfully located on Maquam Bay, near where the Missisquoi River debouches into Lake Champlain. A recently completed highway leads via St. John to Montreal.

Lake Champlain

This beautiful body of water, which separates the States of New York and Vermont, is 116 miles long, and varies in width from one-half to twelve miles. It drains northward into the St. Lawrence by means of the Richelieu River. The New York and Vermont shores are connected by ferries wherever the lake is especially narrow. A line of comfortable steamers (which also carry cars) makes frequent trips up and down the lake, stopping at a large number of resorts and towns on either bank. The trip is exceedingly worth while.

Rouses Point, N. Y.

Pop. 1,700. Farming community and somewhat of a summering place.

Malone, N. Y.*

Pop. 7,556. Centre of dairying country. Site of Masonic Temple; N. Y. N. G. Armory and headquarters of a troop of State Constabulary.

Quebec, P. Q.*

Pop. 103,500. Most nobly situated and only walled American City. Founded by Champlain in 1608, captured by English 1759. In upper town modern buildings; in lower, crooked alleys and quaint old houses.

Ste. Anne de la Pérade, P. Q.

Pop 3,000. Settled 1672. Named for M. de la Pérade, whose manor house was here. Roman Catholic Church one of largest in Province.

Cap de la Madeleine, P. Q.*

Pop. 2,101. In this pulp and paper town at the mouth of the St. Maurice is the venerable shrine of Our Lady of the Holy Rosary, highly meriting a visit.

Trois Rivières, P. Q.*

Pop. 22,367. Second oldest city in Dominion. Great shipping port. Large paper and pulp, cotton, iron and lumber concerns.

Montreal, P. Q.*

Pop. 618,516. Industrial, shipping, financial metropolis of Canada. Mount Royal named by Jacques Cartier, 1535. Settled 1603 by French after Champlain's visit. Now city of arresting loveliness.

Augusta, Me.

Pop. 14,114. State House of native granite by Bulfinch. Water-power from Kennebec supplies cotton, pulp and lumber mills. Large shoe factories and publishing houses. An important junction with main highways leading to Quebec, Bangor, Rockland, Belgrade, Moosehead and Rangeley Lakes.

Monmouth, Me.

Agricultural community in the centre of an interesting lake district.

Lewiston, Me.

Pop. 36,582. Important textile centre. Seat of Bates College. Falls in Androscoggin River between here and Auburn.

Auburn, Me.

Pop. 16,985. Great shoe manufacturing centre.

Portland, Me.*

Pop. 69,272. State's greatest commercial city—important port. Longfellow's birthplace and residence. This beautiful city lies at the head of island-studded Casco Bay on a hilly promontory (formed by the Fore River) which rises to a height of 177 feet. Few cities are blessed with so much scenery visible from within their boundaries.

The shortest and best connection from Portland to the Rangeley Lake District. The option Wilton-Weld is very wild, and all but two or three miles good gravel. The red line as given is all fine fast State gravel. A splendid drive.

Rangeley, Me.*

Among the Rangeley Lakes—popular sporting region with numerous camps and clubs. The Rangeley chain of lakes reaches even into New Hampshire, Lake Umbagog lying partly within the Granite State. It is in part drained by the Androscoggin River, whose course we follow more or less closely between Auburn and Livermore Falls. Farther north this route parallels the Sandy River almost to the town of Rangeley, which is the centre of the district, surrounded by camp-lined bodies of water of every size and shape. In winter the huntsman replaces the fisherman and seldom returns to camp with an empty bag.

Farmington, Me.*

Pop. 1,650. On Sandy River. Birthplace of Mme Lillian Nordica, famous prima donna.

Auburn, Me.

Pop. 16,985. Manufactures shoes and has largest creamery in State. Good fishing in Lake Auburn.

Connecting at Newport with the best route to Moosehead Lake, and at Fairfield with the route to Skowhegan, and so to Quebec. All State macadam.

A pleasant variant is as shown via Belgrade Lakes and Oakland.

Bangor, Me.

Pop. 25,978. At merging Point of Kenduskeag and Penobscot Rivers. Greatest lumber city in East. Also has shoe factories, ship yards and foundries. In 1665 the French founded the town by building a fort on the site of the ancient "Norumbega," and Bangor has ever since had a steady growth.

Newport, Me.*

Pop. 1,709. See opposite.

Waterville, Me.

Pop. 13,351. On trails to fishing and hunting grounds. Colby College (1813) located here.

Augusta, Me.

Pop. 14,114. State House (by Bulfinch) of native granite. Water-power from Kennebec supplies cotton, pulp and lumber mills. Large shoe factories and publishing houses. Adjoining the State House is the James G. Blaine residence, a handsome colonial house, now the executive mansion, occupied by the Governor. On the heights above the Kennebec, about opposite Augusta, is a U. S. Soldiers' Home and a National Cemetery. They are quite worth a visit.

A splendid trip, through the main woods a large portion of the way. All wide State gravel, with hard oiled surface south of Dexter. Best way to and from Augusta and Portland.

Moosehead Lake.

The largest body of fresh water in the Pine Tree State. There are as yet no motor-roads around the shores of the lake, but a steamer plies to Kineo and beyond. The scenery throughout is grand, and the fishing likewise. Besides the Mt. Kineo House there are numerous other hotels on Moosehead, also many camps, private and public. In the open season the hunting in the surrounding woods is of the best. Moose, deer, and even caribou abound in the woods; bass, lake-trout and other finny game reward the fisherman. The Kennebec flows out of the lake, the Penobscot out of Chesuncook; they and their tributaries offer marvelous canoe-trips, Mount Katahdin, off to the northeast — Maine's highest peak — is the goal of many hardy trampers. Thanks to the enterprise and generosity of the Great Northern Paper Company, which has opened its miles of newly constructed roads to the public, one may motor to the Ripogenus Dam (40 miles from Greenville) or to Chesuncook (50 miles) through the forest primeval.

Newport, Me.

Pop. 1,709. A pretty little town on Lake Sebasticook, popular with tourists in the summer time.

The most direct way between Maine's largest lake and Portland or the White Mountains. Connecting at Skowhegan with roads to the east, south and west. Almost all State gravel.

Moosehead Lake, Me.

Well-known fishing and hunting territory. Many sporting camps in vicinity, and hotels. The country around Moosehead Lake is wild, hilly and full of game—furry, feathered and finny. The forest primeval rings the lake round, and civilization, though manifested in the several excellent hotels in the neighborhood, is nowhere obtrusive. Of late the Great Northern Paper Company has blazed trails through the forests and paved them with fine gravel; these roads they have generously opened to the public, and that boon is greatly appreciated by the wandering motorist.

Greenville Jct., Me.

Pop. 345. Boat-landing and stations of Canadian Pacific Ry. and Bangor & Aroostook R. R. lend importance to resort at foot of lake.

Monson, Me.

Pop. 1,079. Finest slate for electrical and roofing purposes quarried here.

Skowhegan, Me.

Pop. 5,981. Manufactures pulp and paper. New $1,000,000 dam in Kennebec River. This is the junction of roads radiating in all directions—White Mountains, Quebec, Portland or Bangor.

Winding and hilly along the beautiful Kennebec Valley; hilly and wild through a fishing and hunting paradise for some sixty miles; then over a comparatively level stock-raising and farm country following the Chaudière almost to the heights of Lévis, opposite Quebec. The villages along the line are as French as parts of Normandy, each with a steepled church (and only one) as its chief landmark. The view across the majestic St. Lawrence of America's one walled city is superb. All fine State and Provincial gravel.

A beautiful drive between two of New England's most popular resorts, through rolling farm country most of the way, with the unsurpassed Dixville Notch at the northern terminus, and numerous sparkling lakes along the way. Excellent State gravel roads.

Dixville Notch, N. H.*

Easily one of the most popular summer resorts in the White Mountains. Scenery, golf, motoring, etc., to enchant the visitor.

Bethel, Me.*

Pop. 745. A very attractive village, in the valley of the Androscoggin, whose popularity is undoubtedly enhanced by the unusual inn which stands near the green.

Poland Spring, Me.*

A favorite resort which owes its origin to the far-famed Spring. In the summer it offers swimming in the nearby lake, golf, tennis, horseback riding through the surrounding hills; in winter, hunting, in addition to the regular winter sports. The well-kept grounds extend for miles. Poland Spring water is sold all over the country.

Portland, Me.*

Pop. 69,272. State's greatest and handsomest city, Canada's "Winter port." Longfellow's birthplace and residence. Located at head of island-studded Casco Bay.

Gravel and dirt, Fryeburg-Bethel; balance good gravel, except Dixfield - Phillips, where it was being improved (1925). This last-named stretch is through very wild and hilly country and well worth the trip.

Rangeley, Me.*

Among the Rangeley Lakes—popular sporting region with numerous camps and clubs. The lakes hereabouts have many curious names, mostly of Indian origin.

Bethel, Me.*

Pop. 745. Farming village. Many summer vacationists.

Lovell Center, Me.*

A resort town on the heights above the lake. There are several inns and hotels on the shores of pine-clad Lake Kezar, to say nothing of summer camps. The fishing is unusually good, even for Maine, which is praise indeed.

Lake Kezar

Good fishing and beautiful scenery.

Fryeburg, Me.

Bristol, N. H.

Pop. 1,428. A pleasant tree-shaded village near the southern end of picturesque Newfound Lake.

West Ossipee, N. H.

Pop. 160. A short drive northeast brings one to Silver Lake (fine views of Mt. Chocorua); near here stands the immense Madison Boulder, a natural phenomenon said to be of meteoric origin.

Portland, Me.

Pop. 69,272. The metropolis of Maine, and "Canada's Winter Port." A rich and handsome city with fine buildings and well-shaded streets. From the Western Promenade one may get fine views of the distant White Mountains, while the Eastern Promenade looks out upon the splendid harbor and more distant Casco Bay, with its myriad islands. Portland was the birthplace and residence of the poet Longfellow; his monument stands at State and Congress Streets.

Desert, as well as Bluehill, and the hills to the east of Frenchmen's Bay. Practically all of the motor roads on the island are good gravel, much of it with oiled surface. For variety of scenery compressed into a very small area, it is doubtful if Mt. Desert has its equal in America.

Bangor, Me.

Pop. 25,978. At merging point of Kenduskeag and Penobscot Rivers. Greatest lumber city in East. Also has shoe factories, ship yards and foundries.

Bar Harbor, Me.*

Pop. 3,623. Famous and fashionable summer resort of Mt. Desert Island in midst of splendid scenery. Island has one hundred square miles, thirteen mountain peaks, caves, bluffs, lakes and the sea. The foregoing description conveys to the stranger about as complete an idea of Mount Desert as were one to designate the Parthenon at Athens as "a 5th Century temple." A score of poets and a hundred prose-writers have vainly endeavored to do justice to this enchanted isle—even the best of photographs fall short. Go there and see for yourselves. A large tract of the interior of the island has been preserved by the Federal government as Lafayette National Park—said to be the only national park in the East.

The easternmost link in the Atlantic Highway, and the most used gateway to and from the Maritime Provinces. While several miles back from the Coast, the road affords many delightful views of the water—mostly lakes and tidal rivers. State gravel all the way, some of it being improved during 1925.

Calais, Me.

Pop. 6,084. Packing salmon and lobsters is Calais' foremost industry.

Machias, Me.

Pop. 2,152. Here was fought the first naval battle of the Revolution.

Winter Harbor, Me.

Pop. 503. A beautiful resort, with Grindstone Neck pointing at Bar Harbor across Frenchman's Bay. The favorite sport may be said to be sailing, though golf and tennis rank high with the summer guests. When all is said and done, the hand on the tiller still rules the Winter Harbor world.

Ellsworth, Me.

Pop. 3,058. The route centre of Eastern Maine. An industrial city as well, its mills deriving their power from the dammed-up Union River.

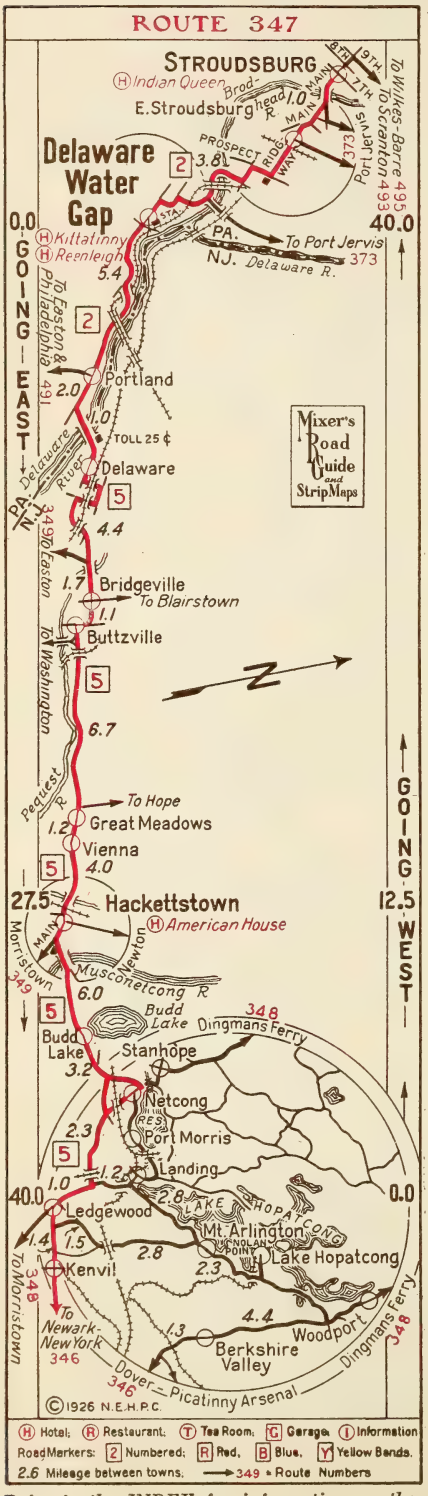
LAKE HOPATCONG, N. J.— DELAWARE WATER GAP, PA.



The western half of the best and most direct route between the Metropolis and the popular Pennsylvania resort. Through rolling uplands over fine State roads—mostly concrete in New Jersey.

Stroudsburg, Pa.

Pop. 5,278. A thriving town at the entrance to the Poconos, and increasingly popular as a summer resort.

Delaware Water Gap, Pa.*

Nationally famous resort located just where the Delaware River cuts its narrow way through the mountains. Mt. Tammany (on the Jersey side) the highest peak.

Portland, Pa.

Pop. 545. A small industrial centre.

Hackettstown, N. J.

Pop. 2,936. At the western foot of Schooleys Mountain, an important market town and route centre, with a well-known girls' school.

Budd Lake

A round pool of limpid water with a cottage colony along its south shore.

Lake Hopatcong

Beautiful hill-bound lake with deep bays. Numerous resorts all round the rugged shores attract visitors in great numbers. A steamer plies the lake; and all summer long the D. L. & W. R.R. runs excursions thither for the host of city-dwellers who desire a short sojourn in the country.

The Lincoln Highway. The Pennsylvania end is broad and direct concrete, which avoids all large towns. In New Jersey it is broad macadam, and city pavements in Trenton.

One way to avoid congestion by going via Hightstown—all fine road, and only 4½ miles farther.

New Brunswick, N. J.*

Pop. 32,779. See 351.

Princeton, N. J.

Pop. 5,917. The grounds and buildings of Princeton University are extremely lovely and well merit a stop-over. Carnegie Lake and the Palmer Stadium were gifts to the college. Ex-President Grover Cleveland, after 1897, though not an alumnus, made Princeton his home.

Trenton, N. J.

Pop. 119,289. The State Capital, and an important steel and pottery manufacturing centre. Near here Washington crossed the Delaware to capture King George's Hessians.

Philadelphia, Pa.*

Pop. 1,823,779. Those bound for points beyond the Quaker City may continue up the Schuylkill, turn left across it, and reach Overbrook (Lancaster Pike and 63rd Street), whence they may proceed to Lancaster or Baltimore without encountering any congested sections of the city.

In 1926, Broad St., north of City Hall, will be torn up for subway construction—follow red line between Roosevelt Bvd. and centre of city.

The Staten Island option between the New Jersey Coast resorts and the Metropolis. Many persons regard this way preferable to driving through Jersey City, Newark and Elizabeth. There are two ferries instead of one, but the 20-minute trip across New York Harbor is well worth while, and boats run almost continuously. All city pavement or macadam and concrete.

For contiguous detail to North and Northeast, see Route 330.

Note:—Those en route to or from New England wishing to avoid New York may use either the Dyckman St. or 125th St. ferries and the Hudson Bvd. through Jersey City and Bayonne, crossing Staten Island as shown. All paved road—the Boulevard a noble artery. Frequent ferry service.

A quick trip over the flatlands of Southern New Jersey. Fine State gravel with some macadam and concrete. Lakewood—Point Pleasant, new concrete.

Asbury Park, N. J.*

Pop. 12,500. A smaller sister of Atlantic City, daily gaining in popularity.

Ocean Grove, N. J.

Pop. 3,050. The stamping-ground of Methodists, and governed by their circumspect ideals.

Spring Lake, N. J.*

Pop. 1,000. Surf bathing, golfing, etc., make this a popular place to summer.

Lakewood, N. J.*

Pop. 3,020. A year-round resort. Golfing, riding, etc., on sandy soil among the pines.

Forked River, N. J.*

Pop. 512. On an arm of Barnegat Bay, where the sailing and swimming are good, but the fishing is even better. Izaak Walton is patron saint of Forked River.

Toms River, N. J.

Pop. 1,800. This resort does business in cranberries as well as in sea-food.

Atlantic City, N. J.*

Pop. 50,682. See opposite.

Atlantic City, N. J.*

Pop. 50,682. The greatest all-year-round resort of the Atlantic Coast because of equable climate due to Gulf Stream. Eight miles of Board Walk over a wide and usually crowded beach, enormous hotels, and an infinite variety of amusement places.

Ocean City, N. J.

Pop. 2,512. A summer resort by the sea whose popularity is growing from year to year, as may be evidenced by the amount of building construction going on. The imposing and handsome City Hall betokens the spirit of the community.

Wildwood, N. J.*

Pop. about 10,000—much more in summer. This summer playground asks no favors of any of New Jersey's coast resorts. The bathing and fishing are of the best, and sailing, golf and dancing help drive dull care away.

Cape May City, N. J.

Pop. 2,590. The Atlantic, the golf links, roads and cool summers enhance the population of this place, whose popularity never wanes.

Circuit of 31 Miles
Source of
New York City Water Supply

This map shows about all the practicable automobile roads in this picturesque section. The hard-surface highways are Nos. 19, 23 and 64 (except 8 miles north of Meridale); also Stamford-Delhi; Prattsville and Windham-Hunter-Saugerties; and Saugerties-West Hurley. Balance fair-to-good dirt and gravel.

Ashokan Dam and Reservoir, N. Y.

Most important part of New York City's water supply. Some twenty years ago the New York City authorities decided that the water supply would soon become inadequate to the needs of the community, and surveys showed that not much more water could be found near the Metropolis. So they went as far afield as the Catskill Mountains, dammed three creeks to impound the cool mountain waters in the Ashokan Reservoir, and connected it up with Manhattan by a gravity tube of reinforced concrete ninety-two miles long.

Margaretville, N. Y.

Pop. 650. Pretty summer resort in midst of Catskill Mountain scenery.

Phoenicia, N. Y.

Pop. 354. Farming village and summer resort.

Kingston, N. Y.

Pop. 28,099. Settled by Huguenots 1665. Scene of formation of State constitution, and one time capital of the State.

Cooperstown, N. Y.*

Pop. 2,725. The one-time home of James Fenimore Cooper; also of General Doubleday, reputed inventor of baseball. Now surrounded with lovely estates of Clarks, Stokeses and other New York notables. Splendid hotels cater to hosts of summer visitors.

Oneonta, N. Y.

Pop. 12,057. Industrial, railway and tourist center at western entrance to Catskills. State Normal School here.

Stamford, N. Y.*

Pop. 947. In the heart of the Catskills. Beautiful views down the mountains from Mt. Utsayantha.

Cairo, N. Y.

Pop. 575. Summer resort in beautiful region.

Catskill, N. Y.*

Pop. 4,728. Old landing place of Hendrik Hudson on Half Moon's voyage of 1609. Now great mountain resort. Starting point of Mohican and Rip Van Winkle Trails into Catskill Mountains. Connection is made here for Routes up or down the Hudson River or to Berkshire Hills, Mass.

A first class and quick connection between Catskills and Berkshires. The road traverses a rolling country, except where for seven miles near the State line it winds through a narrow valley—quite picturesque. Red line is all macadam; Catskill-Greendale-Hollowville direct is two miles shorter, but inadvisable when wet.

East Lee, Mass.

Pop. 240. At the western foot of Jacob's Ladder, a popular Berkshire summer resort.

Lee, Mass.*

Pop. 4,085. A pretty village among the lower hills.

Stockbridge, Mass.*

Pop. 1,764. Must be seen to be appreciated. Prosperity and good taste hand-in-hand.

Great Barrington, Mass.*

Pop. 6,315. The southern gateway to the Berkshires, and a delightful village.

Hillsdale, N. Y.

Pop. 537. Prettily situated near the foot of Mt. Everett.

Hudson, N. Y.*

Pop. 11,755. A thriving city well located on the river, with varied industries and many prosperous homes.

Catskill, N. Y.

Pop. 4,728. One of the oldest upper-Hudson towns; site visited by Hendrik Hudson in the "Half Moon." Entrance to the Catskill Mountains.

The logical and direct route between the Delaware and the Central Hudson Valley at the entrance to the Catskills. It is a scenic road a great part of the way, and to be recommended highly. Good gravel, Port Jervis-Wurtsboro; balance macadam.

Kingston, N. Y.

Pop. 28,099. Settled by Huguenots 1665. Scene of formation of State constitution. Ashokan Reservoir, source of New York City water supply, few miles to west.

Stone Ridge, N. Y.

Pop. 232. Here one may tour to Lake Mohonk, a small jewel set in the hills.

Kerhonkson, N. Y.

Pop. 560. At "42nd St. and Broadway," one may turn left across Rondout Creek, and follow a winding gravel road to Lake Minnewaska, beautifully set in the Shawangunk Hills (Route 337).

Ellenville, N. Y.

Pop. 3,116. Another and larger summering place at the foot of Shawangunk Mountains.

Port Jervis, N. Y.

Pop. 10,507. Principally a factory town. Deals in silver, silk, gloves and iron. A most important route centre at the junction of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The main-traveled route, with several variants. Line shown in red is hard-surfaced all the way, through a splendid hilly country with the higher peaks all round. Rivers and lakes abound in this district, much of which is State Forest reserve.

Plattsburg, N. Y.*

Pop. 11,552. Known the world over as the original American Officers' Training Camp; Plattsburg has also another claim to fame, for off Cumberland Head, in 1814, Commodore MacDonough defeated the British fleet on Lake Champlain, which victory aided materially in ending the War of 1812.

Saranac River

Our road follows the valley this magic stream cuts through the hills for 30 miles.

Loon Lake, N. Y.

Very lovely lake with many elaborate private camps.

Saranac Lake, N. Y.*

Pop. 5,174. Largest town in the mountains, nationally famous as a resort. High altitude, balsam-laden air, and a thousand things to keep one outdoors, endear it to myriads.

Saranac Inn

Saranac Lake, N. Y.*

Pop. 5,174. The largest of the Adirondack towns, located near the lake and accessible to all points of interest in the mountains.

Lake Placid, N. Y.*

Pop. 2,099. On Mirror Lake and reaching to Lake Placid, this world-famous resort under Mt. Whiteface is crowded in summer with tourists, many of whom return in winter to enjoy the unexcelled winter sports staged annually by the Lake Placid Club.

Wilmington Notch provides just room for the State road beside the purling Ausable River.

Pop. 648. Golf and bathing, tennis and fishing, mountain climbing afoot or a-horseback, as a respite for motorists resting from the road.

Ticonderoga, N. Y.*

Pop. 2,102. The old fort still stands which so often changed hands during the wars of the 18th century. It has been restored and is now well worth a visit.

Pop. 7,556. Centre of dairying country. Site of Masonic Temple. State Armory and Institute for Mutes.

Saranac Lake, N. Y.*

Pop. 4,055. Clear air makes this popular with pleasure and health seekers. Robert Louis Stevenson was one of the tubercular patients the sanitariums have benefited.

Lake Placid, N. Y.*

Pop. 2,500. All year-round resort with fishing, mountain climbing, tobogganing, etc., to charm visitors for whom the scenery is not enough. John Brown's grave close by. In and around the territory here traversed are the highest peaks of the Adirondacks.

Wilmington Notch

The narrow and winding cut in the hills made by the West Branch of the Ausable River forcing its way northeast.

Keene, N. Y.

Pop. 1,328. Summer cottages, hotels and golf courses bring many visitors here.

Elizabethtown, N. Y.*

Pop. 525. Summer resort at crossing of two valleys. Essex County seat.

This cut-off is designed to save mileage to those bound to or from northwestern New York. It is all macadam except between McColloms and Nicholville, where it is fine gravel, but narrow, laid on a wide base. The surface here is excellent, but some caution should be observed on curves, especially when in wet weather the edges might be soft. With this caution, it is an altogether excellent cut-off.

Potsdam, N. Y.*

Pop. 4,039. An industrial town on the Raquette River, with wide and tree-shaded streets. There are in town a Normal School and two institutes of technology.

Tupper Lake, N. Y.

Important touring centre on the wooded shores of the lake.

Saranac Lake, N. Y.*

Pop. 5,174. Largest town in the mountains, nationally famous as a resort. High altitude, balsam-laden air, and a thousand things to keep one outdoors, endear it to myriads.

Lake Placid, N. Y.*

Pop. 2,099. Where formerly Lake Placid's score of hotels were filled all summer long, many of them now open again in winter for the crowd of pleasure-seekers who love the great outdoors in winter. Skiing, tobogganing, skating and snow-shoeing may be enjoyed here no less than in far-off Switzerland.

Malone, N. Y.*

Pop. 7,556. Franklin County seat and important route centre on the Salmon River, growing in favor with tourists. The town has a State Normal School and the headquarters of a troop of State Constabulary. Malone is now at last connected with the Adirondacks by a new road to Duane built in 1923, which further enhances the importance of the town.

Plattsburg, N. Y.*

Pop. 11,552. On September 11, 1814, Commodore Thomas MacDonough, U. S. N., with a small fleet of ships defeated the British fleet off Cumberland Head, and thus aided in bringing to a close the War of 1812. Ever since Plattsburg Barracks has been a U. S. Army post. In 1915, at the suggestion of Maj. General Leonard Wood, there was opened here the first of the Reserve Officers' Training Camps for selected university men who showed a desire to prepare themselves as eventual defenders of their country. The camp, with its drastic intensive training, was continued throughout the war (and many other "Plattsburgs" eked out its quota); so that now the system seems firmly entrenched in our scheme of national defense, and the name Plattsburg takes on a new significance.

Chimney Island (Isle Royale) was taken from the French in 1760.

Brockville, Ont.

Pop. 9,380. Settled by United Empire Loyalists in 1780, was named (1814) in honor of Sir Isaac Brock, defender of Queenston Heights. A ferry connects Brockville with Morristown, N. Y.

Gananoque, Ont.

Pop. 3,694. In the very heart of the Thousand Island district, this pretty town is much sought out by tourists. The thing to do is to hire a launch and spend a day or more meandering through the maze of islands which crowd the fast-flowing St. Lawrence throughout a stretch of twenty-five miles.

Kingston, Ont.

Pop. 21,753. See next page.

The main Provincial Highway, following the general line of the north shore of Lake Ontario. Through a fairly level farming country — remarkably fruitful — on macadam and gravel.

Kingston, Ont.

Pop. 21,753. An ancient city, gloriously situated at the western gateway to the Thousand Islands. Founded 1673 by Count Frontenac, its strategic location at the head of the St. Lawrence lent it importance from the beginning. There are the Tete-du-Pont Barracks, garrisoned by the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery; Fort Henry, over a century old; the General Hospital, whose main building for years housed the first Parliament. The Royal Military College is at Kingston — the West Point of Canada.

Belleville, Ont.

Pop. 12,206. At the head of the Bay of Quinte, this thriving city is gaining prominence as a shipping port.

Cobourg, Ont.

Pop. 5,327. A delightful lake resort with many attractive summer homes.

Toronto, Ont.

Pop. 521,893. See Route 407.

The main Provincial Highway, through a rich farming country, and mostly in view of the lake. Concrete practically all the way.

Toronto, Ont.

Pop. 521,893. Ontario's largest city and the second in the Dominion; a metropolitan community of great beauty, with broad and straight streets and impressive buildings, public and private. Founded as a trading post in 1749, the French called it Fort Rouille; later the English named it York, which was in 1834 changed to Toronto. Toronto's industries are many, and it is a very busy lake port. The city owns all its public utilities. This live municipality maintains a permanent Canadian National Exhibition which draws crowds not only from all over the Dominion but from most of the United States as well. The University of Toronto, with a splendid plant, is one of the largest in the British Empire. Adjoining it is the handsome Ontario Parliament Building. Sunnyside Beach is a favorite resort in summer.

Hamilton, Ont.

Pop. 114,151. 1813 saw the birth of Hamilton, named for its founder. A wonderful view of this handsome city may be had from the Niagara Escarpment, here about 250 feet high. Hamilton Beach on Lake Ontario affords excellent bathing. Dundurn Park, out York Street, is well worth a visit.

The celluloid holder will keep your book clean, and costs but $2.00. See inside back cover.

Part of the main Provincial Highway across the Peninsula of Ontario. Over fairly level and very fertile farming country on good Provincial gravel and macadam.

Hamilton, Ont.

Pop. 114,151. 1813 saw the birth of Hamilton, named for its founder. It manufactures steel, agricultural machinery, cotton, knit goods and jams and canned vegetables and fruits. A wonderful view of this handsome city may be had from the Niagara Escarpment, here about 250 feet high. Hamilton Beach on Lake Ontario affords excellent bathing. Dundurn Park, out York Street, is well worth a visit.

Brantford, Ont.

Pop. 29,440. A large and prosperous city, whose venerable Mohawk Church is an interesting sight.

London, Ont.

Pop. 60,959. Not yet a hundred years old, this city on the Thames is now a great manufacturing centre, producing among other things enamelware, concrete mixers, pianos, pumps, agricultural implements and cigars. One firm is said to be the largest stove works in the British Empire. Among the sights of the city are its numerous parks—notably Springbank, on the banks of the Thames just outside the city limits; and the new buildings of Western University, situated most picturesquely also on the Thames.

London, Ont.

Pop. 60,959. See opposite.

Leamington, Ont.

Pop. 3,675. Leamington claims the honor of being the most southerly town in the Dominion. There is a Federal game preserve and aviary nearby.

Windsor, Ont.

Pop. 38,591. A most progressive and attractive city. Among its industries brewing holds a prominent place although the Province is "dry." High-class horse-racing at the Windsor tracks attracts many from Detroit, for differences of opinion may still be backed financially at the pari-mutuel booths.

Detroit, Mich.

Pop. 993,678. The fourth city of the United States, and the world's automobile-building centre. Next in importance in the way of industries is the great pharmaceutical plant of Parke Davis & Co. A beautiful city, fortunate in that its phenomenal growth started with the renaissance of architectural taste after its forty years of stagnation following the Civil War.

Antwerp, N. Y.

Pop. 974. Iron mining and dairying are both important industries here.

Watertown, N. Y.*

Pop. 32,836. Progressive industrial city. Water-power of the Black River used for large paper and flour mills. Trading centre for farmers and dairymen in thirty-five mile radius. Watertown is the centre from which to visit the enchanting Thousand Islands. Roads lead direct to Cape Vincent, to Clayton and to Alexandria Bay.

Carthage, N. Y.

Pop. 4,320. In a dairying country, the town has several factories.

Utica, N. Y.*

Pop. 101,604. Extensive and diverse manufactures. Surrounding country famous for dairy products. Finger Lake and Mohawk Valley regions easily accessible.

A beautiful drive into the heart of the Adirondacks through the lake country. State road Utica-Old Forge; being improved between there and Eagle Bay; balance dirt and gravel. A boat carries cars and passengers the length of Raquette Lake; best make inquiries at Eagle Bay or Long Lake as to schedule.

These North Woods and the Fulton Chain of Lakes have for years been a paradise for fishermen in spring and summer and for hunters in winter; they are very wild and quite unspoiled, and particularly well adapted to the motorist-camper.

Utica, N. Y.*

Pop. 101,604. The metropolis of the prosperous Mohawk Valley. A most important route centre, county seat of Oneida County. Commercially, Utica is of importance beyond what its population returns would seem to signify; it is not only a great manufacturing city (turning out many kinds of knit goods, tools, etc.), but the market town of the immensely fertile Mohawk Valley and the neighboring cross-valleys. To mention only one of Utica's manufacturing plants, the Savage Arms Company during the war turned out tens of thousands of Lewis machine guns for the British Army and the U. S. Marine Corps and Navy.

Malone, N. Y.*

Pop. 7,556. Centre of dairying country. Site of Masonic Temple, State Armory and Institute for Mutes.

Potsdam, N. Y.*

Pop. 4,039. State Normal School, Clarkson School of Technology, and Crane Institute of Technology here. Potsdam is a prosperous and neat little city whose streets are broad, well paved and tree-bordered. The Raquette River provides power for the mills which account for much of Potsdam's physical well-being.

Gouverneur, N. Y.*

Pop. 4,143. Market town with several factories. A memorial arch to the soldiers of the Civil War, in a green in the centre of the town, lends dignity to the main street.

Watertown, N. Y.*

Pop. 32,836. In picturesque country at the western entrance to the Adirondacks, and en route to the Thousand Islands. Progressive industrial city. Water-power of the Black River used for large paper and flour mills. Trading centre for farmers and dairymen in thirty-five mile radius.

Pop. 618,516. Industrial, shipping, financial metropolis of Canada. Mount Royal named by Jacques Cartier, 1535. Settled 1603 by French after Champlain's visit. Now city of arresting loveliness. Splendid churches: Notre Dame, Christ Church Cathedral, Church of the Gesu. Famous schools: McGill University, MacDonald College, L'Université de Montréal.

St. Lambert, P. Q.

Pop. 3,890. An attractive suburb of Montreal, overlooking the mighty St. Lawrence River.

Province of Quebec

The stranger really needs no custom house to tell him when he is in Quebec. Everything is different, the people most of all. For it is quite like being transported back three hundred years to the days of Louis XIII; the peasants speak the French of those times, nor have many of their customs changed much since. Every little village is o'ertopped by a great church, and only one; for here Rome knows no rivals and all worship under the same roof.

Oswego, N. Y.*

Pop. 22,369. Old English trading post and fort established 1722. Fort Ontario nearby, destroyed by Montcalm's French troops. City now important commercial point—exports coal, imports lumber.

Rome, N. Y.

Pop. 30,328. City is in a rich farming and dairying district. Has large iron plants and locomotive works.

Utica, N. Y.*

Pop. 101,604. Extensive and diverse manufactures. Surrounding country famous for dairy products. Finger Lake and Mohawk Valley regions easily accessible. During the war the Savage Arms Co. at Utica turned out tens-of-thousands of the famous Lewis machine-guns for the British and Canadian Armies. After the United States finally took a hand the Marine Corps ordered a supply of these weapons, and was promptly equipped.

The scenery north of Cooperstown, where the road skirts Otsego Lake, is as lovely as one could wish. All State macadam.

Syracuse, N. Y.*

Pop. 182,003. The Salt City. Vast industries and co-educational university (1870).

Manlius, N. Y.

Pop. 1,296. St. John's Military School, of the first quality, due to General Verbeck's zeal.

Cazenovia, N. Y.

Pop. 1,683. Old and beautiful town of homes at foot of lake. Daniel Webster once called it prettiest village he ever saw.

Richfield Springs, N. Y.

Pop. 1,388. Once the rival of Saratoga, Richfield still retains much of its pristine glory.

Cooperstown, N. Y.*

Pop. 2,725. The one-time home of James Fenimore Cooper; also of General Doubleday, reputed inventor of baseball. Now surrounded with lovely estates of Clarks, Stokeses and other New York notables. Splendid hotels cater to hosts of summer visitors.

A pretty trip, rolling and winding along Valley of Susquehanna, with frequent river views, and seven miles along the Chenango. All fine State road. No difficult grades.

Oneonta, N. Y.

Pop. 12,057. Industrial, railway and tourist centre at western entrance to Catskills. State Normal School here. It is the market town for a large territory, with not a few industrial plants and railroad shops.

Unadilla, N. Y.

Pop. 1,009. An old-fashioned pleasant village on the beautiful Susquehanna. Several manufacturing plants.

Sydney, N. Y.

Pop. 2,670. In a farming region.

Binghamton, N. Y.*

Pop. 71,915. Important industrial city, with large shoe factories and other plants. Northern terminus of the splendid Lackawanna Trail. This already famous Lackawanna Trail really merits the encomiums heaped upon it. When some years ago the Lackawanna Railroad decided to expend huge sums of money to reduce its grades and flatten out its many curves, the old right-of-way was virtually abandoned. The new line paralleled the old fairly closely, but was distinct from it.

The direct highway between Susquehanna and Mohawk. All State macadam and concrete.

Utica, N. Y.*

Pop. 101,604. The social and industrial metropolis of the wonderfully productive Mohawk Valley, and an extremely important touring centre from which State roads radiate in all directions. A great deal of freight originating here is transported on the new 1,000-ton Barge Canal, as the enlarged Erie Canal is now officially called.

Clinton, N. Y.*

Pop. 1,270. This small aristocratic town is the home of Hamilton College, founded in 1812, a small institution (some 350 students), but of very high standard, which numbers among its graduates Hon. Elihu Root.

Hamilton, N. Y.*

Pop. 1,505. Colgate University (1819) is here, whose football teams have in late years had the temerity to triumph over most of the larger college outfits in the East. Some 800 students attend Colgate.

Norwich, N. Y.

Pop. 8,345. A pretty city with varied industries: Maydole hammers, O.N.T. thread, Borden's condensed milk.

Binghamton, N. Y.*

A useful connection between the Cleveland-Buffalo trunk-line and Northwestern Pennsylvania, intersecting the Liberty Highway at Jamestown. The road runs through a very prosperous agricultural section all the way. All State roads.

Fredonia, N. Y.*

Pop. 6,051. Centre of grape-growing industry. Large nurseries and canneries. State Normal School. Birthplace of Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Lilly Dale, N. Y.

This pretty resort is in summer-time the Chautauqua of the Spiritualists, who hold several séances nightly. The attractive Cassadaga Lakes, white and yellow lilies margining the shores, are popular with sailing, rowing and canoeing parties.

Jamestown, N. Y.

Pop. 43,414. The annual output of wooden furniture, which exceeds $30,000,000, and the 35-mile drive round Chautauqua Lake, are the two most startling things about Jamestown. In May and November the city is visited by furniture buyers from all over the country, and during motoring months tourists enjoy the privileges of the Chautauqua Institution.

Warren, Pa.

Pop. 14,272. Warren, on the Allegheny River, makes furniture too, and is in the Keystone petroleum district of which Bradford is the hub.

Via the Lackawanna Trail. A splendid drive over the hills between Scranton and the New York line, the road for the most part being laid on the old roadbed abandoned when the Lackawanna R. R. built its splendid cut-offs. Wilkes-Barre to Scranton through a concatenation of anthracite towns. All macadam, brick and concrete.

Binghamton, N. Y.*

Pop. 71,915. Important industrial city, with large shoe factories. The junction of many interesting and important highways. In the centre of a beautiful farming and scenic section.

Scranton, Pa.*

Pop. 137,783. The leading city in the anthracite coal fields—annual production of 20,000,000 tons. Scranton is the home of the International Correspondence Schools, an institution with more alumni than any college or university in the U. S. The Lackawanna Trail continues to Stroudsburg and the Delaware Water Gap (Route 493).

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.*

Pop. 73,833. Part of Wyoming Valley, settled 1753. Now centre of largest anthracite coal field in world. Large silk, iron and textile production.

Oswego, N. Y.*

Pop. 22,369. Old English trading post and fort established 1722. Fort Ontario nearby, destroyed by Montcalm's French troops. City now important commercial point—exports coal, imports lumber.

Sodus, N. Y.

Pop. 1,329. Great small fruit region—large shipments to New York. Sodus Point on Lake Ontario seven miles out, popular resort.

Rochester, N. Y.*

Pop. 316,786. Known as Flower City from large nurseries. Plant of Eastman Kodak Company here. Many other large industrial concerns. Lake Ontario and Finger Lake all within motoring distance. Rochester not only leads the country in the manufacture of photographic and optical goods, but is in the front rank of the ready-to-wear clothing industry. Rochester University, founded 1850, educates 750 young men and women.

Note that many route numbers have purposely been omitted. This is to allow for additional routes in future editions.

Watertown, N. Y.*

Pop. 32,836. The metropolis of far northern New York, Watertown is the logical centre for trips to the Thousand Islands and St. Lawrence River points. F. W. Woolworth established the first of all his 5c. and 10c. stores in this, his native town. The falls of the Black River give power for Watertown's many mills and factories. At Sacket Harbor, nearby, was fought the first engagement of the War of 1812.

Pulaski, N. Y.

Pop. 1,895. An attractive town on the Salmon River, several miles from Lake Ontario.

Mexico, N. Y.

Pop. 1,336. Busy village, with bathing beach at Mexico Point on Lake Ontario.

Pop. 22,369. A prominent port on Lake Ontario at the mouth of the Oswego River. There are paper mills and other plants here. Fort Ontario, on the lake front, is still an Army post.

Via the "Million Dollar Highway," which follows a ridge for many miles paralleling the shore of Lake Ontario (though nowhere in sight of the water). The territory traversed is probably the richest fruit-growing section in the East, and at the right season the cherry or apple trees in bud are a delightful sight. All State macadam and concrete.

Niagara Falls, Ont.

Pop. 14,764. A growing city, whose chief industries are electric power and sightseers. Victoria Park, opposite the Horseshoe Falls, is a lovely reservation lining the bluffs above the river and rapids. Thence a 20-mile boulevard skirts the Canadian shore to opposite Buffalo.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.*

Pop. 57,033. A large manufacturing city deriving its power from the rapids of the river below the falls. Prospect Park and Goat Island are reservations from which one gets a splendid view of rapids and falls. The Riverway follows the American shore all the way to Buffalo.

Rochester, N. Y.*

Pop. 316,786. Best known for its enormous output of Kodaks and optical goods, but almost equally prominent in production of ready-to-wear clothing. University of Rochester, founded 1850. East Avenue, a long street with splendid homes.

The two red lines, Rochester-Batavia, are both macadam and concrete—the option via Bergen is slightly shorter and likely to be somewhat less congested than the Caledonia-Scottsville way.

Rochester, N. Y.*

Pop. 316,786. The third city of the State and first in manufacture of photographic and optical goods. Eastman Kodak plant worth seeing. Some of Rochester's residence streets are very beautiful—notably East Avenue. University of Rochester founded 1850.

Batavia, N. Y.*

Pop. 15,628. City lies at the junction of two old Indian trails. It is a pretty town with prosperous homes. It manufactures plows and other agricultural implements, as well as other products.

Buffalo, N. Y.*

Pop. 538,016. Founded no longer ago than 1803, Buffalo has long since become the metropolis of western New York. It holds a supreme position at the eastern terminus of the Great Lakes water route, and is equally prominent as a railroad centre. Niagara Square, now being treated as the future civic centre, with the McKinley memorial obelisk, is destined to become one of the best squares, architecturally, in America.

Bath, N. Y.

Pop. 4,795. County seat of Steuben County, this attractive town is the site of a U. S. Soldiers' Home.

Elmira, N. Y.*

Pop. 48,359. Elmira's industries are many and diverse. The city, first settled in 1788, boasts the first institution in the country to offer higher education to women. Mark Twain's house is of interest. The Elmira Reformatory for boys is the largest in the State. Battle of Newtown (1779) took place some miles east near Lowman.

Buffalo, N. Y.*

Pop. 538,016. Called the Key City of Industry from strategic position on Lake Erie and East-to-West trade routes. Beautiful homes, parks and avenues. Crystal Beach, twelve, and Niagara Falls, twenty-five miles away.

East Aurora, N. Y.*

Pop. 3,703. A most attractive village famous because of Elbert Hubbard and the Roycrofters. For the discriminating motorist always on the lookout for something "different" we cannot but recommend a visit to the Roycroft shops. Here he may see the tangible result of an earnest effort to crystallize an aspiration to do something good for its own sake. He may not altogether like everything he sees, but he must, if honest with himself, admit the honesty of purpose of the Roycrofters as evidenced by the products of their labors.

Dansville, N. Y.

Pop. 4,631. In the grape belt of New York, town also has extensive nurseries. Farming and stock raising in contiguous country.

Canandaigua, N. Y.*

Pop. 7,686. An old frontier town in beautiful country, on old Genesee Turnpike, now main motor route, Albany-Buffalo.

Geneva, N. Y.*

Pop. 14,648. Besides doing extensive farming and fruit-growing this city manufactures optical goods, engines, boilers and steam engines.

Penn Yan, N. Y.

Pop. 4,517. Settled by Pennsylvanians and New England Yankees—hence the name.

Watkins, N. Y.*

Pop. 2,785. A very popular pleasure and health resort on Seneca Lake. Famed for its beautiful glen. This glen, now a State park, is a natural wonder. The little stream has cut its way through the rock formation in a series of magnificent gorges and grottoes. They call to mind the Ausable Chasm, some 250 miles away.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.

Showing four optional routes. It may safely be suggested that for a trip out and back, the prettiest way north is via Delaware Avenue and the River Road, and south via the International Bridge and the Ontario Boulevard. The customs formalities are not in the least irksome unless Americans make purchases on the Canadian side.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.* Pop. 57,033.

What was once a little town with resort hotels has, thanks to the demand for electric current, become a large manufacturing city, using (as well as transmitting) the million or more horsepower generated by turbines actuated by the Niagara River below the falls. The hotels are still there, gathered at the old centre near Prospect Park, which skirts the rapids and the American Falls. The park includes Goat Island, which divides the stream in two and from which one gets stunning views of the American and Horseshoe (Canadian) Falls, the upper and lower Rapids, the Gorge, etc. To persons visiting this region for the first time we cannot too strongly urge a stopover of sufficient length to enable them to "do" the sights in the prescribed manner. There are few spectacles in the world the equal of Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont. Pop. 14,764

The recent history of this city is that of its sister across the river. Victoria Park is well kept and most attractive, affording the best view of the Horseshoe Falls. Upstream are several large power stations, all in good taste architecturally—one of them a decided ornament even in such a splendid setting. The trolley ride down the Gorge to the Whirlpool should not be missed, nor in fact, any of the enterprises which have to do with views of the Falls.

Hamilton, Ont.

Pop. 114,151. 1813 saw the birth of Hamilton, named for its founder. It manufactures steel, agricultural machinery, cotton, knit goods and jams and canned vegetables and fruits. A wonderful view of this handsome city may be had from the Niagara Escarpment, here about 250 feet high. Hamilton Beach on Lake Ontario affords excellent bathing. Dundurn Park, out York Street, is well worth a visit.

Skaneateles, N. Y.

Pop. 1,635. One thousand feet above sea level, at the head of Skaneateles, easternmost of the Finger Lakes.

Auburn, N. Y.*

Pop. 35,677. Manufacturing city on site of old Indian ground. Home of William H. Seward, Lincoln's Secretary of State. State Prison here.

Seneca Falls, N. Y.*

Pop. 6,389. Manufactures large numbers of pumps. Claims honor as birthplace of Woman Suffrage. Seneca Falls is a mile or so from the north end of Cayuga Lake, largest of the Finger Lakes, its length being 40 miles, and extreme width 3½.

Geneva, N. Y.*

Pop. 15,908. Besides doing extensive farming and fruit-growing this city manufactures optical goods, engines, boilers and steam engines.

Buffalo, N. Y.*

Pop. 538,016. Manufacturing, shipping, meat packing on large scale. City on Erie Canal, at eastern end of Lake Erie. Many beautiful homes. Niagara Falls 20 miles away. Buffalo is the largest city in the country that has the commission form of government. It has enjoyed it since 1916, and seems to thrive on it. Certainly to the eye of the unbiased observer things appear to be going smoothly enough, and the town grows handsomer every year. There is a town planning commission which endeavors to guide the municipality in its physical growth so as to avoid the errors and pitfalls into which other American cities have fallen and from which they are expending herculean efforts to escape.

59.8	Atlantic City	0.0

Via the White Horse Pike. Almost a bee line, avoiding all large towns, on fine concrete between Haddon Heights and Absecon.

Philadelphia, Pa.*

Pop. 1,823,779. The Pennsylvania metropolis is rich in historic interest. Here it was that the Declaration of Independence was signed; the Continental Congress sat (except during the British occupation); Betsy Ross made the first Stars and Stripes (in Germantown); the Constitutional Convention held its sessions. Hither came young Ben Franklin from Boston to set up as printer, publisher, philosopher, inventor, postmaster and general benefactor. The suburbs are very lovely, for the country roundabout is quite hilly and picturesque. Market St. Ferry every few minutes, or use the new Bridge.

Camden, N. J.*

Pop. 116,309. An important industrial city—shipbuilding, steel mills, ceramics provide work for many thousands.

Atlantic City, N. J.*

Pop. 50,707. Beyond peradventure the greatest resort in the world. Statistics show there are some 1,200 hotels, great and small, to cater to the visitors, who number ten million a year. Half a dozen piers jut out into the ocean from the Boardwalk eight miles long. There are twenty-one theatres, twelve banking institutions and three daily newspapers. And all this combined with an unexcelled climate and an unusual annual quota of sunshine.

In dry weather almost everyone travels via Route 20 (red), which is good gravel between Millville and Westville; when wet, the option via Bridgeton (concrete) will recompense one for the 12½ miles extra distance. Cape May-Millville and Westville-Camden all hard surface.

Philadelphia, Pa.*

Pop. 1,823,779. 1926 is a banner year for the Quaker City in that it marks the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, celebrated by the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition. The grounds are on South Broad Street, well out of the congested section of the city. The year 1926 will also see the opening of the Delaware River Bridge (here shown), by far the greatest suspension bridge in the world.

Wildwood, N. J.*

Pop. about 10,000 — much more in summer. This summer playground asks no favors of any of New Jersey's coast resorts. The bathing and fishing are of the best, and sailing, golf and dancing help drive dull care away.

Cape May City, N. J.

Pop. 2,590. The Atlantic, the golf links, roads and cool summers enhance the population of this place, whose popularity never wanes.

The road traverses the level expanses of New Jersey's farm lands half of the way, the easternmost half being devoted mostly to scrub oaks and pines. 65 miles of macadam; balance fine gravel.

Point Pleasant, N. J.*
Pop. 1,575. Favorite seaside summer colony which certainly does not belie its name.

Lakewood, N. J.*
Pop. 6,115. Golfers play here on the famous course amid the pines and sand of New Jersey country. The town is a resort summer and winter.

Wrightstown, N. J.
Pop. 5,288. Here was the war-time Camp Dix.

Toms River, N. J.
Pop. 1,800. Sea-food and cranberry market and quite a summer resort as well.

Lakehurst, N. J.
Pop. 990. To the general attraction of a resort among the pines is added the presence of a U. S. Navy Aviation Field, and the gargantuan hangar which used to house the immense dirigibles Shenandoah and Los Angeles, before the former was destroyed and the latter sent to a more benign climate in southern California.

Asbury Park, N. J.*

Pop. 12,500. A smaller sister of Atlantic City.

Long Branch, N. J.

Pop. 13,521. With Allenhurst, Elberon, etc., among the most popular Jersey Shore resorts.

Freehold, N. J.*

Pop. 4,768. Battle of Monmouth took place two miles away—June, 1778.

Trenton, N. J.*

Pop. 119,289. State capital and industrial city. The night after Christmas, 1776, Washington with a small force crossed the ice-jammed Delaware in small boats and made a surprise attack on the Hessian garrison at Trenton, whom he dispersed, later following up his success against Cornwallis' red-coats.

A popular and useful way between the Quaker City and North Central New Jersey—much used as a connection between the lower Delaware and Southern New England points, connecting at Morristown with the route-map to Alpine and the ferry to Yonkers, N. Y. Rolling farm country; State roads all the way. Another way would be Routes 352 to Princeton and 353 to Morristown.

Morristown, N. J.

Pop. 12,548. A delightful and historic town. The headquarters of Washington were in the Colonel Ford House, still standing. Hill in centre of town once crowned by Fort Nonsense, built by Washington. Telegraph first used in Morristown. State Hospital for Insane in Greystone Park.

Philadelphia, Pa.*

Pop. 1,823,779. The third city of the United States. On Delaware and Schuylkill Rivers, 100 miles from ocean. Important historically and industrially. Great ship yards, locomotive works, iron and steel plants, etc. See Independence Hall, Franklin Institute, U. S. Mint, U. S. Navy Yard, etc.

The best way between these cities, and, in connection with Route 487, provides a splendid highway between Philadelphia and the Westchester County gateway into New England. This route avoids all large congested cities, and the Alpine-Yonkers ferry operates at very frequent intervals and till quite late at night. At Yonkers see Route 3 for detailed map of Westchester County. Hard-surface roads all the way.

Yonkers, N. Y.*

Pop. 113,647. Settled by Dutch early in 17th century. Yonkers' boast is that it is "next to the largest city in the country." The greatest carpet factory in the world is in Yonkers.

Alpine, N. J.

Pop. 175. Perched on top of the wooded Palisades of the Hudson.

Hackensack, N. J.

Pop. 17,667. An old Dutch settlement, now dedicated to suburban homes and varied manufactures.

Paterson, N. J.

Pop. 135,875. America's greatest silk centre and New Jersey's fastest-growing city.

Morristown, N. J.

Pop. 12,548. A delightful and historic town. The headquarters of Washington were in the Colonel Ford House, still standing. Hill in centre of town once crowned by Fort Nonsense, built by Washington. Telegraph first used in Morristown. State Hospital for Insane in Greystone Park.

Pop. 373. (Route 493.)

Easton, Pa.*

Pop. 33,813. Prominent manufacturing city at the confluence of the Lehigh and Delaware rivers; Lafayette College, founded 1832, with about 1,000 students, is located here.

Philadelphia, Pa.*

Pop. 1,823,779. One of America's greatest manufacturing cities, whose output includes locomotives, ships, steel products, and almost every kind of manufactured object. At the same time the City of Penn has not neglected the esthetic side; its public buildings, parks and monuments are in very good taste, and there are many points of historical interest to detain the tourist. Chief among these are Independence Hall, Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, U. S. Mint, Girard College (no clergymen admitted) and the University of Pennsylvania.

Through the heart of the Pocono Mountains, via the Lackawanna Trail—excellent winding concrete and macadam. Through a wild and wooded country for a dozen miles north of Tobyhanna; the winding drive south of Scranton is most picturesque.

Scranton, Pa.*

Pop. 137,783. The leading city in the anthracite coal fields—annual production of 20,000,000 tons. Other large industries: manufacture of woolen goods, tin plate, edge tools, railway cars, etc. Scranton lies at the confluence of Roaring Brook and the Lackawanna River. The former cuts its way through a narrow and extremely scenic gorge, which can be seen from the road for several miles south of the city.

Tobyhanna, Pa.

Pop. 625. Though small in population, Tobyhanna has a good deal of tourist business. Near here is a U. S. Field Artillery practice-ground.

Mt. Pocono, Pa.

Pop. 328. A popular playground in a lovely hill region.

Pocono Manor, a most attractive resort.

Stroudsburg, Pa.

Pop. 5,278. Has farming and manufacturing interests. But is chiefly a resort.

May be under construction between Blakeslee and the Wilkes-Barre City line.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.*

Pop. 73,833. Part of Wyoming Valley settled 1753. Now centre of largest anthracite coal field in world. Large silk, iron and textile production. The Wyoming Valley, near Wilkes-Barre, is best known to history as the scene of the Wyoming Massacre. During the Revolution (1778) a force of British and Indians defeated the Americans resident in the district, and after the battle the most earnest efforts of the English officers could not prevent the savages from slaying some 300 women and children. It is said that the Seneca Queen Esther herself killed fourteen unarmed prisoners with her tomahawk.

Mt. Pocono, Pa.

Pop. 328. A popular playground in a lovely hill region.

Pocono Manor a most attractive resort.

Stroudsburg, Pa.

Pop. 5,278. Some manufacturing industries, but more prominent as a resort.

Delaware Water Gap, Pa.*

A gorge through which runs the Delaware River. Gap is two miles long and the hills that flank it 1,500 feet high. Centre of several summer resorts.

A splendid highway connecting the Quaker City with the Poconos, with the twin cities on the Lehigh, and with the Anthracite Cities, Scranton (Route 493) and Wilkes-Barre (Route 495). A short cut is shown joining these two routes at Bartonsville. All hard-surface road, except gravelly dirt Snydersville-Bartonsville.

Stroudsburg, Pa.*

Pop. 5,278. Some manufacturing industries, but more prominent as a resort.

Bethlehem, Pa.*

Pop. 50,358. Founded 1741 by Moravians under Count Zinzendorf; many of their quaint customs have survived the hustle of 20th century progress. Lehigh University (1866), with 1,000 students, is Lafayette's dearest enemy. Another point of great interest is the plant of the Bethlehem Steel Co., across the Lehigh River. The Bach Choir is one of the best trained oratorio societies in the country.

Allentown, Pa.

Pop. 73,502. Founded in 1762, this city has grown phenomenally in recent years. Its principal product is silk, but its 350 factories also turn out trucks and tires, shoes, lumber, boxes, cigars, clothing, mining machinery and structural steel. Muhlenberg College was founded 1867.

Philadelphia, Pa.*

Pop. 1,823,779. See Index.

A link in the William Penn Highway — a very direct thoroughfare (except in Philadelphia) over rolling farm country through an historically interesting part of the State. This route, continued to Harrisburg, provides a pleasant option to the Lancaster way, and only five miles longer. All State road.

Reading, Pa.

Pop. 107,784. The fourth city of the Keystone State, of great industrial importance, located as it is in a territory where coal and limestone are abundant. The Philadelphia & Reading Railroad shops are here.

Norristown, Pa.

Pop. 32,319. Steel products and coal. By turning southwest at Jeffersonville, one may drive to Valley Forge, where Washington had his winter quarters during that terrible winter of 1777-78, when only his sublime patience and optimism kept the ragged, frozen and half-starved Continentals alive to prosecute the war to a successful conclusion. The ruins of Valley Forge well merit a visit. See Route 480.

Philadelphia, Pa.*

Pop. 1,823,779. One of America's greatest manufacturing cities, whose output includes locomotives, ships, steel products, and almost every kind of manufactured object. At the same time the City of Penn has not neglected the esthetic side; its public buildings, parks and monuments are in very good taste.

Via the Lincoln Highway. Through twenty miles of lovely suburbs along the "Main Line" of the Pennsylvania R. R.; balance through a farm and dairy country, with a few wild hills west of Coatesville. Road State macadam all the way.

Lancaster, Pa.*

Pop. 58,000. Once the largest inland city of thirteen colonies. At centre of one of richest agricultural counties in United States. Turns out linoleum, cigars, silk, cotton goods, etc. Many famous citizens: Robert Fulton, Benjamin West, etc.

Devon, Pa.

Pop. 364. A branch road here leads (4 miles) to Valley Forge. (See Route 480.)

Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Pop. 3,056. Bryn Mawr College for women here—an aristocratic institution of the highest standing.

Philadelphia, Pa.*

Pop. 1,823,779. The third city of the United States. On Delaware and Schuylkill Rivers, 100 miles from ocean. Great shipyards, locomotive works, iron and steel plants, etc. See Independence Hall, Franklin Institute, U. S. Mint, U. S. Navy Yard, etc.

Via the Lincoln Highway. A very fast trip through gently rolling farm and dairy country, over fine State macadam. The toll bridge over the Susquehanna is more than a mile long.

Gettysburg, Pa.*

Pop. 4,439. Gettysburg has for sixty years been a national shrine, immortalized by the blood and heroism of the 150,000 Americans who here fought for three hot July days to decide whether "Government of the people, by the people, for the people, should not perish from the earth," in the immortal words of Lincoln at the dedication ceremonies of this National Cemetery only four months after the battle. The Battle of Gettysburg was the deciding contest of the Civil War (as later events proved), and denoted the "Highwater mark of the Confederacy." Probably nowhere in the world is a battle-field so well marked, so sown with statuary and monuments; and no American, on his first visit, should fail to devote a few hours to a careful inspection of the battle-field.

York, Pa.*

Pop. 47,512. Originally settled by Germans in 1729, York was for a while the capital of the United States. For nine months, while the British occupied Philadelphia, the Continental Congress sat here.

Lancaster, Pa.*

Pop. 58,000. Important industrial centre of one of the richest agricultural counties in the U. S. A cultural and residence city, with Franklin and Marshall College (1787) at the western end of town.

Over the Lincoln Highway, through the foothills of the Alleghenies. Between Chambersburg and Bedford the road crosses three mountains, but the road-surface is so smooth, the curves so gradual (even over Tuscarora Mt.) and well banked, that the hills present no obstacle at all when dry. When descending during or after rain, shift to second gear, leave clutch in, and use motor as a brake. Thus there is no danger. All State macadam and concrete.

Bedford, Pa.*

Pop. 2,330. Established as Fort Bedford, town is now summer resort on Juniata River in midst of mountain scenery. Surrounding country fertile farm land.

Bedford Springs, Pa.*

Chalybeate springs here were known to the Indians. Now a most attractive resort in a beautiful hilly country.

Chambersburg, Pa.*

Pop. 13,171. Country about is farm land. In city are bottling works, factories and mills. Chambersburg claims the distinction of having been the only northern city to be burned by the Confederates (1864).

Gettysburg, Pa.*

Pop. 4,439. Farming and mining are of small importance in face of Gettysburg's importance as National Cemetery and Battlefield. Dedication—November, 1863—occasion of Lincoln's famous address.

Local guides make a stop here most interesting. Have a hotel or garage recommend one.

Over the Susquehanna Trail. About sixty miles along the River, balance through the hills. A splendid, picturesque drive on concrete opened late in 1923 (with one or two short stretches of macadam). Between Harrisburg and the mouth of the Juniata two ways are shown; the red line shorter, but somewhat less scenic. It is, however, the quicker way.

Williamsport, Pa.*

Pop. 36,198. Founded in 1796. Of late years city has added extensive and diversified manufacturing to its lumber trade. It is a very attractive place, with broad streets and rather more handsome buildings, both public and private, than one usually finds in cities of its population. The surrounding country is exceptionally lovely, the Susquehanna and Lycoming Valleys being most accessible over the finest of concrete State roads.

Harrisburg, Pa.*

Pop. 75,917. Founded by and named for John Harris, who in 1725 established a ferry across the Susquehanna and maintained a trading post for Indians. Since 1810, the State capital. Objective of Confederate Army when defeated at Gettysburg. Longest stone arch bridge in the world crosses the river five miles out. Principal product is steel, but city also turns out pipe, hosiery, building brick, silk, tobacco, etc.

Scranton, Pa.*

Pop. 137,783. The leading city in the anthracite coal fields—annual production of 20,000,000 tons. Other large industries: manufacture of woolen goods, tin-plate, edge tools, railway cars, etc.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.*

Pop. 73,833. Part of Wyoming Valley, settled 1753. Now centre of largest anthracite coal field in world. Large silk, iron and textile production.

Berwick, Pa.

Pop. 14,251. Named for Scotch Berwick - on - the - Tweed. Makes railroad rolling stock.

Sunbury, Pa.

Pop. 15,721. Old Indian settlement. Great fire and massacre in 1749 wiped it out. City Hotel was the first building in the world wired for electricity. Simon Cameron, for one year Lincoln's Secretary of War, was born here.

The population figures given in this book are those of the census of 1920.

Watkins, N. Y.*

Pop. 2,785. At the head of Seneca Lake, famous for its Glen and for the manufacture of salt. The Glen is a State reservation and well worth a visit.

Elmira, N. Y.*

Pop. 45,393. Elmira's industries are many and diverse. The city, first settled in 1788, boasts the first institution in the country to offer higher education to women. Mark Twain's house is of interest. The Elmira Reformatory for boys is the largest in the State. Battle of Newtown (1779) took place some miles east near Lowman.

Corning, N. Y.*

Pop. 15,820. Manufacturing city and railroad junction on the banks of the Chemung.

Trout Run, Pa.

Pop. 300. Headquarters for sportsmen and hunters.

Williamsport, Pa.*

Pop. 36,198. A fast-growing industrial city which has carefully seen to it that the finer things of life keep pace with more material progress. Splendidly situated at the intersection of the Lycoming and Susquehanna valleys.

A short and good connection between the Lincoln Highway and the William Penn (to the west) or the Susquehanna Trail (to the north). Through a steel manufacturing and farming district, slightly hilly. Roads concrete or macadam.

Harrisburg, Pa.*

Pop. 75,917. The Keystone Capital, a handsome city. Enormous steel plants and many intersecting railroads combine with politics to give to Harrisburg an importance far beyond what one might expect of a city of this size. The Capitol, one of the really imposing buildings in the U. S., occupies a commanding position near the centre of town. The broad Susquehanna cuts through the hills on the north, leaving beetling cliffs bordering the State road.

Lancaster, Pa.*

Pop. 58,000. An ancient and attractive city, county seat of Lancaster, one of the richest agricultural counties in the U. S. Tobacco is one of the most important products. Lancaster for one day was the capital of the country, when, in 1777, the Continental Congress sat here on its flight from Philadelphia to York. Franklin and Marshall College is located in the west end of town. The reservoir, just north of East King Street, greatly resembles an old fort.

Reading, Pa.

Pop. 107,784. The fourth city of the Keystone State, of great industrial importance, located as it is in a territory where coal and limestone are abundant. The Philadelphia & Reading Railroad shops are here. The residence part of town is most attractive, and the whole city presents a pleasing front to the tourist.

Wernersville, Pa.*

A small town, splendidly situated among the hills. It is highly popular as a resort and boasts several most attractive hostelries. Wernersville lies at an altitude of 1,000 feet.

Harrisburg, Pa.*

Pop. 75,917. The Keystone Capital, a handsome city. Enormous steel plants and many intersecting railroads combine with politics to give to Harrisburg an importance far beyond what one might expect of a city of this size. The Capitol, one of the really imposing buildings in the U. S., occupies a commanding position near the centre of town. The broad Susquehanna cuts through the hills on the north, leaving beetling cliffs bordering the State road.

Via the Lincoln Highway. A beautiful drive through the mountains over winding roads. There are several long grades, but so smooth is the road and well graded that no difficulty will be met by a skilled driver. Some of the views are extremely fine. From Laughlintown east, one ascends Laurel Ridge, a four-mile climb.

Pittsburgh, Pa.*

Pop. 588,193. Ninth largest city of nation, and one of wealthiest. Famous for coal and iron. Site visited by Washington, 1753. City named (1758) in honor of William Pitt, friend of American colonies. Among the sights of the city may be listed the Allegheny County Court House, the Old Block House near the Point Bridge —all that is left of historic Fort Pitt — the Carnegie Library and the University (1787).

Greensburg, Pa.

Pop. 15,033. A manufacturing and coal-mining city, an important route centre.

Juniata River

Beautiful stream which cuts its tortuous way through the Alleghenies.

Bedford, Pa.*

Pop. 2,330. Established as Fort Bedford, town is now summer resort on Juniata River in midst of mountain scenery. Surrounding country fertile farm land.

Bedford Springs, Pa.

Popular resort among the hills of Bedford County. Chalybeate healing springs attract many.

A convenient cross-route between the Lincoln and William Penn Highways. The route here shown traverses hilly country all the way, and is very picturesque (especially so in the narrow winding valley south of Johnstown). No bad grades and excellent State roads all the way.

Altoona, Pa.

Pop. 60,331. A great industrial city, with car-shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Their great freight-sorting yard is here also—the largest in the world.

Hollidaysburg, Pa.*

Pop. 4,071. Founded by Adam Holliday in 1768, and today a sightly town, Blair County seat, connected by boulevard with Altoona.

Loretto, Pa.

Pop. 422. Founded by Prince Demetrius Gallitzin early in the nineteenth century. Loretto is more widely known as the country home of Mr. Charles M. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. The State road goes through Loretto, and the scenery justifies the extra mileage.

Johnstown, Pa.

Pop. 67,327. This great steel town is flourishing despite the tragedy of 1889 when the great Conemaugh Dam broke and the raging waters took a toll of upward of two thousand lives. Cambria and Midvale Steel Companies have large plants here. The southern suburbs are very attractive.

Jennerstown, Pa.

Pop. 172. Scarcely more than a 4-corners on the Lincoln Highway, it has some importance as locating the cross-road between Ebensburg and Somerset.

A part of the Horseshoe Trail. A splendid fast highway through farm lands. The Water Street connection enables the reader to use this in conjunction with the William Penn Highway without entering Tyrone.

Williamsport, Pa.*

Pop. 36,198. Founded in 1796. Of late years city has added extensive and diversified manufacturing to its lumber trade.

Lock Haven, Pa.

Pop. 8,557. Prosperous city on the Susquehanna, producing paper, machinery and leather goods.

State College, Pa.

Pop. 2,405. Here, among the rolling hills, the Nittany Lion has his lair. "Penn State," co-educational, was founded in 1855, and now numbers 3,500 students.

Tyrone, Pa.

Pop. 9,084. Mining of zinc, lead and iron, and manufacture of steel and paper make Tyrone an important industrial city.

Altoona, Pa.

Pop. 60,331. An important city of the State coal region. Large railroad shops, as well as diversified manufactures. A few miles west is the nationally known Horseshoe Curve of the P. R. R. main line. At Altoona is the Pennsylvania's great freight-sorting yard—the largest in the world.

Erie, Pa.

Pop. 93,375. Important manufacturing city and lake port. Principal products: paper, machinery, locomotives, iron goods. It was at Erie that Oliver Hazard Perry fitted out his fleet of home-built vessels with which in 1813 he destroyed or captured the British Fleet on Lake Erie, reporting to Washington after the battle: "We have met the enemy and they are ours." His flagship, Niagara, has been raised and may be seen at Erie.

The southern half of the most used highway between Pittsburgh and Cleveland. Two ways are shown, Pittsburgh-Rochester, the red line being about 6½ miles longer; but by using it one saves about 15 miles of brick city pavements through the steel towns which line the right bank of the Ohio. The trip is over rolling country all the way, and—except for city pavements—all State macadam and concrete. The alternate route along the right bank is part of the Lincoln Highway.

Youngstown, Ohio

Pop. 132,358. Founded in 1797, its phenomenal growth in the past twenty years has landed Youngstown in the forefront among America's steel cities.

Pittsburgh, Pa.*

Pop. 588,343. The world's greatest steel centre is no longer the smoky city of Mary's Little Lamb fame. Smoke-consumers on chimneys, substitution of coke for coal where possible, and the increasing use of electric power have combined to lift the pall which used to cover the city to the exclusion of the sun. It is a great tribute to man's enterprise that one may motor all through (or rather, over) Pittsburgh without encountering a grade requiring a shift of gear. The eastern end of the city is hundreds of feet higher than the business section, yet the great, new, wide boulevards and flying viaducts invite motor traffic with their smooth pavements.

A link in the direct Pittsburgh - Cleveland highway. Through three busy manufacturing cities, balance over farm lands on a direct but rolling road. No heavy grades. All macadam, brick and concrete.

Cleveland, Ohio*

Pop. 796,841. One of the greatest cities of the country, not only commercially, but in a cultural way as well. Cleveland builds ships and all sorts of steel products and is second only to New York in output of ready-to-wear clothing; Cleveland also has the great Western Reserve University (1826) with 2,400 students, and the Case School of Applied Science (1881) with 650. The park system is recognized as one of the best, and the new civic centre at Superior and Ontario will be highly imposing when completed.

Warren, Ohio

Pop. 27,050. A prettily located industrial city on the Mahoning River with a public square and court house to please the eye of the visitor.

Niles, Ohio

Pop. 13,080. Steel works and other factories, but especially a classic Greek memorial to the late President McKinley, which should be inspected by the visitor.

Girard, Ohio

Pop. 6,556. Another steel-manufacturing community, birthplace of William McKinley.

Erie, Pa.

Pop. 93,372. Important manufacturing city and lake port. Principal products: paper, machinery, locomotives, iron goods.

Cambridge Springs, Pa.

Pop. 1,663. A summering place in a farming country.

Meadville, Pa.

Pop. 14,568. Chief products are iron, lumber, natural gas. In country about, cattle graze, and much farm truck is raised.

Conneaut Lake, Pa.

Pop. 347. A resort among the Crawford County Hills, on the shores of Pennsylvania's largest body of water. Muskallonge and black-bass tempt the angler in summer and ducks and geese invite the huntsman during the season.

New Castle, Pa.

Pop. 44,938. Progressive industrial city with farming in contiguous country. Foundries and furnaces, mills and factories turn out iron goods, nails, glass, cement, tires, etc.

Warren, Ohio

Pop. 27,050. City important for agriculture, mining and manufacturing. Produces maple sugar and syrup, coal and iron ore, boilers, automatic sprinklers, and stoves. The general aspect of the city is pleasing to the eye—especially the centre of town with its extensive green and imposing Courthouse. And, out East Market Street, the Country Club with its Golf Links gives the impression of good-fellowship and true Buckeye hospitality.

Youngstown, Ohio

Pop. 132,358. (Route 549.)

Sharon, Pa.

Pop. 21,747. Like neighboring cities, Sharon deals largely in steel.

Mercer, Pa.

Pop. 1,932. Mercer raises stock and farm produce, and carries on some manufacturing. The County seat.

New Castle, Pa.

Pop. 44,938. See opposite.

Butler, Pa.*

Pop. 23,778. A manufacturing city of importance. Puts out woolen goods, lead, silk goods, shirts, freight cars, etc., and has, in addition, coal mines, oil wells and large limestone quarries.

At Sharon, one bound for Pittsburgh may proceed either via New Castle or by way of Mercer and Butler. Another way is via Warren, Youngstown and New Castle—shorter, but more congested. This Akron-Sharon route is all brick, macadam and concrete.

Sharon, Pa.

Pop. 21,747. Like neighboring cities, Sharon deals largely in steel.

Warren, Ohio

Pop. 27,050. City important for agriculture, mining and manufacturing. Produces maple-sugar and syrup, coal and iron ore, boilers, automatic sprinklers, and stoves.

Akron, Ohio*

Pop. 208,435. About 45 per cent of world's rubber production consumed here in manufacture of all sorts of rubber goods. Two-thirds of rubber tires of United States made here—100,000 daily. Other products: clay, matches, cereal foods. City growing at enormous rate. Akron is the County-seat of Summit County, 1,200 feet above sea-level, and one of the healthiest cities in the country, boasting a death-rate of only 8.16 per thousand. Five railroads minister to Akron's needs, which mounted to five millions of tons in 1922.

City pavements, brick and concrete. Roads very straight and direct, but the brick is narrow, with soft shoulders—wide enough for cars to pass safely at moderate speeds. Strangers are cautioned to beware of the many interurban buses—very wide and heavy, which are driven at top speed and rarely fail to crowd smaller vehicles to the edge of the road.

Cleveland, Ohio*

Pop. 796,836. Handsome city on south shore of Lake Erie. Every sort of industry, extensive commerce in coal, lumber and iron ore. Fine public buildings, residences, well-kept parks.

Cuyahoga River

A stream which in 1795 was established as the Indian Boundary Line, west of which white men had no right to go. This was not changed until after 1815. River Valley very lovely in places. Just before entering Akron from the north the road crosses the gorge of the river on a splendid high viaduct.

Akron, Ohio*

Pop. 208,435. About 45 per cent of world's rubber production consumed here in manufacture of all sorts of rubber goods. Two-thirds of rubber tires of United States made here—100,000 daily. Other products: clay, matches, cereal foods. City growing at enormous rate. South of the city lie the Portage Lakes, whence the Tuscarawas River flows south to the Ohio. Akron stands on the height of land separating the watersheds; the Cuyahoga drains into Lake Erie, the Tuscarawas into the Gulf of Mexico.

Via the Old National Road. Eastern half winding and hilly, with many fine views, balance rather hilly in Pennsylvania and winding but level in a narrow valley in West Virginia. This is a very scenic trip over macadam and concrete roads.

Wheeling, W. Va.*

Pop. 56,208. The metropolis of the State, and growing rapidly. Its many and varied industries and its commanding position as a railroad centre, combined, have brought to Wheeling a prosperity best reflected, to the motorist's eye, in the extent and beauty of its suburbs.

Washington, Pa.

Pop. 21,480. An attractive city with exceptional tourist accommodations. In a hilly terrain, underlaid with coal, natural gas and oil. To offset the industrial side, Washington boasts an ancient University (Washington and Jefferson, 1802) from whose 450-odd undergraduates have come football teams which have played havoc with all opponents, even to some of the largest colleges in the country.

Uniontown, Pa.

Pop. 15,692. Fayette County-seat; a touring-centre among the hills. Summit Mountain, five miles east, commands a truly remarkable view from its summit. Uniontown was on the line of retreat of Gen. Braddock's defeated forces after the vain attempt to capture Fort Duquesne (Pittsburgh) from the French (1754).

The wildest and most scenic section of the Old National Road. The highway crosses the "summits," so-called, of six mountains, but the grades are so easy and the road-surface so smooth that no modern car should find them difficult. In descending, leave gears in mesh, using the engine as a brake. In wet weather obey the State warning signs and go down "in second." All excellent State macadam (some concrete).

Uniontown, Pa.

Pop. 15,692. Busy city in iron and coal region. Turns out glass, flour, radiators, etc. Highway passes grave of General Braddock and the ruins of old Fort Necessity. At the latter point Colonel George Washington, of the Virginia militia, defended himself and the force under his command from an attack by French and Indians July 4th, 1754.

Keysers Ridge, Md.

The highest point on the Old National Road between Baltimore and St. Louis. Here one may turn south across the hills on State macadam to Oakland, Md. (27 miles), a popular and beautiful mountain resort.

Frostburg, Md.

Pop. 6,017. A mining town, popular with tourists on account of its altitude (2,200 ft.).

Cumberland, Md.*

Pop. 29,837. Established as a defense against French and Indians, city now an industrial centre.

Via the old National Road. The broad highway, to a great extent surveyed by Col. George Washington of the Virginia Militia, here winds its way between really sizable mountains. The views are extremely frequent and equally beautiful. For some nine miles we follow the Potomac Valley. No formidable grades going up hill, but all descents should be negotiated with gears in mesh—second speed when roads are wet.

Cumberland, Md.*

Pop. 29,837. Established as a defense against French and Indians, city now an industrial centre. Beginning of Braddock Road, laid out by General with assistance of young surveyor, Colonel Washington.

Hancock, Md.

Pop. 972. In the hilly country, Hancock raises fruit, and trades in lumber, and is a popular summer resort. It is beautifully situated among the hills along the Potomac.

Hagerstown, Md.*

Pop. 28,069. Settled 1761. Valley was scene of General Braddock's march. Several Civil War battles fought close by. Many fine homes. Leading industries: manufacture of automobiles, silks, knitted goods, etc. Hagerstown was where General Robert E. Lee assembled the army which he led into Pennsylvania in June 1863 in his matured plan to capture Harrisburg. While this was going on, the energetic Meade by his strategy forced Lee to try conclusions at Gettysburg, and there successfully ended all Confederate attempts at invasion.

A quick and pretty trip through no towns of any great size except York. Thence one may continue on to Harrisburg over fine new concrete all the way. South of York is State macadam and concrete.

Harrisburg, Pa.*

Pop. 75,917. Founded by and named for John Harris, who in 1725 established a ferry across the Susquehanna and maintained a trading post for Indians. Since 1810, the State capital. Objective of Confederate Army, later defeated at Gettysburg. Longest stone arch bridge in the world crosses the river five miles out.

York, Pa.*

Pop. 47,512. Settled by small group of Germans, 1729. From September, 1777 to June, 1778 the Colonial capital. Important industrial city with diversified products. York claims the distinction of being a truly American city, and in fact there is a fairly negligible foreign element.

An excellent connection to and from points south, avoiding, as it does, the crowded road between Wilmington and Philadelphia. This highway is some twenty-two miles of broad smooth gravel; balance concrete and macadam. Very direct, across level farm lands. The Pennsgrove Ferry runs frequently during the season—about every two hours in winter.

Wilmington, Del.*

Pop. 110,168. First settled by Swedes along the historic Brandywine. Now a great industrial city. Home of the du Ponts. Many places of Revolutionary interest. The Old Swedes Church was built in 1698 by emigrants from Sweden who first settled in this part of America. There is a bronze statue of Thomas F. Bayard, first U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain. The group of public buildings near 10th and Market is very imposing.

Pleasantville, N. J.*

Pop. 5,887. Many truck farms on the flat fields about this thriving town.

Atlantic City, N. J.*

Pop. 50,682. The greatest all-year-round resort of the Atlantic Coast because of equable climate due to Gulf Stream. Eight miles of Board Walk over a wide and usually crowded beach, enormous hotels, and an infinite variety of amusement places. 1,200 hotels and boarding houses are taxed to their capacity at the height of the season.

This is in no sense an option to the direct highway between Washington and Baltimore; it gives, however, the best way at present linking the three cities. Fine roads all the way—macadam or concrete.

Baltimore, Md.*

Pop. 733,826. Principal city of State. Important port, though two hundred miles from sea. Large export and import trade as well as manufacturing. Disastrous fire in 1904. Grave of Edgar Allan Poe. Johns Hopkins Hospital and University. Late Cardinal Gibbons' residence.

Annapolis, Md.

Pop. 11,214. Quaint old city, famous for charming brick houses and United States Naval Academy. Annapolis, affectionately dubbed "Crabtown" by some of its residents, connotes to most Americans simply the National Naval Academy. This institution, with its 2,100-odd midshipmen, is beautifully located on an arm of the River Severn. The Chapel, with pleasing cupola, dominates the group of buildings. In the crypt lie the remains of Paul Jones, acknowledged founder of the U. S. Navy.

Annapolis is the oldest chartered city in the U. S.—Queen Anne gave it its charter in 1708. The fine old State House and St. John's College (1784) are worth visiting.

Washington, D. C.*

Pop. 437,571. The United States capital, and in many ways the most interesting, handsomest city in the country.

A link in the Capital Highway between the National Capital and Florida. Through an historic country replete with points of interest. The roads are good all the way—macadam, concrete and State gravel.

Washington, D. C.*

Pop. 437,571. The National Capital, one of the most beautiful cities in the world, and replete with interest for the sight-seer. He should visit the Capitol, Congressional Library, White House, Treasury Building, State, Army and Navy Building, Patent Office, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Smithsonian Institution, etc.

Arlington, Va.

Pop. 1,863. The great national cemetery where many famous soldiers and sailors lie buried.

Fort Myer, Va.

The only army post near the seat of Government. A squadron of cavalry and a batallion of artillery stationed here. Guard mounting and evening parade repay an afternoon visit.

Alexandria, Va.

Pop. 18,060. Old-fashioned typical Southern city. Here George Washington and Mrs. Washington worshipped in old Christ Church, and here fell Col. E. E. Ellsworth, first U. S. officer to die in the Civil War.

Mount Vernon

Home and final resting-place of the Father of his Country restored to the condition in which it was when he died in 1799. A national shrine.

Showing the newly-located State Highway No. 31—to be opened complete late in 1926. The two options: No. 311 and No. 312 are both good sand-clay, and about equally desirable. There are narrow bridges and sharp turns on both. 32 miles of the 71.6 via Spotsylvania are concrete.

Fredericksburg, Va.

Pop. 5,882. The boyhood home of George Washington, whose mother is buried here. A centre of much bloody fighting during the War of the Rebellion; here Lee beat back Burnside; and nearby Stonewall Jackson paid with his life for the costly victory over the Union forces at Chancellorsville.

Spotsylvania, Pa.

Spotsylvania Court House was the H. Q. of Gen. Robert E. Lee, and many bloody battles were fought nearby.

Solomon's Store

Just north of here Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, C. S. A., was killed.

Richmond, Va.

Pop. 171,667. The capital and largest city of the Old Dominion, and in many respects the most interesting town in the South. Founded in 1737, its growth was slow in colonial days until in 1779 it was made seat of the State government. Its chief importance lies in its having been the capital of the Confederacy during the four years of the existence of that political entity. As such it was the ultimate goal of the various Union commanders until, only one week before his surrender at Appomattox, General Robert E. Lee was compelled to evacuate Richmond by the pressure and attacks of Grant's investing armies.

Washington, D. C.*

Pop. 437,751. See Route 601.

Georgetown, D. C.

Seat of Georgetown University (1789) with 2,500 students.

Fairfax Court House, Va.

Pop. 516. Washington's will can be seen.

Bull Run

The first battle was fought to the north of the road, the second to the south.

Warrenton, Va.

Pop. 1,545. Pretty town, Fauquier County seat. F. F. V.'s resident hereabouts still use the horse for transportation and hunting.

Luray, Va.

Pop. 1,381. A mile or so from the town are the Caverns of Luray, among the finest in the world.

New Market, Va.

Pop. 577. At the battle fought here during the Civil War, the Cadets from V. M. I. (see under Lexington, Route 633) played a conspicuous part. Two miles south we may visit the Endless Caverns—a series of grottoes of surpassing beauty. They present a variety of natural phenomena unequalled in the U. S.

A division of Braddock's army passed over a portion of this route on its way to Fort Defiance. All State road (may be some construction west of Middleburg).

The longer option via Frederick is given as it leads through a territory hallowed by the blood of thousands during the War of the Rebellion. It is all hard surface.

Winchester, Va.

Pop. 6,883. Indelibly linked with name and fame of Sheridan; bloody battleground '61-'65; city changed hands a score or more of times.

Harper's Ferry, W. Va.

Pop. 713. Here, where the Shenandoah empties into the Potomac, John Brown led his negro followers on their vain attack against the U. S. Arsenal.

Of the two routes here given there is little choice if bound for points south on the Capital Highway, except between South Hill and the North Carolina border near Wise. These 15 miles are very muddy and rutty when wet; and after rain all bound to Raleigh should go via Clarksville, Oxford and Henderson. Except for these 15 miles all roads shown are hard-surface or fine sand-clay.

Henderson, N. C.

Pop. 5,222. Prominent tobacco and cotton centre and railroad junction.

Oxford, N. C.

Pop. 3,606. A manufacturing city, with tobacco the chief industry. Oxford College here.

Wake Forest, N. C.

Pop. 1,425. Wake Forest College (Baptist) (1835), 550 students. Lovely campus with 150 magnolia trees.

Durham, N. C.

Pop. 21,719. This handsome, progressive city is nationally known for its tobacco. Besides the "makin's," Chesterfields, Piedmonts and Fatimas come from here. Duke University is here.

Raleigh, N. C.

Pop. 24,418. See next page.

Durham, N. C.

Pop. 21,719. See Route 606.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

Pop. 1,483. The seat of the University of North Carolina, with 2,500 students, founded in 1793.

Raleigh, N. C.*

Pop. 24,418. The capital of the Tar Heel State, and a great educational centre. The handsome State House stands in a small park in the very centre of the city.

Sanford, N. C.

Pop. 2,977. A prosperous growing city with considerable manufacturing interests and a very live population.

Southern Pines, N. C.*

Pop. 743. A much-visited resort in the long-leaf yellow-pine belt of the State, with excellent hotels catering to the hosts of Northerners who annually make pilgrimage to revel in the healthful air of the pines and enjoy the mild yet invigorating climate (average temperature in winter, 44 degrees).

Pinehurst, N. C.

Pop. 55. The late Mr. James W. Tufts of Boston discovered Pinehurst, the site, and proceeded (in 1895) to develop Pinehurst, the resort.

Southern Pines, N. C.*

Pop. 743 (winter 5,000). A much-visited resort in the long-leaf yellow-pine belt of the State, with excellent hotels catering to the hosts of Northerners who annually make pilgrimage to revel in the healthful air of the pines and enjoy the mild yet invigorating climate (average temperature in winter, 44 degrees).

Pinehurst, N. C.*

Pop. 55. Founded 1895 by Mr. James W. Tufts of Boston, Pinehurst now has many large hotels, three 18-hole golf links and a polo field.

Rockingham, N. C.*

Pop. 2,509. A live and thriving little city, of considerable importance as a railroad junction-point.

Camden, S. C.

Pop. 3,930. Settled by Irish Quakers in the middle of the eighteenth century, Camden is near the centre of the cotton and rice districts of the Palmetto State. It is an exceedingly sightly little city with tree-lined streets and many old houses in lovely gardens.

A link in the Capital Highway, through the capital of the Palmetto State and over a sparsely settled territory a goodly part of the way. The roads are fine sand-clay, maintained by the State.

Camden, S. C.

Pop. 3,930. Settled by Irish Quakers in the middle of the eighteenth century, Camden is near the centre of the cotton and rice districts of the Palmetto State. It is an exceedingly sightly little city with tree-lined streets and many old houses in lovely gardens.

Columbia, S. C.

Pop. 37,524. The South Carolina Capital is a beautiful small city with wide, tree-fringed streets and attractive squares and parks. The State House is especially imposing. There is a monument near it commemorating the heroic part taken by the Palmetto Regiment in the Mexican War. In December, 1860, the State Legislature here passed the Secession Ordinance by virtue of which South Carolina withdrew from the Union.

Aiken, S. C.

Pop. 4,103. Aiken, among the "pine barrens," has long been a favorite winter resort with the first families from all over.

Augusta, Ga.

Pop. 52,548. Georgia's fourth city is pleasantly situated at the head of navigation of the Savannah River. Blessed with a remarkable climate, it is a winter resort of prominence. Augusta is a handsome city with splendid buildings and monuments.

The Ridge Route of the Cotton Belt Highway. A very fair connection when dry, and by some preferred to the Woodpecker Route, which parallels it on the east. There is much construction work in progress, but traffic is not impeded. This is more than forty miles shorter between Jacksonville and Augusta than via Savannah. It is thirteen miles shorter than the Woodpecker Route.

Augusta, Ga.

Pop. 52,548. Georgia's fourth city is pleasantly situated at the head of navigation on the Savannah River. Blessed with a remarkably equable climate, it is a winter resort of prominence. Augusta is a handsome city, with splendid buildings and monuments—Broad Street is 120 feet wide. Commercially, cotton is king in Augusta.

One of her famous sons was Major "Archie" Butt, once Aide to Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, who went down with the Titanic in April, 1912. A handsome memorial bridge is named in his honor.

Louisville, Ga.

Pop. 1,040. An attractive and growing little city.

Waycross, Ga.

Pop. 18,068. A very prosperous city and notable railroad junction. The Ware County Court House is a handsome building.

Over a fertile farming country, through few towns, and following State Highway No. 21 all the way. The best of several options. All but ten miles good sand-clay Augusta-Sylvania; balance dirt and sand-clay (some of it rough) to within fourteen miles of Savannah, whence it is concrete into that city. Most of the dirt is somewhat slippery when wet.

Augusta, Ga.

Pop. 52,548. Georgia's fourth city is pleasantly situated at the head of navigation of the Savannah River. Blessed with a remarkably equable climate, it is a winter resort of prominence.

Waynesboro, Ga.

Pop. 3,311. An important town, named in honor of that pugnacious Pennsylvania patriot, "Mad Anthony" Wayne. A bloody battle took place here in 1779.

Sylvania, Ga.

Pop. 1,413. The County seat of Screven County.

Savannah, Ga.

Pop. 83,252. Georgia's second city and greatest port. Its prosperity is due to its huge export trade in cotton, lumber and naval stores. On the esthetic side, it is a bower of flowers which blossom all the year in its many parks, which are further embellished by numerous monuments of rather better than average merit erected to fallen heroes of Georgia's warlike history. A not uninteresting trip through bottoms and swamps, past groves of cypress, oak and pine. The road is good dirt (when dry) from a point eighteen miles south of Savannah to Darien; balance gravel, shell and concrete. The Altamaha River crossing is three miles long, including the fills between bridges.

Savannah, Ga.

Pop. 83,252. Bull Street is the most interesting thoroughfare in town, its course being interrupted by several pretty little parks, each with its monument or statue. Forsyth Park, Bull and Gaston Streets, is especially gay with flowers; adjoining it, in the Parade Ground, is the imposing Confederate Monument.

About nineteen miles away, at the mouth of the Savannah River, is Tybee Beach, a splendid stretch of sand, whither all Savannah goes to enjoy the refreshing surf-bathing. Another excursion, in another direction, is to the Hermitage, an interesting old Colonial estate with roomy mansion, slave quarters, etc. Five miles from town is Thunderbolt, popular resort and headquarters of the Savannah Yacht Club. (See bottom of previous page.)

Brunswick, Ga.

Pop. 14,413. Lumber, "turps" and resin form the bulk of Brunswick's exports; the tonnage is astounding for a city its size. In addition, of late years, Brunswick has developed greatly as a winter resort; it had long been known to Northerners through the élite fishing and shooting club on Jekyll Island, in the outer harbor.

The approved way, over bottoms and swamp-lands, and through vast tracts of yellow pine. Forty miles of good gravel, concrete and shell; balance loose, sandy dirt, good after dragging, but rough otherwise when dry, and heavy when wet.

Brunswick, Ga.

Pop. 14,413. Lumber, "turps" and resin form the bulk of Brunswick's exports; for a city its size the tonnage is astounding. In addition, of late years, Brunswick has developed greatly as a winter resort. It has long been known to Northerners through the élite fishing and shooting club on Jekyll Island, in the outer harbor. Near Brunswick is St. Simon's Island, on which stand the ruins of old Frederica, founded by Oglethorpe in 1739. Here, in 1742, three thousand attacking Spaniards were defeated in battle by Oglethorpe's little band, though the latter were outnumbered four to one.

Fernandina, Fla.

Pop. 5,457. At the mouth of the St. Mary's River, Fernandina is a shipping port of great importance. It exports vast amounts of naval stores, of phosphate rock and lumber to all parts of the world, being blessed with a very deep harbor.

Jacksonville, Fla.*

Pop. 91,558. The Florida metropolis is located on the north bank of the St. Johns River about twenty-five miles from the sea, and is a deep-water port of prominence. Jacksonville vies with Savannah as the naval stores centre of the country, and therefore of the world. In addition she ships tremendous quantities of oranges, vegetables and lumber; and most of Florida's cotton crop passes through here.

An excellent connection between important Virginia cities. Almost all hard-surfaced road, with some gravel stretches (south of Lynchburg). The Afton-Staunton stretch, through Rockfish Gap, is very scenic —only exceeded in grandeur by the winding trip up the Valley of the James between Lynchburg and Natural Bridge.

Staunton, Va.*

Pop. 10,623. See opposite.

Natural Bridge, Va.

See next page.

Lynchburg, Va.

Pop. 30,070. Lynchburg is an important tobacco and shoe centre. It was named after a man named Lynch who operated a ferry across the James. Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg College for Boys, and other leading institutions of learning, are here.

Danville, Va.*

Pop. 21,539. This very up-to-date city is the greatest tobacco market in the world. We recommend a visit to Memorial Mansion, the last capitol of the Southern Confederacy.

Southerly adjunct of the Shenandoah Valley Pike. Fairly level road through broad valley between mountains. Country devoted to agriculture and cattle raising. Very prosperous. Road all State macadam. Section of the Lee Highway.

Staunton, Va.*

Pop. 10,623. A great route centre. The road to Charlottesville is all good (Univ. of Virginia and Jefferson's home—Monticello—now open to public).

Lexington, Va.

Pop. 2,870. Educational centre. Virginia Military Institute, founded 1839, Alma Mater of a host of Confederate generals. Thos. J. (Stonewall) Jackson a professor in '61; he is buried here. The Corps of Cadets won undying fame by their heroic charge at the Battle of New Market. V. M. I. now has 625 students. Washington & Lee University adjoins V. M. I. General Robt. E. Lee's grave on campus.

Natural Bridge, Va.

Pop. 102. One of the great natural wonders, 215 ft. high, 100 ft. broad and 90-ft. span over Cedar Creek. The environs are now a park. Be sure to pay a visit to this grand freak of Nature.

Roanoke, Va.

Pop. 50,842. Virginia's third largest city is hardly more than 45 years old; before that it was called Old Lick—a mere station on the old stage route. Now it is a prosperous, fast-growing hive of industry, with delightful residence streets and fine public buildings.

An excellent, newly-completed connection between the Valley Pike and the eastern slope of the Blue Ridge in the Old North State. Winding and hilly along the eastern edge of the mountains, but no steep grades. About twenty miles of concrete, balance good sand-clay and gravel.

Roanoke, Va.*

Pop. 50,842. Virginia's third largest city is hardly more than 45 years old; before that it was called Old Lick—a mere station on the old stage route. Now it is a prosperous, fast-growing hive of industry, with delightful residence streets and fine public buildings.

Martinsville, Va.*

Pop. 4,075. The county seat of Henry County, and an attractive thriving town. Named for Gen. Joseph Martin. Somewhat of a tobacco market, and also manufactures furniture. Patrick Henry's old home is on Highway No. 12, east of here. Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, C. S. A., lived in Martinsville.

Winston-Salem, N. C. *

Pop. 48,395. World's greatest tobacco manufacturing centre. "Camel" cigarettes made here. Home Moravian Church built (1800) by hands of brethren; Washington slept in Washington Tavern.

Salem was settled by Moravians in 1766; Winston incorporated in 1859; the two consolidated in 1913. Now Winston-Salem is the largest city in North Carolina.

A link in the Lee Highway from Washington to Bristol, Knoxville, Chattanooga and beyond. A picturesque drive through a broad valley along the Blue Ridge. All macadam except between Elliston and Christiansburg (though this should be finished early in 1926). No stiff grades.

Roanoke, Va.

Pop. 50,842. Virginia's third largest city, throbbing with industry, yet very attractive. It is expected that late in 1925 the road to Rocky Mount will have been finished, which will open a way to Lexington, N. C., and thus provide a shorter trunk line between Florida and Hagerstown than that shown here, over fine roads all the way.

N. B.—This road has been opened, and is here shown as Route No. 634 to Winston-Salem.

Salem, Va.

Pop. 4,159. Seat of Roanoke College, 1853.

Christiansburg, Va.

Pop. 1,641. Attractive little city, Montgomery County seat, popular in summer on account of its altitude (2,250 ft.). A macadam road runs to Yellow Sulphur Springs and to Blacksburg, site of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Radford, Va.

Pop. 4,627. Prosperous town finely located on high bank above the New River.

Pulaski, Va.

Pop. 5,282. Pulaski County seat, on Peak Creek, with several manufacturing plants. Also market town for a rich agricultural and stock-raising territory. Mountains all around.

Charlotte, N. C.*

Pop. 46,338. Vies with Winston-Salem as the largest city in the State. A fine, up-to-date city, yet of historical interest. In front of the Court House stands a monument commemorating the signing of the Mecklenburg Declaration (of Independence) on May 21, 1775. Charlotte was the headquarters of Lord Cornwallis at times during the Revolution.

Chester, S. C.

Pop. 5,557. The County seat of Chester County, and an important railroad junction.

Columbia, S. C.

Pop. 37,524. The Capital of the Palmetto State stands on a bluff above the Congaree River. Its wide streets and fine trees lend it a charm all its own. In the very centre of the city is the handsome Capitol in the middle of a park. Founded in 1786, it has been capital since 1790. A disastrous fire, immediately succeeding Columbia's occupation by Sherman's army, is erroneously attributed to him.

Asheville, N. C.*

Pop. 28,504. Handsome city with superb surroundings, situated in a high valley (2,250 ft.) near the confluence of the Swannanoa and the French Broad. Aside from the attractions of the city itself, excursions can be made to scores of lovely points, mostly accessible by motor. Among these we might mention Black Mountain, Mt. Mitchell, Pisgah National Forest, Lake Toxaway, Bat Cave, Chimney Rock—but there are a score of others to pick from.

Greenville, S. C.

Pop. 23,127. A fast-growing city whose chief industry is cotton spinning. Greenville County gave 2,000 soldiers to the Confederate Army.

Ware Shoals, S. C.

Pop. 3,020. A sightly little town at some rapids in the Saluda River.

Greenwood, S. C.*

Pop. 8,703. The Greenwood County seat is a live and growing city at the junction point of three railroads. The well-known Black Bear Trail intersects our route here. Lander College and the Bailey Military Institute are here; also numerous cotton mills.

Greenville, S. C.

Pop. 23,127. A fast-growing city whose chief industry is cotton spinning. Greenville County gave 2,000 soldiers to the Confederate Army.

Anderson, S. C.

Pop. 10,570. Another prosperous city owing its growth to the cotton industry. A female seminary and a military school are drawing cards.

Hartwell, Ga.

Pop. 2,323. An attractive town with handsome courthouse.

Athens, Ga.

Pop. 16,748. County seat of Clarke County, about 800 feet above sea-level. A great cotton market and residence city. Its chief claim to fame, though, is the University of Georgia, dating from 1785, whose students, male and female, number about 1,750. State Agricultural College, Lumpkin Law School and Lucy Cobb Institute make Athens their home.

The highway leads over undulating farm country, with cotton and peaches predominating, and some pecan orchards. Some 45 miles of concrete—balance sand-clay.

Atlanta, Ga.

Pop. 200,616. The visitor to this city may be sure of entertainment. Besides the public buildings, residential streets and parks, there are Stone Mountain, a vast lump of solid granite, the home of Uncle Remus (Joel Chandler Harris), the U. S. Penitentiary, the amusement park and ostrich farm at Lakewood, the Georgia Institute of Technology, Oglethorpe University, Agnes Scott College for Women, as well as the stock yards and Fort McPherson.

Griffin, Ga.

Pop. 8,240. The Spaulding County seat, and a great cotton-spinning centre.

Macon, Ga.*

Pop. 52,995. In the very centre of the State, Macon is the third city of Georgia in respect to population, and the first in the export of peaches, which are the chief crop of the surrounding territory. Macon prides itself on its culture, being the seat of several institutions of higher learning. The poet, Sidney Lanier, made his home here.

Tifton, Ga.

Pop. 3,005. The Tift County seat owes its prosperity to the fertility of the surrounding terrtory, which is rich in peanuts, rice and cotton. Cattle raised in the fields near here carry away many prize ribbons from the county fairs throughout the State. A State Agricultural School is located just outside of town.

Valdosta, Ga.

Pop. 10,783. Of great importance as a route centre, the county seat of Lowndes County is the market town for the surrounding country, which is rich in varied agricultural products. A State Normal College is here.

Lake City, Fla.

Pop. 3,341. A hundred-year-old town, formerly called "Alligator," located in a lake-dotted district. The capital of Columbia County. Some tobacco grows in the fields round about, but the chief crops are fruit of several kinds, and the pine forests yield lumber and turpentine. The nearby lakes are much patronized by fishermen.

Gainesville, Fla.

Pop. 8,469. A large, handsome city, Alachua County seat, situated in a lake-dotted region, Gainesville is the seat of the University of Florida. The beautiful grounds and tasteful landscaping contain modern and impressive buildings to house this sizable institution, which was founded no longer ago than the year 1905. The attendance at the University numbers unwards of thirteen hundred students. The fishing in the many convenient lakes is excellent, and there is good hunting in season.

A section of the Dixie Highway to and from Jacksonville and the Florida East Coast. All sand-clay roads except for a total of about twenty miles macadam. Over slightly rolling country through peach orchards and (near the southern end) large tracts of long-leaf yellow pine.

Macon, Ga.

Pop. 52,995. In the very centre of the State, Macon is the third city of Georgia in respect to population, and the first in the export of peaches, which are the chief crop of the surrounding territory. Macon prides itself on its culture, being the seat of several institutions of higher learning. The poet, Sidney Lanier, made his home here.

Perry, Ga.

Pop. 678. Houston County seat.

Hawkinsville, Ga.

Pop. 3,070. Pulaski County seat, and an important crossing of the ways.

Abbeville, Ga.

Pop. 1,119. County seat of Wilcox County.

Fitzgerald, Ga.

Pop. 6,870. A cotton baling and shipping point, with some other industries. County seat of Ben Hill County.

Waycross, Ga.

Pop. 18,068. A very prosperous city and notable railroad junction. The Ware County Court House is a handsome building.

A section of the Dixie Highway. Through a sparsely settled district given over to swamps and large tracts of long-leaf yellow pine. Past many turpentine stills. Two-thirds macadam and gravel; balance sand-clay.

Waycross, Ga.

Pop. 18,068. A very prosperous city and notable railroad junction. The Ware County Court House is a handsome building. Roads radiate from Waycross to Savannah, Brunswick, Nashville (Ga.), Macon and Valdosta. The Atlantic Coast Line Railroad maintains extensive building and repair shops here, and a highly efficient hospital for its employees as well. The chief industries are lumber and turpentine and resin.

Jacksonville, Fla.*

Pop. 95,206. The Florida metropolis is located on the north bank of the St. Johns River about twenty-five miles from the sea, and is a deep-water port of prominence. Jacksonville vies with Savannah as the naval stores centre of the country, and therefore of the world. In addition she ships tremendous quantities of oranges, vegetables and lumber, and most of Florida's cotton crop passes through here.

Jacksonville, just over a hundred years old, is in great favor as a winter resort; it is a beautiful city with most attractive suburbs—the latter full of charming homes along the banks of the St. Johns. The Alligator Farm and the Ostrich Farm are quite worth seeing, and excursions may be made to Atlantic Beach and Pablo Beach.

Lake City, Fla.

Pop. 3,341. A hundred-year-old town, formerly called "Alligator," located in a lake-dotted district. The capital of Columbia County. Some tobacco grows in the fields roundabout, but the chief crops are fruits of several kinds, and the pine forests yield lumber and turpentine. The nearby lakes are much patronized by fishermen.

Olustee, Fla.

Pop. 294. A conspicuous monument here marks the spot where the Confederates after a bloody battle drove back the Union forces who were marching west after they had successfully beseiged and taken Jacksonville.

Jacksonville, Fla.*

Pop. 95,206. The Florida metropolis is located on the north bank of the St. Johns River about twenty-five miles from the sea, and is a deep-water port of prominence. A new and increasingly popular link; over territory devoted to tobacco and corn—for the most part level. Roads mostly gravelly dirt, some macadam; undergoing improvement, and altogether recommendable.

Richmond, Va.

Pop. 171,667. The capital and largest city of the Old Dominion is in many respects the most interesting town in the South. Founded in 1737, it was made the seat of State government in 1779. Its chief importance lies in its having been the capital of the Southern Confederacy during most of the four years of the existence of that political entity. It was the ultimate goal of the various Union commanders until, only one week before Appomattox, General Lee was compelled to evacuate Richmond by the pressing attacks of Grant's army.

In the very centre of the city stands the State House, where for four years the Confederate Congress sat. In St. Paul's Church nearby Pres. Jefferson Davis worshipped; the house he lived in is now a museum of Confederate relics. In St. John's Church (1740) Patrick Henry delivered his famous "Give me Liberty or give me Death" speech in 1775.

Danville, Va.

Pop. 21,539. This very up-to-date city is the greatest tobacco market in the world. We recommend a visit to Memorial Mansion, the last capitol of the Southern Confederacy.

Danville, Va.

Pop. 21,539. This very up-to-date city is the greatest tobacco market in the world. We recommend a visit to Memorial Mansion, the last capitol of the Southern Confederacy.

Greensboro, N. C.

Pop. 43,525. Third city of State, named for General Nathanael Greene, hero of Battle of Guilford C. H. Industries varied, but mostly cotton. Wm. Sidney Porter (O. Henry) born here.

Winston-Salem, N. C.

Pop. 48,395. World's greatest tobacco manufacturing centre. "Camel" cigarettes made here. Home Moravian Church built (1800) by hands of brethren; Washington slept in Washington Tavern. Salem was settled by Moravians in 1766; Winston incorporated in 1859; the two consolidated in 1913. Now Winston-Salem is the largest city in North Carolina.

An interesting trip traversing a level country, through the oldest town in the United States — St. Augustine. Occasional river views and long stretches of pine woods. Asphalt, shell and brick.

Jacksonville, Fla.*

Pop. 95,206. A great industrial city—naval stores, lumber, shipbuilding, etc.—as well as an all-year-round pleasure resort.

San Jose, Fla.

A newly-developed suburb of "Jax" on the banks of the St. Johns.

St. Augustine, Fla.*

Pop. 10,190. The oldest permanent white settlement in America, founded 1565 by Spaniards. At present a quaint and very popular winter resort. The centre of the little city is the Plaza de la Constitución, from which St. George Street leads out through the old City Gate to Fort Marion, formerly called by the Spaniards San Marco. A visit to this old stronghold is highly recommended.

Daytona Beach, Fla.*

Pop. 9,594. Situated on ridge skirting Halifax River with water-front of two miles. Charming homes. Many delightful trips over fine roads to St. Petersburg, Tampa, Palm Beach, etc.

In 1925 the Legislature permitted the name to be changed to Daytona Beach, which now includes all the portions here shown as situated on the peninsula between the Halifax River and the ocean. The beach here is world-famous.

Orlando, Fla.*

Pop. 22,273. In the heart of the citrus belt, and with sixteen lakes inside its corporate limits, a number of superb golf links to play over; fishing, shooting and horseback-riding—what wonder that Orlando is crowded each season?

Kissimmee, Fla.

Pop. 2,722. A delightful town on Lake Tohopekaliga, where the shooting is very good in season. The Kissimmee River flows thence through Lake Kissimmee into Lake Okeechobee, far to the south.

Melbourne, Fla.

Pop. 1,500. An Englishman settled this town in 1878 and named it for Melbourne, Victoria, in Australia. Sixty-six thousand acres have been reclaimed for agricultural purposes, and the cultivation of vegetables goes on along with that of the winter tourist and citrus fruits. Golf, fishing, shooting and bathing are popular in their seasons. The winter population of Melbourne approximates three thousand.

The Transparent Road Guide Holder shown on inside back cover of this volume will make touring and your book much more enjoyable.

Jacksonville, Fla.*

Pop. 95,206. See Index.

St. Augustine, Fla.*

Pop. 10,190. The oldest city in the United States. Still Spanish in physical aspect; Plaza de la Constitution, old City Gates and Fort Marion of great interest. The great hotels by Carrère and Hastings blend well with the style of the older buildings.

DeLeon Springs, Fla.*

The lake formed in the spring basin affords excellent swimming; average temperature in winter 75°. A quaint old sugar-mill is several hundred years old.

DeLand, Fla.*

Pop. 3,324. Less than four miles east of the St. Johns, this model town was founded in 1876 by Mr. Henry A. De Land, of Fairport, N. Y., and Mr. John B. Stetson, of Philadelphia. The latter founded the University which bears his name. There are now 550 undergraduates of both sexes.

Daytona Beach, Fla.*

Pop. 9,594. Situated on both banks of the Halifax River with water-front of two miles. Charming homes. Many delightful trips over fine roads to St. Petersburg, Tampa, Palm Beach, etc.

Ormond-Daytona Beach

On a peninsula between the Halifax River and the Atlantic Ocean, and connected with the mainland by four bridges. Thirty-five mile drive along Ocean Beach Speedway, at low tide. Here you may take your car and, without fear of interference by minions of the law, find out from actual experience just how fast she will go.

DeLand, Fla.*

Pop. 3,324. Started as winter home of Henry A. DeLand of New York and his friends. Now widely known resort and largest shipping point for tangerines and kid glove oranges in America.

Sanford, Fla.

Pop. 7,258. Extensive truck gardening.

Winter Park, Fla.

Pop. 1,078. A resort town with well kept golf links and the other attractions.

Orlando, Fla.*

The best available connection between these important cities. Through a vegetable-raising country practically all the way. Hard-surface roads.

Ocala, Fla.

Pop. 6,721. Ocala is not alone a resort town but a city of no little commercial importance. It is the centre of the great phosphate region, and ships thousands of tons of fertilizer to all parts of the world.

Dade City, Fla.

Pop. 1,276. Established as a military post in the Seminole War; now market town for rich farming district. Fishing in nearby lakes is fine; here was caught the largest black bass in U. S.—weighing 20 lbs., 2 oz.

Plant City, Fla.

Pop. 6,624. Strawberries grow in profusion all round Plant City, which is busy packing them for market; other fruits are also packed here.

Tampa, Fla.*

Pop. 94,808. Settled by De Soto 1539. Produces more cigars than any other city in the world; it ships enormous quantities of phosphates; and is in addition a highly thought-of resort—especially with disciples of Izaak Walton.

ST. PETERSBURG—TAMPA—SARASOTA

Distances are noted in panels on map.

For good roads this section is difficult to match. The program for 1924 was to complete all roads shown in Red in Pinellas County at a cost of $3,000,000. All work was completed by Dec. 31, 1924. This comprises the most populous area on the Florida Gulf Coast and includes important cities, beautiful towns and farms and estates of some magnitude. It is worthy of a lengthy stay and trips into each locality.

The Chambers of Commerce in each live section are well informed and anxious to assist visitors in any possible way.

A splendid fast highway between the North and the cities on the West Coast. In December '25 there were some thirty miles of sand-clay road, but these were being worked on and the entire stretch is probably hard surface by now. This is State Highway No. 5, and is called part of the Tamiami Trail.

Lake City, Fla.

Pop. 3,341. A hundred-year-old town, formerly called "Alligator," located in a lake-dotted district. The capital of Columbia County. Some tobacco grows in the fields roundabout, but the chief crops are fruits of several kinds, and the pine forests yield lumber and turpentine. The nearby lakes are much patronized by fishermen.

Dunellon, Fla.

Pop. 1,103. Phosphate shipments and the attraction of the nearby lakes put Dunellon on the map.

Brooksville, Fla.*

Pop. 1,745. Not far from this sightly little city is the "Devil's Punch Bowl"—a kind of primeval crater with a dense forest of great trees at the bottom.

Tampa, Fla.*

Pop. 94,808. Settled by De Soto 1539. Produces more cigars than any other city in the world; it ships enormous quantities of phosphates; and is in addition a highly thought-of resort—especially with disciples of Izaak Walton.

Tampa, Fla.*

Pop. 94,808. The metropolis of the West Coast—a great and prosperous city. Exports citrus fruits, vegetables, naval stores and lumber; it is the greatest exporter of phosphate rock in the country.

Bradenton, Fla.*

Pop. 7,364. At the mouth of the Manatee River, swept by the gentle breezes from the Gulf of Mexico, Bradenton offers its devotees sailing, bathing, shooting and—best of all—marvelous sporty fishing.

Sarasota, Fla.*

Pop. 5,510. Sarasota has achieved great popularity in the past few years.

Fort Myers, Fla.*

Pop. 6,635. Founded in 1853, this town was an army post during the Civil War. It boasts one of the longest and finest avenues of Royal palms in the world.

Gainesville, Fla.

Pop. 8,469. This city, the county seat of Alachua County, is at the centre of a prosperous farming community, in a region in which livestock as well as fruits, vegetables, cotton and other crops flourish. The University of Florida, with a splendid campus, is located here.

Ocala, Fla.*

Pop. 6,721. Ocala is not alone a resort town, but a city of considerable commercial importance.

Leesburg, Fla.

Pop. 1,835. Situated between Lake Griffin and Lake Harris, and within short motoring distance of a score of other lakes.

Eustis, Fla.

Pop. 1,193. Another city whose attraction for tourists lies in its proximity to a number of lovely lakes.

Orlando, Fla.*

Pop. 22,273. In the heart of the citrus belt, and with sixteen lakes inside its corporate limits, a number of superb golf links to play over; fishing, shooting and horseback-riding.

The best-liked of several options. Through a concatenation of industrial plants between Chicago and Gary; east of there over rather flat country, on paved roads throughout.

Chicago, Ill.*

Pop. 2,925,185. The nation's second city, and the greatest railroad centre in the world. Founded as Fort Dearborn in 1804, it grew phenomenally, until by the time of the Civil War it numbered about 200,000 inhabitants, of whom it contributed nearly 45,000 to the Union cause.

The great fire of 1871 nearly wiped out Chicago, but its recovery was one of the wonders of the age. Now it is a very handsome city, rapidly increasing in beauty, and at last capitalizing its vast frontage on the Lake in an esthetic way. The University, the Armour Institute, Museum of Art, and a host of other cultural institutions are now splendidly housed and are distinct ornaments to the city. Its park system is a thing of beauty and a joy forever. Chicago is plentifully supplied with hotels of all sorts and divers prices. Golf and country clubs are many; some of the links rank among the best in the country.

Gary, Ind.

Pop. 55,378. Industrial city built 19 years ago by the U. S. Steel Corp. Model city, model plants.

A very direct highway through a farming country studded with industrial cities, on concrete, brick and macadam roads.

South Bend, Ind.

Pop. 70,983. The county seat of St. Joseph County is about a century old. It is situated on both banks of the St. Joseph River and is a handsome community with especially fine public buildings and broad, tree-lined streets. South Bend's highly varied industries include the Studebaker Wagon Works, Oliver Plow and Singer Sewing Machine companies. One ought without fail to visit Notre Dame Convent and the Church of Sacré Coeur.

Elkhart, Ind.

Pop. 24,277. This manufacturing city at the junction of the Elkhart and St. Joseph Rivers has set an example for others to follow. Intelligent town planning and supervision by capable landscape architects has resulted in the happiest kind of realization of the natural advantages accruing from the presence of so much water within the corporate limits. A model of good taste.

Goshen, Ind.

Pop. 9,525. County seat of Elkhart County, on the Elkhart River. Goshen College is here, a Mennonite school.

Bryan, Ohio

Pop. 4,252. A pleasant little city, Williams County seat, the centre of a dairy country.

Wauseon, Ohio

Pop. 3,035. County seat of Fulton County, and a centre of the milk-packing industry.

Toledo, Ohio

Pop. 243,164. The third city of the Buckeye State is an important port located on Maumee Bay where the Maumee River enters Lake Erie. As a city it is but 89 years old, but as a fort and trading post its history dates back to before the War of 1812. Toledo's parks are many and beautiful. Brand Whitlock, U. S. Minister to Belgium during the World War, was for many years the idealistic Mayor of Toledo.

Fremont, Ohio

Pop. 12,468. Fremont has a dual claim to fame. It was the home of President Hayes, who is buried here; and here it was that Colonel Groghan, a Kentuckian, fought and won a battle against the British and Indians in the War of 1812, though greatly outnumbered.

A section of the main east-and-west highway through the Buckeye State. Pretty drive into and out of Cleveland, the balance over fairly flat country through a number of interesting cities. All hard road.

Fremont, Ohio

Pop. 12,468. See opp.

Norwalk, Ohio

Pop. 7,379. The county seat of Huron County is a sightly town with wide tree-bordered streets. General Wm. Henry Harrison, later President, passed through here during the War of 1812; the road his men cut through the then wilderness is now a city street.

Oberlin, Ohio

Pop. 4,236. The seat of Oberlin College, a co-educational institution founded in 1833, with 1,700 students and an endowment of some $6,500,000. The many fine buildings are worth a visit.

Elyria, Ohio

Pop. 20,474. Cascade Park, in the very centre of the city, will repay inspection.

Cleveland, Ohio*

Pop. 796,841. Ohio's chief city, a great Lake port and manufacturing centre. Industries many and varied; iron and steel, ready-made clothing predominating. Cleveland's park system is especially fine; the new Civic Centre when finished will be one of the best in the country. Northwestern University and Case School lead in a cultural way.

All concrete and pavement through numerous Lake towns and villages and industrial communities along the Detroit River.

Detroit, Mich.

Pop. 993,678. The fourth city of the United States, and the automobile centre of the world, Detroit has almost quadrupled its population since the commencement of the present century.

The city was founded in 1701 by Cadillac, ceded to England after the French and Indian War, and by her to the U. S. in 1783. General Hull lost Detroit in the War of 1812, but it again came into our possession after Perry's victory at Put-in-Bay in that struggle. Its strategic position on the Great Lakes navigation chain made it prominent from its beginning. The main Ford plant and Belle Isle Park are among the "sights" that ought not be missed.

Windsor, Ont.

Pop. 38,591. A most progressive and attractive city. Among its industries brewing holds a prominent place, although the Province is "dry." Horse-racing at the Windsor tracks attracts many from Detroit, for differences of opinion may still be backed financially at the pari-mutuel booths.

Toledo, Ohio

Pop. 243,164. See Route 805.

The western half of the best present highway between South Bend and Detroit. All paved road or macadam, over slightly rolling territory.

Battle Creek, Mich.

Pop. 36,164. Best known as the home of breakfast foods, for the Kellogg plant and that of Postum and Grape-nuts are located here. The wonderful Battle Creek Sanitarium has a national, if not international, reputation.

Kalamazoo, Mich.

Pop. 48,487. Situated in a lake-watered agricultural region, Kalamazoo ships trainloads of garden-truck; the water-power from the Kalamazoo River gave the city its start as a paper-manufacturing centre—it is one of the greatest in the country. The surroundings of the city are lovely.

Niles, Mich.

Pop. 7,311. On the St. Joseph River, this manufacturing city also ships great quantities of vegetables and fruit, which grow profusely in the rolling country surrounding the town. Berrien County is one of the most fertile in all Michigan.

South Bend, Ind.

Pop. 70,983. (See Route 803.)

Detroit, Mich.

Pop. 993,678. See Routes 409 and 808.

Ypsilanti, Mich.

Pop. 7,413. Much paper is manufactured in this little city on the Huron River.

Ann Arbor, Mich.

Pop. 19,516. The seat of the University of Michigan, which graces its 40-acre campus right in the middle of the town. Michigan is one of the oldest (1837) and largest (9,250) State Universities, and probably the best known. It is co-educational. "Hurry-up" Yost and his football teams have done nothing to dim the fame of the U. of M.

Jackson, Mich.

Pop. 48,374. The county seat of Jackson County is located on the Grand River, and is the junction point of four railroads. It is a very important manufacturing city.

Battle Creek, Mich.

Pop. 36,164. Kellogg's Corn Flakes, Postum and Grapenuts are made in Battle Creek; and its remarkable Sanitarium has a nation-wide reputation.

a fort built in 1623 to protect the place against Indian raids. Until 1664, when the British took it and named it Albany in honor of the Prince of Wales, Duke of York and Albany, it was called Beverwyk or Williamstadt. In 1812 portions of the original wooden walls were standing. In 1754 a provincial congress met here and formulated plans for the union of thirteen colonies. Early Indian and colonial trails converged here. At present the city is a social, commercial and industrial centre. Produce from the West goes through on the way to New York, and the factories of the city employ many thousands. But of more interest to the tourist are the State buildings: the great granite Capitol, the Educational Building, containing the State library, the Normal College, and the Museum of Natural History. These buildings are all open to the public part of each day. The Medical College, the Law School and the College of Pharmacy are branches of Union College in Schenectady. Of historical interest are the Van

The quaint and altogether delightful capital of Maryland would prove an attraction to the tourist even were it not for the U. S. Naval Academy. It is the oldest chartered city (1708) in the country, and full of interesting buildings, many of them in the ripest Georgian style. St. John's College (1696) boasts a tree dating back to Magna Charta. The Naval Academy, with upwards of 2,000 midshipmen, was founded in 1845. Bancroft Hall and the domed Chapel merit a visit. In the crypt of the latter lie the mortal remains of Commodore John Paul Jones.

It is the gulf stream to which this city owes the climate which makes it so pleasant a resort summer and winter. All the world knows of the great Board Walk extending for eight miles along the beach. Here one is likely to meet in the crowds almost anybody one knows in any country of the world, for sooner or later most travelers reach Atlantic City. The walk is lined with booths where salt water taffy, popcorn, Armenian laces and embroideries, Japanese kimonos, and hundreds of other things are displayed; below on the beach, sand-artists draw portraits in return for the silver you throw them. The beach is thronged, merry-go-rounds stop only to reload, Ferris wheels revolve night and day, roller coasters fulfill the desires of thrill-chasers, beach ponies carry the youngsters, and the dozens of moving-picture theatres go it no less energetically. Georgia's fourth city is pleasantly situated at the head of navigation on the Savannah River. Blessed with a remarkably equable climate, it is a winter resort of prominence. Augusta is a handsome city, with splendid buildings and monuments—Broad Street is 120 feet wide. Commercially, cotton is king in Augusta.

One of her famous sons was Major "Archie" Butt, once Aide to Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, who went down with the Titanic in April, 1912. A handsome memorial bridge is named in his honor.

As early as 1624 the site of Augusta was granted the Plymouth Colony, and it was settled shortly after 1650. King Philip's War destroyed the settlement, and Lovewell's War in 1724 laid waste the stone fort which had been built in 1716. Fort Western on the east bank of the river was put up in 1754, and still stands. Benedict Arnold stopped in it on the way to Quebec with his men. Augusta was the meeting place for State troops who fought for the Union, and the splendid granite State House on the hill above the Kennebec (a Bulfinch product) contains the flags they carried, as well as the Confederate ones they captured. Near the city are the National Soldiers' Home and Lake Cobbosseecontee, with bass to catch and a lighthouse to see. The home of James G. Blaine is near the State House and is now the Governor's mansion. The city has great water power which runs the cotton, pulp and lumber mills. There are shoe factories and publishing houses as well.

BALTIMORE

Baltimore is one of the most beautiful cities of the East, and the largest in Maryland. It was first settled in 1709, and grew slowly at first, having in 1752 only two hundred inhabitants. Its chief practical importance is as a seaport though it is two hundred miles from the sea. But Chesapeake Bay into which the Patapsco River flows is navigable for the largest vessels, and cotton, grain and other products are daily shipped to all parts of the world. Of the historical significance of the city there is much more to say. Oliver Wendell Holmes pointed out the fact that three poems, each the best of its kind the country has produced, have been written in Baltimore. The first, The Star Spangled Banner, was scribbled on the back of an envelope, by Francis Scott Key, while he was detained as prisoner on a British ship which had been bombarding Fort McHenry all through the night. The lines were printed in a newspaper, then sung in a café, and rapidly became popular. The sights of the city are very many. Druid Hill Park is one of the most beautiful in the country, comprising six hundred acres of woodland. Roland Park, a handsome residential section, is the site of the new Johns Hopkins buildings. There are also the ancient Washington Monument in gracious Mt. Vernon Place, the Peabody Institute, the Walters Collection and the Roman Catholic Cathedral.

Sixty miles up the Penobscot, at the junction of that river and the Kenduskeag Stream, Bangor is Maine's third city. Its chief industry is lumber, pulp and paper. At the head of navigation, it is an important shipping port, its docks lined with many-masted schooners bound for all over the seas, and deep-sea steamers as well. The city is otherwise of considerable importance — roads of State gravel lead thence in all directions.

It is not strange that Bar Harbor, which Frenchmen discovered in 1604 and fishermen settled, should have come to be one of the country's most fashionable and famous summering places. Situated on Mt. Desert Island of one hundred square miles, the town has as magnificent scenery as any place on the Atlantic Coast—with sixteen mountain peaks, numerous lakes, and the sea. From the village one looks out across Frenchman's Bay and Porcupine Islands. There are many interesting things to see besides the general beauty of sea and shore: Anemone Cave; the Schooner Head, a wave-washed

A great part of the Island of Mount Desert has been acquired by the U. S. Government and designated the La Fayette National Park, thus assuring this paradise to the public for all time.

Farther away from Bar Harbor, yet but a few minutes' drive, are Jordan's Pond, a jewel among the hills; Southwest Harbor, Somes Sound; Sieur de Monts Spring; the Building of Arts, where the world's most famous musicians appear during the month of August; the Kebo Valley golf links, very sporting, at the base of the mountains of Lafayette Park; the new drive along Cadillac Mountain; Eagle Lake and Bubble Pond. No visitor to Maine should leave that State without including Bar Harbor and Mount Desert Island in his itinerary.

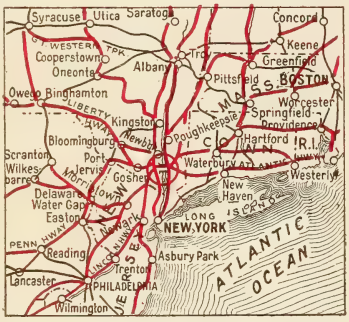
BEAR MOUNTAIN—HUDSON RIVER BRIDGE



THE only highway bridge across the Hudson south of Albany. Open normally twenty-four hours a day every day in the year.

It provides a direct east and west route to New England, and enables New York City to be reached without the use of ferries. Many traffic delays can be eliminated by use of it.

From the highway on the east side magnificent views of the Hudson are had. The trip over this highway, across the bridge and thence through West Point and over the Storm King Highway is one of the most attractive scenic rides in the United States.

Here, high up on the west bank of the Hudson, tens of thousands from the hot city find diversion in summer; camp sites are provided; an excellent inn serves the multitude at moderate cost. Hudson River steamers make Bear Mountain a port of call.

Last year was opened for traffic the new, handsome suspension bridge spanning the lordly river, and connecting the State highways which parallel the east and west shores. This bridge is the only one south of Albany, and its span equals that of the Brooklyn Bridge. The view from midstream is marvellously impressive. It is open all year round.

Bennington was the scene of one of the decisive battles of the Revolution. The town was the objective point aimed at by the two divisions of Burgoyne's troops, who were defeated by the Green Mountain Boys under General John Stark, August 16, 1777. The site of the Store House, which British troops fought to possess, is marked by the highest battle - monument in the world. The township, chartered in 1749 by Benning Wentworth, Governor of the Royal Province of New Hampshire, was the cause of much friction between the colonies of New York and New Hampshire

Bethlehem is a well-known summer resort at the highest elevation of any village in New England. It boasts an entire freedom from hay fever; the U. S. Hay Fever Association has met here annually for fifty years. Everything that is necessary to the making of a thoroughly up-to-date summering place is here, and Mt. Washington, Crawford Notch, Profile, Flume, Lost River and other famous White Mountain points of interest are within easy reach.

Binghamton lies at the confluence of the Chenango and Susquehanna Rivers. Its famous citizens have included Royal E. House, inventor of the printing telegraph system; Willard L. Bundy, inventor of the International Time Recording Clock; and Nelson S. Stow, originator of the flexible shaft. The industries are extensive and diverse—shoes, motor trucks, films and cameras, overalls, clocks, cigars, auto parts and accessories are all made here.

BLUE MOUNTAIN LAKE HOUSE

Blue Mountain Lake

Hamilton County, New York

Founded by John G. Holland, in 1875, Pioneer Hotel Man of the Adirondacks. Having 26 miles of shore line to select from he chose this beautiful spot at the head of the Lake, with its sloping bathing beach; the wonderful Sunsets, and the fine view of the Switzerland-like Mountains coming down to the water's edge.

Blue Mountain Lake is one of the most famous, as well as one of the most beautiful summer resorts in the Adirondacks. Booklet.

Bluff Point (on Lake Champlain), which is now a private park of 1,000 acres and the property of the Hotel Champlain, was discovered by Samuel de Champlain in 1609. The place is now an exclusive and delightful summer resort. Directly off the shore were fought the battles of Lake Champlain. During the McKinley administration a cottage of the hotel served as the Summer White House. The golf course is the third oldest in the country, and the first to have been built by a resort.

Motor down to Florida

For a Glorious Experience

AS you speed along from Palm Beach to Miami, observe that, although no huge "painted bulletin" screams the vast extent of the holdings at Boca Raton of the Mizner Development Corporation, you will readily recognize

BOCA RATON

The splendid beach with its gentle, seaward slope—the canals and waterways—the streets and boulevards—being given such picturesque treatment.

Everywhere—on every hand—you will see at work a mighty army of men—a tremendous assembly of machinery—evidencing the power of wealth at work—creating new wealth—new values—new opportunity for economic gain.

Because of its natural beauties—because of the gigantic forces behind its development—Boca Raton is destined to become the greatest resort on the Florida East Coast.

Before you start your tour, you should learn of the splendid plans of the Mizner Development Corporation at Boca Raton.

The RITZ-CARLTON CLOISTER, a medieval hostelry furnished in modern luxury, is now open. Three 18-hole Golf Courses by Wm. S. Flynn and Donald Ross invite you. The magnificent new BOCA RATON RITZ-CARLTON is now building.

Send for our latest booklet and read about EL CAMINO REAL—the boulevard beautiful, 160 to 220 feet wide. Read about the homes—polo fields—tennis courts—private beaches—restricted residences—esplanades—palm shaded avenues—and other improvements.

Boothbay Harbor was settled in 1630, destroyed in 1688, and resettled in 1730. Before the Revolution, the English chose its fine harbor for a naval station, but the war prevented construction work. Shipbuilding, fishing and coastwise trade engage so much of the natives' time as isn't taken up in preparing and providing for the crowds of summer visitors.

Boston is world famous for its queer old narrow, crooked streets in the downtown district and for its friendly pathways, privately owned and generally hidden, for pedestrian use. These footpaths, narrow and covered, often lead through private buildings. Streets converge at the prominent squares in the form of spokes entering a hub, and even the main streets wind about curiously just as if their ultimate destinations were as aimless as they are seemingly uncertain. No stranger could possibly traverse this section alone without getting lost many times, but it possesses a gripping interest for all visitors. It is not prudent for a stranger to attempt to drive his own car in this district without a trained guide. Many of the passages are one-way streets, and without knowing the section intimately, the driver is almost sure to run into traffic congestions. Better far to park one's car at the city's outskirts and visit downtown Boston by trolley or in any of the bridge and Watertown, across the Charles River, hedge it in on two sides. Toward the south, its extension is limited by the municipalities of Quincy, Milton, Dedham, Brookline and the Newtons —there is a nest of eleven Newtons. Toward the east, Boston is restricted by Winthrop, Chelsea and Everett. It gains a few hundred square yards annually by reclaiming land from the ocean bed, but otherwise its girth cannot increase with age. The population of Boston is 781-529; of Metropolitan Boston is 1,850,000.

Among the interesting historical scenes which can be reached more conveniently by trolley, taxicab or sight-seeing car, are:

in recent years coming back into its own as a fashionable place to live. Such streets as Louisburg Square, Pinckney Street, Chestnut, Joy, Walnut, Brimmer, Mount Vernon and Revere are Beacon Hill streets whose names are as well known in the literary and artistic circles of London and Paris as they are in Suffolk and Middlesex Counties. in 1634 by Governor Winthrop and others from William Blackstone, and was set apart for common use as a cow pasture and training field forever. While habits of civilization have dictated the abandonment of its former use long, long ago, it is one of the finest breathing spots that any city in America has, located as it is in the very heart of the city. Its use is jealously guarded, and while subways have been permitted under it and the necessary inlets and exits erected on its surface, no other utilitarian purpose is permitted, and it will probably never be used for anything but recreational purposes. Many monuments, markers and memorials adorn it.

First Corps Cadets Armory, housing the Massachusetts Commandery Military Order of the Loyal Legion, containing 26,000 photographs and other relics of the Civil War.

Constitution Wharf, 409 Commercial Street, where "Old Ironsides" was built.

Custom House Tower. While not of historical interest exactly, although the tides once lapped its base, the Custom House is generally visited because of the magnificent views that may be had from its tower. Two or more persons can readily obtain permits to ascend the twenty-five stories by elevator. The best view of Boston Harbor, which, incidentally, is regarded as one of the finest harbors in the East, may be obtained from it on the sea side, as well as views of numerous islands; of the Fish Pier, Commonwealth Pier and the Army Base; Dorchester Heights, the Blue Hills Observation Tower, the topography of the skyline of Boston and the forty-odd municipalities which really constitute Boston's social, civic, religious and business life. Even Mount Monadnock, toward the northwest, may be clearly discerned when the weather conditions are right.

Dorchester Heights, comprising G Street, South Boston. A monument now marks the spot where Washington planted his batteries which drove the British out of Boston on St. Patrick's Day, 1776.

Faneuil Hall Market, the "cradle of liberty" of Colonial days, the playhouse of the British during the siege of Boston. The ground floors are used to this day as a public market. The upper floors are used for patriotic meetings, as an armory for the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, and for a military museum.

Fort Hill, fortified in 1632 and maintained as a fort until the close of the Revolution. Formerly 80 feet high, but now leveled into Fort Hill Square.

Site of Franklin's birthplace, 17 Milk Street, now occupied by Boston Transcript and marked by tablet.

Central Burying Ground, occupying a very small part of Boston Common near Boylston Street. Probably the most notable personage lying in this ground is Gilbert Stuart, portrait painter.

Direct Shipments of Properly Graded Sea Food Products for the Use of Hotels, Clubs, Restaurants and Institutions

North Shore Drive between Boston and Swampscott, Mass.

BOSTON

Copps Hill Burying Ground, in the north end, contains the bones of Increase, Cotton and Samuel Mather, and other notable personages. Eliot Burying Ground, at Dudley Station, contains the remains of Reverend John Eliot, the apostle to the Indians, as well as the remains of several early governors. The old burying ground in rear of King's Chapel contains the remains of well-known Bostonians of early days.

Site of Green Dragon Tavern, used as a patriotic rendezvous, now marked by tablet.

John Hancock House, just west of State House on Beacon Street, marked by bronze tablet.

King's Chapel, Tremont and School Streets. Here British officers worshipped during siege. Oldest Episcopal church in Boston.

Massachusetts Historical Society, 1154 Boylston Street, museum.

Site of Boston Massacre of March 5, 1770. Paving stones are arranged in a marker in the rear of the Old State House.

Museum of Fine Arts, Huntington Avenue, one of America's really great art collections.

Park Street Church, corner of Park and Tremont Streets, where "America" was first sung.

Site of Province House, 327 Washington Street, used as a residence of royal governors.

Public Garden, adjacent to Common, a riot of floral color and design.

Public Library, Copley Square. Masterpiece of McKim, Mead and White, and one of the most beautiful buildings in America. Mural decorations by Puvis de Chavannes, "The Prophets," etc., by Sargent, and Edwin A. Abbey's unique "Holy Grail."

Scenes connected with Paul Revere's ride, including the old Revere House, now a museum, at 19 North Square; Old North Church, now a museum, from which the signal lights flashed announcing the approach of the British by sea, and crossing beyond Boston's boundaries, his wild night ride is thoroughly marked through Somerville, Medford, Arlington, Lexington and Concord, carefully avoiding Cambridge, which was occupied by the enemy.

Shaw Monument, on the Common opposite State House, by Augustus Saint Gaudens, and by many considered his best work—showing in high relief Col. Robert Gould Shaw at the head of his colored regiment.

Old South Meeting House, now a museum, used in Colonial days for patriotic purposes. Located at Washington and Milk Streets.

State House. Bulfinch's masterpiece. The State House atop Beacon Hill possesses in addition to the usual architectural interest to visitors, statuary, historical paintings, battle flags and war relics. It is, perhaps, more notable for its sacred codfish emblem than for its more ornate or historically valuable collections. Its gilded dome, gleaming in the sunlight, rises to a greater height than any building save the Custom House Tower.

Old State House, now a museum, whose walls reverberated in Colonial times with patriotic fervor; at Washington and State Streets.

Symphony Hall, Massachusetts and Huntington Avenues, which Boston owes to the munificence of the late Major Henry Lee Higginson, in early summer stages the "Pop Concerts," where for a moderate sum people may hear one of the world's best orchestras dispense popular music. Incidentally, the first auditorium to be designed by an expert on acoustics.

Site of "Boston Tea Party," 45 Atlantic Avenue.

The people of Boston have always cherished their historical memories, and many hundreds of markers, statues, monuments and collections of almost an infinite variety may be found in the Boston Public and Athenaeum Libraries, in other private and institutional libraries, in the Museum of Fine Arts, and in dozens of other museums, the merest record of which would occupy many pages of this guide book.

Of the two million people who visit Boston annually by automobile, not more than half at most are vacation and pleasure seekers, the remainder being bent upon business quests. In addition to its commanding commercial importance, furnishing as it does provisions and supplies to all New England and through a large export trade enormous supplies from all parts of America to markets all over the world, Boston is a busy industrial city. Of the 25,000 manufacturing plants in New England, 5,000 are located in Metropolitan Boston, and the majority of the larger ones have headquarters in Boston.

The many numbered highways that pass through Boston and its immediate suburbs are fairly well posted, but they are designed to permit the automobile traveler to pass on without stopping. Generally, visitors arriving in the segment bordered on the one side by a line from New York, Springfield and Worcester, and on the other side by Long Island Sound and the South Shore, approach Boston either by way of Commonwealth Avenue or through the Fenway which converges into Commonwealth Avenue at or near the tourist information booth. Visitors arriving over roads contained in the segment bounded by the Mohawk Trail and the North Shore on the other side, generally arrive by way of Massachusetts Avenue and Harvard Bridge, which is only four blocks distant from Commonwealth Avenue. Visitors from the North could find a nearer inlet through Charlestown or could be ferried across the bay, but it is not advisable unless they are familiar with the curiously and confusing intersecting highways.

Scenic views and landscape attractions are quite as impressive to the visitor as are the historical associations. A day's automobile trip might easily include a visit to charming Cape Cod, or over the majestic Mohawk Trail, or to Lake Winnepesaukee or Sunapee, or the White Mountains region of New Hampshire, or the summer cottage colonies of Rhode Island, or the rugged coastline of the North Shore. More than 200 half-day automobile trips have been charted out of Boston, each over an entirely different route from any other, and each route either traversing territory that is marvelously beautiful in scenic attractions, or possessing historical interest, or even of interest from a more prosaic standpoint. There is a curious interest that arises when one drives by a factory where are made household articles of everyday domestic use, or with which one has been intimately familiar in one's home since childhood. Hundreds of such factories are scattered throughout New England, many of them in Boston itself. Great interest attaches to standing on the runways leading to the only drydock in America large enough to accommodate such a ship as the Leviathan. It is an impressive sight to look upon Boston's great wool warehouses or to visit the leather district and to realize that that district leads all the world in its particular market. To visit the Fish Pier and watch the sanitary and efficient unloading of great shiploads of deep-sea food reminds one that Boston is the largest fish market on the Western Continent.

Nutmeg towns, birthplace of the late P. T. Barnum, whose circus still has its winter quarters here; Simon Lake, inventor, builds submarines, and Singer Sewing Machines come from Bridgeport. One of the greatest of many huge plants is the Remington Arms—U. M. C. American Chain Co. has model workmen's houses along Connecticut Avenue. The city parks and amusement parks on the Sound are very fine. A ferry runs across Long Island Sound to Port Jefferson.

Lumber, "turps" and resin form the bulk of Brunswick's exports; for a city its size the tonnage is astounding. In addition, of late years, Brunswick has developed greatly as a winter resort. It has long been known to Northerners through the elite fishing and shooting club on Jekyll Island, in the outer harbor. Near Brunswick is St. Simon's Island, on which stand the ruins of old Frederica, founded by Oglethorpe in 1739. Here, in 1742, three thousand attacking Spaniards were defeated in battle by Oglethorpe's little band, though the latter were outnumbered four to one.

Buffalo from the Sky

Buffalo's first squatter came in 1758, and it was not until 1803 that the first settler with a land-title arrived. The Holland Land Company made the town—surveyed it from 1798-1803 and sold land from that time on.

In 1813 the original village was burned by the English and Indians and left with only one house standing. The present city dates from 1814. Buffalo has been the residence of two United States presidents: Millard Fillmore and Grover Cleveland, not to mention the "Father of the Greenback," Elbridge G. Spaul-family, who owned much of the land. Indians had worn paths through the Winooski Valley on their journeys to and from attacks on Massachusetts. In 1800 the University of Vermont was opened. During the War of 1812 the U. S. took over the building for an arsenal; in 1824 it burned, and the following year was rebuilt on a cornerstone laid by Lafayette. The traveler who climbs the tower will enjoy the view of Lake Champlain, the Adirondacks, the Green Mountains of Vermont, and, to the west, the city of Burlington descending to the shore. Ethan Allen's grave with its monument is in the Green Mountain Cemetery near the university, and beyond is the canyon in the Winooski River at High Bridge. In the city are several beautiful public parks, and the streets and buildings are clean and charming in spite of the fact that Burlington is so important an industrial centre.

The fame of Cambridge, as a highly specialized and important industrial city, suffers because her historical traditions and educational institutions completely overshadow her rank as a manufacturing centre. Her factories are of a widely diversified nature, require the most skillfully trained workmen and their products are, for the most part, household words throughout the whole country. Most of the manufacturing plants are located in Cambridgeport, now only the mere name of a locality and no longer a port at all since the Charles River Dam was constructed. This created the Charles River Basin, which separates Boston proper from Cambridge and is spanned by numerous bridges. Incidentally, the Charles River Basin is often described as the most beautiful inland waterway in America.

Harvard University, with its numerous schools, occupies in actual area, as well as in tradition, a great part in the civic life of the city. The Massachusetts Institute of Technology, or "Tech," housed in buildings of exquisite architectural design, along the Charles River Basin, likewise dominates, in a measure, the civic life of the community.

Boston has no sufficient gateway of her own toward the North and the Northeast, and consequently automobile travel to the North Shore, to the White Mountain region and to New Hampshire and Vermont, as well as most of the automobile traffic to western Massachusetts, especially over the Mohawk Trail, passes through Cambridge, whose police officials are courteous and hospitable to the visiting automobilists. The visitors, however, should be cautioned in the City of Cambridge (and also in Springfield, Mass.) not to pass on the left side of a street car.

Among the worth-while places to visit are the site of Washington Elm at Cambridge Common, under whose branches General Washington took command of the Continental Army. The tree itself was blown down in a windstorm in the fall of 1923 and will be replaced with a suitable historical marker. Across the Common from this site the Revolutionary soldiers mobilized and formally began the War for Independence with a prayer by the President of Harvard. On another corner of the Common is Christ Church, in which Washington worshipped, and on the Common, a cannon captured by Ethan Allen at Fort Ticonderoga. A number of notable statues and monuments are located in the vicinity of the Common.

is situated the Harvard Yard. Among the notable buildings of the University are the Agassiz Museum, containing the world-famous glass flowers which attract tens of thousands of visitors annually. Widener Memorial Library (a portion of Harvard) contains probably the best dramatic and theatrical library in America. The Fogg Art Museum is on a portion of the Yard. To the right of the main gate is Massachusetts Hall (1720), the oldest college building still standing.

In the opposite direction from Harvard Square extends Brattle Street. Almost every house on this thoroughfare is linked with the history and tradition of famous personages and literary folk of a past age, as well as many notable personages of today. Among these houses are the Longfellow House, 105 Brattle Street, and the Lowell House, fronting Lowell Park, just off Brattle Street. The old home of the Village Blacksmith is now an antique shop and restaurant catering to Harvard students. Mount Auburn Cemetery contains the remains probably of as famous personages as are to be found in any graveyard in America. Especially noteworthy is the plain white marble cross over the grave of Bishop Phillips Brooks.

The Home of BEECH-NUT Products

STOP and visit us. Our little town of Canajoharie is on the main highway between Albany and Utica. And the best of automobile roads lead here from the most popular spots in New York's great summer resort section. See map below.

The Beech-Nut Plant is closely tied with the life of Canajoharie—and we ascribe no little of the exceptional flavor of Beech-Nut Products to the fact that they are made in the pure air of the Mohawk Valley among the most beautiful, cleanly and healthful surroundings imaginable. Let us show you how we make the famous Beech-Nut Bacon; the Peanut Butter that delights the hearts of young and old; the Macaroni that is tender when cooked. And the Mints, Fruit Drops and Chewing Gum. From the enthusiasm shown by our other visitors we know that you will be intensely interested in the cleanly methods of preparing Beech-Nut Products.

Quaint Cape Cod was seemingly created solely for man's pleasure and recreation. It is a long arm of land stretching seventy miles out to sea, bent invitingly at the elbow and beckoning the world to come and enjoy its charms and pastimes.

Historically, this region is the very cradle of the American Commonwealth. It was at the very tip end of the Cape, just off Provincetown, that the Pilgrims signed their Compact presaging the creation of a new Nation destined to safeguard civilization. From Provincetown, the Pilgrims sailed on across the Bay to Plymouth, so that these two communities are enriched by a great wealth of historical associations, precious to American memories.

It is the sheer beauty of the Cape—Cape Cod and its islands, Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard —that attracts vacation seekers, rather than any musty historical documents, markers, tablets or ancient landmarks.

The Cape proper begins at Sagamore and Buzzards Bay, the terminals of Cape Cod Canal The King's Highway, a great avenue of noble proportions, as it merges into tree-lined streets, is a motoring delight as it passes through such communities as Sandwich, Barnstable, Yarmouth, Dennis, Brewster, Wellfleet and Truro on to Provincetown. One visits the Pilgrim Monument, the wild sand-dunes, queer twisting streets that are haunted by artists' colonies, fishing premises, and one returns to Chatham, taking the southern route to Hyannis, Osterville and Falmouth. Freshening breezes from its salt-water seas keep the summer visitor cool throughout the hottest season. The country is very rolling, indeed almost hilly. It contains 365 fresh water lakes and ponds and several rivers.

Practically all industry deals with food products, the most luscious and delicious imaginable. For three hundred years the Cape has been famous for its fish, both salt and fresh water, and its shell-fish are equally palatable, clams, oysters, lobsters and scallops. It was on the Cape that the beautiful wild cranberry was first tamed. Many of the most industrious inhabitants are Portuguese farmers who raise the best table-delicacies that the Boston market offers —particularly berries, melons and such relishes as celery and lettuce.

The Cape Cod cottages are distinctive as well as quaint and charming. They are universally admired. The cleanliness of the Cape is proverbial. The entire landscape appears to have been cleansed and scoured only yesterday. Since Grover Cleveland and Joseph Jefferson established the custom of spending their summers on the Cape, it has largely been taken over by wealthy Easterners and Westerners; and probably half of its area is now owned by non-residents who return to it for spring fishing and for their summer and fall-time vacations.

Excellent hotels are conveniently scattered throughout the Cape and a network of good roads connect all nearby points. A railroad extends to the tip end. Ferries carry passengers and automobiles to the adjacent islands. The queer, narrow streets of Nantucket have attracted artists from all over the world, as have the strange, colorful formations at Gay Head on Martha's Vineyard.

According to the log of the Half Moon, Catskill Indians were very friendly to Hendrik Hudson and his friends who landed here in 1609. This tradition of hospitality is kept up today, for within a five-mile radius of Court House Square more than 10,000 vacationists spend the summer season. The town is the starting point of the Mohican and Rip Van Winkle Trails into the Catskills—the mountains made famous by Washington Irving in the legend of Rip Van Winkle. Austin's Glen, geologically noteworthy; Kaaterskill Clove, ten miles west; the Van Dusen Mansion with its Revolutionary relics, are all of interest.

Long the metropolis of the State, Charlotte is a fine town in every way. Varied industries. Here was framed and signed the "Mecklenburg Declaration," ante-dating July 4th, 1776, by 13 months.

During the Revolution Lord Cornwallis, and later Gen. Gates, had headquarters here. The gold mines in the neighborhood were once of sufficient importance to cause the U. S. to establish a branch mint in Charlotte.

The voice of the City the call of the waves—

beckon you to Hotels Windermere

You arrive here before you enter Chicago's Loop traffic congestion; you see the beautiful creamy white structure of Windermere-East awaiting you as you drive through Jackson Park.

You have here a home like a great country estate on the shores of Lake Michigan—and yet a thoroughly metropolitan hotel in cuisine, service and appointment, with the heart of the city just twelve minutes express ride away day and night.

You have unlimited parking space and parking time for your car; excellent garage facilities; chauffeurs supplied by the Hotels to drive your car in city traffic, if you desire.

Pop. 2,925,185. The nation's second city, and the greatest railroad centre in the world. Founded as Fort Dearborn in 1804, it grew phenomenally, until by the time of the Civil War it numbered about 225,000 inhabitants, of whom it contributed nearly 45,000 to the Union cause.

It is an inspiration to visit Chicago. While it was founded in 1804, its real growth dates from as late as 1871, the year of the great fire. Here you see not only a great city, but a still greater city in the making. Those who have not visited Chicago in recent years will be amazed at the civic improvements, such as the Michigan Avenue Bridge and the tremendous development of upper Michigan Avenue which followed; the construction of Wacker Drive, a double decked street along the Chicago River; the Municipal Stadium and the opening of the new South Parkway Outer Drive; these and many other interesting sights make Chicago new, even to those who have seen it.

The University, the Armour Institute, Museum of Art, and a host of other cultural institutions are now splendidly housed and are distinct ornaments to the city. Chicago is plentifully supplied with hotels, of all sorts and divers prices. Golf and country clubs are many; some of the links rank among the best in the country.

Chicago is an ideal city for the motorist. Within the city itself are 14 large parks, 197 small parks, 83 miles of boulevards connecting the large parks, and 85 miles of park drives, which take you through more than five thousand acres. Surrounding Chicago are twenty-five thousand acres of forest preserves—natural woodland in its original beauty.

Chicago is an ideal vacation city, located as it is on the shores of Lake Michigan. It is an industrial, cultural, and educational center in which one could spend literally months of interesting investigation. By all means, make your trip include Chicago.

General Moses Cleaveland, who was one of the stockholders and directors of the Connecticut Land Company, which purchased the 3,000,000 acres comprising the Connecticut Western Reserve, founded a village on the banks of the Cuyahoga, and, writing home to his friends, remarked that he expected it to be, one day, as large as Old Windham, Connecticut. This small village has grown to be the nation's fifth city—an industrial and commercial centre of enormous importance. Its leading products are iron and steel commodities, but these are far from being the whole story. Cleveland ranks second to New York in the making of women's outer garments, and thirty cents of every dollar spent on automobiles in the country go to this city. Other products are telescopes, steamships, knit goods, oils, paints, bolts, nuts, paper boxes, hoisting and conveying machines and so on. The city owns or controls two-thirds of the Great Lakes shipping, and along the fourteen miles of lake frontage are piers at which Great Lakes boats go and come, carrying passengers, lumber, iron ore and other products. There are many things to see here: the still uncompleted Civic Centre with a municipal group of unusual dignity; the twenty public parks, which are connected by a series of boulevards; the campuses of Western Reserve University and the Case School of Applied Science, both in the first rank of American colleges; eighteen blocks of Euclid Avenue comprising Millionaires' Row, with the homes of C. F. Brush, inventor of the arc light, and of John D. Rockefeller, whose estate is six hundred acres in extent. Many famous persons have lived here: John Hay, whose house is on the east boulevard of Wade Park; Senator Mark Hanna, whose statue by St. Gaudens is at University Circle; Tom L. Johnson, a Cleveland Dick Whittington; and John D. Rockefeller. President James A. Garfield lived at Mentor, nearby, and has a memorial mausoleum in Lakeview Cemetery.

The Capital of the Palmetto State stands on a bluff above the Congaree River. Its wide streets and fine trees lend it a charm all its own. In the very centre of the city is the handsome Capitol in the middle of a park. Founded in 1786, it has been capital since 1790. A disastrous fire, immediately succeeding Columbia's occupation by Sherman's army, is erroneously attributed to him.

It is a far cry from warfare to transcendentalism, but Concord has been equally hospitable to both. The embattled farmer Minute Men, who met at Wright Tavern in 1775, gave way to Alcott and his friends; cannon smoke was superseded by the pipe smoke of the great school of Emerson, Hawthorne and Thoreau. Walden Pond, where Thoreau went back to Nature, is a bit out to the west. The homes of the others — Hawthorne's with its tower, Emerson's Old Manse, the Alcott House,home of Little Women and of dreamy philosophers— are all close together in the town, and their graves in the Sleepy Hollow Cemetery. The village is drenched in history; the visitor would be hard put to it to avoid seeing what he ought. There are the Old North Bridge that arched the flood, with French's Minute Men monument; the graves of the English dead; the Unitarian Church on the site of that in which the first Provincial Congress met in 1774 and elected John Hancock president, and from which the funerals of Hawthorne, Emerson and Thoreau were held; the home of Ephraim Bull, who originated the Concord grape, and part of the original vine.

The attractive capital of New Hampshire lies on the Merrimac River, which gave power to the mills round which the city grew up. The State House and the State Library are very handsome.

The quarries on Rattlesnake Hill furnished the granite for the Congressional Library. St. Paul's Episcopal School for Boys—one of the great private schools of the country—is located here, and in the school year visitors can watch youthful students consume the famous cheese jiggers. On Warren Street, two miles out, is the extensive estate of the late Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder of Christian Science.

Coney Island is best reached from Manhattan via the Manhattan Bridge (Canal Street) and Brooklyn.

Coney Island, like good wine, needs no bush. If the stranger will just conjure up a picture of Nantasket Beach, Cape Cottage, Asbury Park, or any of the many other famous shore resorts, and magnify that picture to the extent of his imagination, he will get some approximation of the father of them all. But he will have to go there to be convinced. (See Route 368.)

Those who desire to speed up a bit may do so over the Motor Parkway, a private speedway forty-odd miles long, by paying one dollar for a day's ticket.

Crawford Notch, New Hampshire, doubtless enjoys the distinction of being the most historical centre of the northern New Hampshire White Mountains district.

One hundred and fifty years ago the first white men, Timothy Nash and a fellow trapper, Sawyer, came through the Notch from the direction of Portland, and it is interesting to note that another cycle of fifty years passed which brought the section to the regime of Tom and Abel Crawford.

These two mountaineers one hundred years ago spotted the trail which is now in such universal use from the Crawford House property, over the Presidential Range, to the summit of Mt. Washington.

Another cycle of fifty years brings the section to the coming in of Asa F. and Oscar F. Barron, who began at that time the development of the resort business in the White Mountains. Their descendants today, The Barron Hotel Company, continue in the ownership and the operation of the Crawford Notch property. The whole area of Crawford Notch covers the valley between Mt. Webster and Mt. Willey, a distance north and south of about 10 miles.

At the northern outlet of the Notch at the height of land is located the Crawford House property of about 1,000 acres.

The French from Canada founded this farming and resort town as a military bulwark against the British to the south. It had been, during the French and Indian War, a battle-ground for the French and British, and in Revolutionary days the British and Colonists fought over the same territory.

past is a question that must occur to the minds of all who see the village and read its history. Three disastrous Indian raids ravaged the town in 1675, 1677 and 1704, when young men, "the very flower of Essex County," were murdered, and many men, women and children carried away captives to Canada. Parson Williams, whose wife was tomahawked in Leyden Gorge and whose young daughter Eunice married an Indian, was redeemed after two years, and recounted the horrors of the long journey through the woods. All this seems only the memory of a story read in childhood in the face of the peace that Deerfield has attained. In Memorial Hall, which is the remodeled Deerfield Academy, is a museum with a large collection of Indian, Colonial and Revolutionary relics — weapons, spinning wheels, textiles, furniture, and utensils; and the great door mutilated by a tomahawk in 1704. The old burying ground contains the graves of the victims of the Sack of 1704. The recess in the rock face of Sugarloaf where King Philip sat watching the massacre of Bloody Brook, is known as Philip's Chair.

one of the men to whom Duxbury was allotted. Another was John Alden, youngest of the Pilgrims. The town was named from the fact that Standish, who was the military leader (dux) of the colony's army of twelve men, lived here. His home and the Alden house, both built in 1666, are still standing; and the men are buried here beside their families and Elder Brewster. On the top of Captain's Hill stands the Standish monument from which the visitor can see the old village and its harbor, Plymouth, the Kingston Forest, Manomet Hill, and the Blue Hills.

Ⓗ Roycroft Inn
465 Buffalo, N. Y.—Dansville, N. Y.

Since the Spanish-American War and the publication of a small story called A Message to Garcia, East Aurora has attracted more attention than is usual for a village of its size. Elbert Hubbard, author of the story and of many pithy sayings, established here the now famous Roycroft Shops, in which are practised all manner of handicrafts. Books are bound, furniture is carved, leather is tooled, copper and brasses are designed to delight the eye—all not for gain alone, but with joy in the work. The shops hark back to Renaissance times when Bishops ordered their tombs with an eye to beauty, and Cellinis left their gold work for no more trivial matter than murder; and less faintly to William Morris's experiments in England. "Fra Elbertus" went down with the Lusitania, but his spirit is perpetuated in the shops, and in the hospitality and charm of the comfortable Roycroft Inn, whose rooms are named for artists.

THE ROYCROFT INN is known to thousands and is to them the best beloved hotel in America. It is a place where congenial spirits foregather; where friendships are formed and grow.
From the round world over eminent people have made little journeys to enjoy the hospitality and the atmosphere of Roycroft.
Today The Roycroft Inn is carried on by Elbert Hubbard II, and in point of good-cheer, comfort and comity, its reputation is maintained. The Roycroft Inn is always open and ever ready to cater to the wishes of its guests. Whether you come for a meal, for over night, for a week-end, or for a longer stay, you will find the same friendly welcome—the same kindly humor and good-cheer.

The name Northfield instantly connotes the great Evangelist, Dwight L. Moody, who in 1879 founded the great school for girls, the Northfield Seminary, and also Mount Hermon School for boys and young men a few miles across the Connecticut.

Each summer some ten thousand people attend the Northfield Conference.

The late Ira D. Sankey, who played Sullivan to Dr. Moody's Gilbert, together with the Evangelist wrote hymns and sacred songs sung wherever the English tongue penetrates.

Essex County seat, right in the lap of the mountains. In the County Court House is a large painting by David C. Lithgow depicting the abolitionist, John Brown, on trial for his life. After his condemnation and execution in 1859 his body was brought back to near Lake Placid for burial and en route was detained at Elizabethtown; it lay in state overnight in this Court House within a few feet of where the imposing picture now hangs.

The largest tanners and shoe makers in the world—the Endicott - Johnson Corporation — founded this city for their factories and workers, and to their honor it has come to be known as the "Home of the Square Deal." Millions of pairs of shoes are made here by employees who work very happily in the vast model factories. They have their homes, medical service, playgrounds, summer and winter sports, old age pensions, insurance, and cheap lunches; and as recompense the corporation has faithful workers and no strikes.

This city, which is famous nowadays for manufacturing, fishing, railroading and lake shipping business, was once the little French village of Presque Isle, founded in 1753 by military order.

The U. S. training ship, Wolverine, was built in Erie in 1844, and is the oldest iron ship in the world. A monument marks the site of the building of Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry's fleet, which defeated the British in the War of 1812.

Daniel Chester French, the sculptor, Elizabeth Gardner Bouguereau, artist, Judge Henry Shute, author of The Real Diary of a Real Boy, were reared here. Folsom Tavern in the Square, where Washington breakfasted in 1789, and the colonial houses on the whimsical streets, will charm all visitors; but the pièce de résistance, the thing that makes Exeter elms and houses and residents carry themselves a little grandly, is Phillips Exeter Academy, founded in 1783. Daniel Webster was once a student, as was Lincoln's son Tad.

Across the Acushnet River from New Bedford, Fairhaven was founded in 1812, but before that was the site of the revolutionary Fort Phoenix, which may still be seen. The town manufactures jacks, loom cranks, toilet powder and mushroom anchors. Henry H. Rogers, one of the heads of the Standard Oil Company, was born here, as was Herbert Jenney, who originated steel construction for office buildings. Among other gifts to his native town, a church and an inn testify to H. H. Rogers' public spirit.

Fall River is internationally known for its cotton manufacturing; the factories along the Quequechan River weave over 2,000 miles of cloth daily. Of more immediate appeal to the visitor's eye is the Rolling Rock, a boulder of 140 tons, exquisitely balanced on a ledge of granite.

Large and luxurious steamers connect Fall River and New York with a daily service.

Fishkill remains more Dutch than many other New York towns by reason of patroon estates that still exist. Brinckerhoff Manor, which Washington and Lafayette used as headquarters at the time of the engagement at the foot of the nearby mountains, is only one of many historical sights. There are the Dutch Reformed Church, used as a prison, and the Episcopal Church, made into a hospital in the Revolution; the Wharton House, about which Cooper wrote "The Spy"; and the site of the gallows where rebels were hung by the British.

Founded in 1853, this town was an army post during the Civil War. At present citrus and vegetable farms have displaced its military importance. Many wealthy men have winter homes here. Henry Ford and Thomas Edison among them. First Street is the only street in Florida with eight miles of royal palms. Throughout the town are one-hundred-and-four varieties of palms, banana and other tropical trees, seen in no other place in the State.

601 Washington, D. C.—Fredericksburg
602 Fredericksburg—Richmond, Va.

Captain John Smith came to the present site of Fredericksburg in 1608, one year after the founding of Jamestown. In 1671 the settlement was recognized by "The Grande Assemblie at James Cittie," and grew in prosperity from that time until the Civil War, when it was the scene of two battles and a heavy bombardment. Within a twelve-mile radius to the west were fought the battles of Chancellorsville, where Stonewall Jackson fell; the Wilderness, Todds Tavern, Spotsylvania Court House. And others of less severity. More men were killed and wounded in this area than in any other in the world up to that time. At present the town is chiefly interesting for its historical sights: the home of Mary Washington, mother of George; those of President James Monroe, of Matthew Fontaine Maury, the geographer whose work made possible the laying of the Atlantic cable, and of Betty Washington Lewis, only sister of George Washington; the Masonic Lodge in which Washington and Lafayette held degrees; the Slave Block at the corner of Charles and Commerce streets; St. George's Church, where the Rev. Patrick Henry, uncle of the patriot orator, was first rector; Washington Farm, where the General was reared; Chatham, the Custis home, in which Washington and Lafayette were guests and where Robert E. Lee wooed Nellie Custis, the lovely great-granddaughter of Washington's wife.

The great national shrine. The martyred President's deathless address should alone be enough to urge the motorist to visit this great battlefield of the Civil War. It is possible that no other in the world is so completely marked, monumented and marked as Gettysburg. Guides may be hired at any of the hotels or garages to lead one (in one's own car) past all the sights of the extensive field of battle.

The fame of 300-year-old Gloucester rests on her fisheries, in which industry more lives were lost than war would take away, and the joy of the natives at a ship's home-coming was haunted by the fear of seeing her flag at half-mast. Latterly there have been changes. Street cars, electric lights, and modern houses have come, but the visitor has no need to regret the past. For there are old houses still: "Revolutionary House" in Middle Street; the Rogers and Chandler houses in the same street, both built before 1775; the Sawyer Library Building, erected in 1764; and at West Gloucester the old Tavern, the Ellery House with a second story overhang and the Stanwood House. The streets still go their whimsical ways up hill and around weathered buildings and out into the light again; the harbor is as full of ships, perhaps less tall and splendid than those of the past, but still brine-soaked with distant seas; nets lie drying in the sun on the long wharves; and modernity has done nothing to the smell of mackerel and cod. The visitor may see as well the Portuguese sailors' church, dedicated to the Virgin Mary; the old Universalist Church; Norman's Woe, where the Hesperus was wrecked, as Longfellow tells us; Rafe's Chasm; Thatcher's Island with its two slender lights; the peninsula that is East Gloucester, where Elizabeth Stuart Phelps lived and Lucy Larcom wrote of the wild roses that grow in mad profusion; the view down the coast from Eastern Point to Plymouth; the fish hatchery on Ten Pound Island. On the modern side one may admire the equestrian statue of Jeanne d'Arc in the square in front of the American Legion house.

In spite of Great Barrington's vacuum bottle, bedspread, and paper factories, and its large agricultural, dairy and lumber business, the city remains more residential than industrial, for even Big Business cannot outdo the beauty of the Berkshires. William Cullen Bryant, poet, author and editor, was born here in a house now included in the grounds of the Berkshire Inn, and in his poems has celebrated Monument Mountain and the meadowy country round about.

One used to say of this pretty town on the Green River, not far from the union of the Deerfield and Connecticut Rivers, that it was a summer resort. Nowadays one adds winter resort, for, while the snow is on, many visitors come here for tobogganing, snowshoeing and the other winter sports. But the town has other pursuits than recreation — the Greenfield Tap and Die Corporation is one of the largest producers of its kind in the country, and the Rugg Manufacturing Company turns out many thousands of rakes, snow shovels, etc. The scenery round about is very lovely—Turners Falls, a miniature Niagara, is four or five miles Greenwich was settled in 1640; in 1644 saw an all-day battle between the Dutch and Indians on Strickland Plain; in 1650 was designated as the western limit of Connecticut; was raided by Tryon in 1779 when General Putnam, in command of sixty Continentals, rode his horse down the steps built in the sharp hillside for church people, and so escaped, costing the English his life and thirty-eight of their men when he attacked their rearguard next day. Nowadays Greenwich is a town of millionaire commuters to New York, whose beautiful estates cover the hills and whose trim boats brighten the bay.

At the head of the Shenandoah Valley, Hagerstown is a most important route-centre. The town did not have much association with events of the colonial period, but the valley, including Hagerstown, was the scene of the march of General Braddock and his army. During the Civil War several important battles took place nearby: South Mountain, ten miles south; Antietam, twelve miles southwest; Gettysburg, twenty-five miles northeast. There are many beautiful trips through the Cumberland Valley to the battle fields mentioned above, to Boonsboro, ten miles south, where in 1827 was erected the first monument in this country to the memory of General Washington, and to Pen Mar, sixteen miles northeast, from which the view of the valley is unsurpassed.

The capital and principal seaport of the Province owes its settlement (in the 18th century) to the suggestion of the American colonists that England seize and fortify this strategic site. Still the stronghold of His Majesty's Navy in America, Halifax is now much more a commercial port, with steamship connections to many lands.

Hamilton is the home of Colgate University, which was founded as Madison University in 1819, and later changed to Colgate University in honor of James B. Colgate of New York City, a benefactor. The property on which the University stands was given by Elisha Payne, who with his brother Samuel in 1794 bought large tracts of land in what is now the village of Hamilton. The region was originally known as the Payne Settlement, and was changed to Hamilton in honor of Alexander Hamilton, who was greatly admired by Elisha Payne, great-grandfather of Harry Payne Whitney and Payne Whitney. The school which Rev. Eleazar Wheelock opened in his home at Lebanon, Conn., in 1754, for the education of young Indians, was the germ of Dartmouth College. The site was moved to Hanover in 1769 and the school widened to provide for a greater proportion of English youth. The name was got from the Earl of Dartmouth in England, as were funds for the maintenance of the school. The first class, graduated in 1771, had four members, and the occasion was assisted by the Governor of the Province of New Hampshire and a company of men from Portsmouth, who made their way through almost trackless forests — a curious contrast to present-day commencements. Besides being an institution of learning, the college is host to thousands of guests at the winter carnival. The ski jump is 105 feet high, hills afford breath-snatching toboggan slides, and snow-shoeing and skating are there for all who enjoy them. Philander Chase, Rufus Choate, Levi Woodbury, George Ticknor, Redfield Proctor were Dartmouth men, as was Daniel Webster, who said of the college, "It is a small college, but there are those who love it."

Hartford is best known now as the home of firearms and insurance. It was first settled in 1614 by Dutch explorers, who established a trading house in 1623. Thirteen years later, sixty men from the Massachusetts Bay Colony, driving their swine and cattle before them, founded the nucleus of the present State capital. In the fall of 1687 Sir Edmund Andros, who came to take away the Colonists' charter, was outwitted by Captain Joseph Wadsworth, who during the conference blew out the candles, lifted the charter from the table and hid it in the hollow of an oak. A monument marks the site of the tree, which was blown down in 1856. The constitution which the freemen of Hartford, Windsor and Wethersfield adopted was the first written document of the kind in the United States and became a basis for the Federal Constitution. Hartford was liberal with men and money in the Civil War, and gave besides the Secretary of the Navy, Gideon Welles, to Lincoln's cabinet. The city offers other sights than the buildings of the Insurance Companies: the old Bulfinch State House, where Lafayette was entertained n 1825; the finest rose garden in the world in Elizabeth Park, Trinity College, the new State Capitol and J. Pierpont Morgan's memorial to his father at 590 Main Street. The homes of a number of great or gracious

HARTFORD

Americans are here — that of Mark Twain, with its fence on which the famous notice to the burglar appeared one early morning; those of Harriet Beecher Stowe, Charles Dudley Warner, Edmund Clarence Stedman, Rose Terry Cooke. The thirty-one insurance companies comprise the city's biggest business, but in addition there is the largest typewriter plant in the world, the Underwood Typewriter Co., and the Colt's Patent Fire Arms Manufacturing Company.

On Lake Cayuga, the largest of the Finger Lakes, Ithaca was a favorite place of the Indians before white men drove them away. The gorges, ravines, and waterfalls near the city are as picturesque as those in the far west — the most famous of the last, Taughannock Falls, are fifty feet higher than Niagara. The city has a busy industrial life with large shipments of cement and salt, and the manufacture of shotguns, drive-chains, adding and calculating machines, advertising signs, clothing, furniture, and Thomas Morse airplanes. The flying field used by the Thomas-Morse Aircraft Corporation for testing planes, and by both commercial and government fliers, was the location of one of the government ground schools during the war. Better than for any other one feature, Ithaca is known as the home of Cornell University, whose campus is commonly recognized as the most beautiful in America. Situated on a hill overlooking Cayuga Lake and the city on its shore, the grounds of Cornell have not broidered with the legends of Spanish Ponce de Leon, who sought there the fountain of youth, and with sunshiny days, the green water, and the spicy and colorful fruits and flowers of the South. Jacksonville has all this adornment, but her body underneath is a substantial one, that has grown in poise and solidity with the years and retained youthfulness when youth is gone. Her industries in lumber, shipping, shipbuilding, cigars, etc., assure her wealth. She is the leading naval stores market of the world. Every summer and winter pleasure—and because of the equable climate they are much the same—is offered the visitor. He may fish for tarpon or lesser catches; he may bathe or motor on the twenty miles of beach; he may golf any day in the year — or visit the quaint cities of St. Augustine or Fernandina; seek eternal youth in Green Cove Springs; hunt or house-boat down the Suwanee River; or buy in smart shops—as his fancy wills.

LANCASTER

Lancaster was named for the English city, and its emblem is the red rose of the house of Lancaster. It was the largest inland city of the thirteen colonies, was the capital of those colonies when the Continental Congress fled from Philadelphia, and for several years the State capital. It has had many famous citizens: Robert Fulton, inventor of the steamboat; Benjamin West, whose paintings hang alongside Reynolds in the National Gallery; Thaddeus Stevens, war-time statesman and Congressman; James Buchanan, one-time president of the United States; Barbara Frietchie; Thomas W. Evans, who practised dentistry and diplomacy at the court of Napoleon III., assisted Eugénie in her escape to England and later left money for the great school of dentistry in Philadelphia; Peggy Shippen, who married Benedict Arnold; Rebecca Gratz, friend of Scott and prototype of Rebecca in Ivanhoe; Lindley Murray, the country's great grammarian; George Ross, signer of the Declaration of Independence and friend of Franklin—all these and more add to Lancaster's pride. The city manufactures linoleum, matches, cigars, toys, silk, cotton goods, umbrellas, candy, ball bearings, rivets, padlocks and a dozen other things. The visitor may see the home of James Buchanan at the city limits, and his grave, as well as Thaddeus Stevens' in the cemetery.

Lexington is essentially a residential town. No more inspiring scene may be found anywhere in New England than the majestic setting of Lexington Green, skirted across broad avenues by imposing homes of Colonial structure and of historic importance. It was on the Green that seven Minute Men fell on that nineteenth of April, 1775.

Among the interesting houses in the vicinity is the Hancock-Clarke House, the terminal of Paul Revere's ride, for it was there that John Hancock and Samuel Adams, with prices on their heads, were sleeping. Revere's warning enabled them to escape. The house is now the headquarters of the Lexington Historical Society and is only one of several Lexington museums which contain interesting historical and Colonial relics.

This attractive little city owes its being to the falls of the Mohawk River. The locking devices of the N. Y. State Barge Canal (Erie Canal) here are very interesting. Before railroads were built and the West opened, Little Falls was on the northern migratory route through the Mohawk River Valley and the south shore of Lake Erie. This made the town an important point for packing merchandise for the Indian trade, and for the entertainment of emigrants to the West. Nowadays railroad tracks cross the gateway, and the city sees extensive com-

Long Island, N. Y.

Maps 368 and 369 aim to show Long Island, with its galaxy of towns and resorts, in its true proportions, with the main trunk line highways in red (as well as a few outstanding cross - connections) and optional routes in heavy brown. It should be borne in mind that the western end of this populous territory is politically part of New York City (Boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens), whose streets are for the most part paved; the map makes no attempt to show all of these, but only such as compose the best highways from place to place.

The South Shore road, from Jamaica to Amagansett, is perfect all the way—mostly broad concrete. Thence to Montauk Point (as picturesque a drive as one may find) good gravel. The North Shore drive is mostly macadam, with some stretches of gravel east of Port Jefferson; between there and Flushing it is all macadam or concrete. These two roads, with their connecting link across Shelter Island, comprise the justly popular "Sunrise Trail."

Beyond the city limits—i. e., east of Flushing, Jamaica and Coney Island—the South Shore is practically one constant chain of settlements, spaced wider apart as one continues east. For sixty miles they are separated from the ocean by sandy keys. The towns from Amityville to Quogue are great favorites as summer residences with New Yorkers and Brooklynites. The "Hamptons," especially Southampton, extremely smart, are situated directly on the Atlantic.

LONG ISLAND

The North Shore differs from the South as chalk does from cheese. Being on the calmer waters of the Sound, it is not so much sought out by summer-colonists; but, westward of Port Jefferson, is rapidly filling up with all - year - round suburban residences. The hilly ground of some of the peninsulas enclosed by its deep bays is divided into great estates of wealthy New Yorkers—some of them as elaborate as may be found anywhere. "Sagamore Hill" at Oyster Bay, the home of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, and where he lies buried, is daily the goal of pilgrims from all over who worship at this great American's shrine.

A very few of the myriad points of interest: Mineola Flying Field; Belmont Race Track (New York's most beautiful track); Piping Rock Country Club; Shinnecock Hills Golf Club —any or all of which should prove worth a visit.

Founded 1823, and named for Nathaniel Macon, patriot and statesman, the "Rose City of the South" was the home of the poet, Sidney Lanier. It was the site of a Confederate arsenal and captured during the Civil War by General Wilson's army. Wesleyan College (chartered 1836) is the oldest women's college in the world; Mercer University was founded three years before.

De Soto discovered the site of Macon in 1540, and here occurred the first baptism in North America (same year). Macon is essentially a city of homes, many of which reflect the best antebellum taste in architecture. The 167 industries turn out 508 different manufactured articles.

Most of all, Macon is famous as the centre of the Georgia

In the year 1810, when the Amoskeag Cotton and Wool Manufactory was organized, there were 615 in the population. Now the city has nearly 80,000 and there are thirty sorts of industry besides the Amoskeag Cotton Mill, with the largest floor space under one roof in the world, and a daily output of 350 miles of cloth. Brushes, cigars and shoes are the largest industries, besides cotton.

Manchester is a summer residential village whose beauty has drawn many famous visitors—Mrs. Abraham Lincoln, Robert T. Lincoln, only surviving son of the late President, and many others. The country about is very lovely, Equinox Mountain and Peru Mountain being perhaps the most outstanding features. The Ekwanok golf links are nationally famous, and justly so, for in the opinion of many they outrank in sportiness almost every other inland links.

Whoever enters Old Marblehead comes close to the contrary love of adventure and of peace in the spirit of man. In all weathers the houses, set at odd angles on the winding lanes and twisting streets, look out serenely over the sea where for almost three hundred years their owners have sailed and fished and fought. The very air of the town breathes a story of come and gone. In the Abbott Hall there are the town offices, the library and Willard's picture of The Spirit of '76; but the spirit of those and older times is abroad in the town—in Fort Sewall, with its underground dungeon built before the Revolution, on the Old Burial Hill where modern men can watch the sea and read at their feet the curious epitaphs of former watchers. St. Michael's Church (1714), the "Old Brig" or Moll Pitcher House, the home of that famous fortune-teller, the Lee mansion with its gracious staircase and carvings and pictured paper, and the Old Town House erected in 1727, all have their memories of the Revolution. It was Marblehead fishermen who carried Washington across the Delaware, and the first British flag was struck to a Marbleheader The cod-fishing of a hundred and fifty years ago has been laid aside, and the boats of the Corinthian and Eastern Yacht Clubs fleck the sea instead of the sterner fishing ships of the past. Artists and summer people are noisily appreciative, but the town is unspoiled. The brine of the salty storied years is a good preservative.

This large sandy island, lying four or five miles south of Cape Cod, at the mouth of Buzzards Bay, is exceedingly popular in the summertime with people from all over the country who have got to know it. There is a wealth of variety to the scenery, and the climate is very mild and equable. Motorists may reach "the Vineyard" by boat (four sailings daily) from New Bedford which stops en route at Woods Hole at the extreme southwest corner of the Cape. Sailing and bathing are the favorite sports, but golf and tennis are by no means neglected.

Million Dollar Causeway from Miami to Miami Beach, Florida

This city, on the site of an Indian village and of a United States fort, was established in 1896. It is a famous winter playground, but has, as well, extensive business in citrus fruit shipping, winter vegetables and tropical products, sugar making and moving pictures. The section is regarded as the world's future sugar bowl, since the soil of the Everglades is especially adapted to sugar cane growing. Among the winter residents were William Jennings Bryan, Glenn H. Curtiss, and Arthur Pryor, the bandmaster. The old Fort Dallas in Fort Dallas Park near the mouth of the Miami River; the James Deering estate at the southern edge of the city on Cocoanut Grove Highway; the Causeway, three and one-half miles long connecting Miami with the ocean beach; Biscayne Beach along the eastern front of the city, Point View, Royal Palm Park; the ancient Cape Florida lighthouse, twelve miles southeast on the reefs; and the Seminole Indian village on Miami River two miles west, are all interesting. The city is the southernmost mainland city in the country and the most tropical. More than a quarter of a million people come here each year, attracted by the equable climate, good golfing, polo fields, casinos, ocean beach, wonderful reaches of bay for speed boat racing and sailing, and the Gulf Stream and reefs along the shore which afford excellent fishing. In the neighborhood are 700 miles of good motor highways. Miami is connected by boat with Nassau in the Bahamas, not many miles off the coast. Also with Havana, Cuba; and of course with New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

A new and beautiful race track was opened to the public at Hialeah in 1924 which attracts the best horses in the country.

Sucked up from the sea, this island is one of the most attractive places in the South. It owes its existence to the foresight and ambition of Mr. Carl Fisher, who, in but a few years, has done what seems to have been the impossible. It boasts of some of Florida's finest hotels and as many golf courses.

When Jacques Cartier visited the Indian village of Hochelaga in 1535 and climbed the hill behind it, his admiration of the view suggested the name Mont Royal. Champlain came here in 1603, and after his visit a group of Frenchmen established a settlement. After the War of 1812, business began to increase, grew faster still after the contruction of railroads and today Montreal is the financial, industrial and commercial leader of Canada.

The terminals of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways are here, and half a dozen other lines enter the city.

Montreal's business life has not decreased her loveliness. On the Place d'Armes, at the center of the city, is the twin-towered façade of the Church of Notre Dame. The architecture is not particularly good, nor the interior inspiring; but from the roof the climber may obtain a wide view of the city, the river and its islands. Next the church stands the new seminary of St. Sulpice on the site of the original one. To the east is the quiet convent of the Black Nuns, and the Court House with its Parade Ground. For the lover of the curious there is the Bonsecours Market with its vivid activity on market days. The Bonsecours Church dates from 1658. Other places to be seen in this vicinity are Trinity Episcopal Church, and Papineau Square and Market. Going down McGill Street from Victoria Square, one comes to the Dominion and Cathedral Buildings, St. Ann's Market on the site of the Parliament House which was burned by the mob which attacked the Earl of Elgin when he signed the Rebellion Bill. On Bleury Street, north of the square, is St. Mary's Jesuit College and the Church of the Gesu with an extremely elaborate interior. Christ Church Cathedral, to the west on St. Catherine Street, is a large church in the English Gothic manner. St. James', on Dominion Square, is St. Peter's at Rome on a smaller scale. To the north is McGill University, which was founded in 1814. From the buildings on Mount Royal one may get a long view of the city and river below. Further to the west is the Gray Nunnery. On Notre Dame Street stands the Château de Ramezay, built in 1705.

The largest body of fresh water in the Pine Tree State. There are as yet no motor roads around the shores of the lake, but a steamer plies to Kineo and beyond. The scenery throughout is grand, and the fishing likewise. Besides the Mt. Kineo House there are numerous other hotels on Moosehead, also many camps, private and public. In the open season the hunting in the surrounding woods is of the best. Moose, deer, and even caribou abound in the woods; bass, lake-trout and other finny game reward the fisherman. The Kennebec flows out of the lake, the Penobscot out of Chesuncook; they and their tributaries offer marvelous canoe-trips. Mount Katahdin, off to the northeast—Maine's highest peak

Just 210 years old, this enticing suburb of New York was thrice the headquarters of Gen. Washington (1777, 1779 and 1780). The handsome Headquarters House at Morris and Washington Avenues is now a museum, second only to Mount Vernon in importance of Revolutionary relics. The telegraph was born on Speedwell Avenue. Frank Stockton, Brete Harte and Thomas Nast (cartoonist) lived in Morristown. The excellent Morristown School is sumptuously housed a mile or so out Whippany Road. In the tower of St. Peter's Church hangs the largest carillon (35 bells) in the United States. Seven important highways—all well-paved—radiate from Morristown in as many directions.

The quaintest of islands 25 miles off shore reached by boat from New Bedford or Woods Hole.

The island of Nantucket, about fifteen miles long and four wide, is a wind-swept moor with a few ponds. Early settlers bought it from its Indian owners for a few dollars and a couple of beaver hats and established a town which came to be known the world over as the home-port of the finest whaling vessels that sailed the seven seas. It was from Nantucket that Ishmael, the hero of Moby Dick, boarded the Pequot. With the decline of that industry many of the fishermen moved away to settle other towns, and Nantucket gradually became what it is today—a quaint old village inhabited by sturdy fisher folk and visited annually by hundreds of summer tourists, who buy antiques, admire the quaint old houses on the steep cobbled streets, and make sketches of them and of the old windmill that was in constant use from 1746 to 1892.

Delightful and justly popular lake resort in the lower hills. Long Lake is a most canoesome body of water, at whose southwestern extremity Songo River flows into Sebago Lake; the river, only a few miles long, is very picturesque, especially at the drawbridge and at Songo Lock, and makes special appeal to the canoeist.

The popularity of Narragansett Pier as a summer resort began in 1856 when a Philadelphia family who had summered here brought several friends. Year by year the numbers increased, hotels were built, and today the place, though less high-falutin' than Newport, is of the same sort. Beyond the rocks below the pier stretches a long beach, which in summer is thick with bathers. The tourist will be shown Castle and Indian Rocks, White Lake, Willow Dell and Little Comfort Beach. Three miles away on the heights one may see far out over the Ocean and the Bay to Newport, Point Judith, etc. Some members of the Perry family of naval fame, and Gilbert Stuart, the portrait painter, were born nearby. The decaying wharves of Newburyport are all that remains of former shipbuilding and flourishing West Indian trade. Privateers that preyed on British commerce were built here during the wars of 1775 and 1812. Nowadays the city is principally residential, but in spite of that and of its age—for it was founded in 1637—it is active in the making of shoes, silverware and cotton products. The birthplace of William Lloyd Garrison and the home of Tristam Dalton, the first U. S. Senator from Massachusetts, are here. High Street, which is four or five miles long, has fine trees and colonial houses, and the Old South Church is worth a visit. Deer Park Lodge, the residence of Harriet Prescott Spofford, and the low-posted Wolfe Tavern of mellowed red brick are both of interest; likewise the mansion and garden of Lord Timothy Dexter.

Founded by Pilgrims from Boston in 1638, New Haven was long noted for the sturdy spirit of its townsmen. Their independent spirit was shown by their harboring, in Governors' Cave, three regicide judges demanded by Charles II. The shipping, that had been the principal business of the town, declined during the War of 1812, but its loss was more than recompensed by the increase in manufacturing. One of the city's best introductions to the minds of visitors is its resident university, Yale. Elis, as the students are called, come from all over the world. The university has many sights for the visitor: Nathan Hale's room in Connecticut Hall, the Harkness Tower and Memorial Quadrangle, regarded as the finest college group in America, the School of Art with the Jarvis Collection of Formerly a whaling town, New London is now a bustling manufacturing city with silk mills, machine shops, ship yards, and many sorts of factories. A U. S. submarine base is located here. Traces of ancient battle and burial grounds of Indians running back more than a thousand years are found near the old Revolutionary Fort Trumbull; and of more modern—though still old times according to human notions—are the Nathan Hale School House (built in 1774), the Shaw Colonial Mansion, used as

Cotton Mather called Newport "the common receptacle of the convicts of Jerusalem and the outcasts of the land." So it was for long years, but the bread it cast upon the waters has returned to it enriched and thick with frosting, and the receptacle of outcasts has become the playground of millionaires. Any reader of the daily press is familiar with Newport's character—its past is obscured by present glory. The town was founded by Nicholas Easton and his two sons from Massachusetts, and soon grew to be sturdy and prosperous. It had a regular line of vessels running to London, and resident trade in cotton and woolen goods, candles, sperm oil, refined sugar, sea food and farm produce. So prosperous and important did the town become that in 1712 some youth, on his first visit to New York, wrote to his family that the town on the Hudson was growing so fast it would some day outpass Newport! Newporters participated in several acts of rebellion before the war, and the excessive zeal of Rhode Island troops caused Washington to remark that they gave him more trouble than any other men in his army; to which their commander, Col. Olney, replied, "That is precisely what the enemy says." Newport alone had 4,000 men in the early American Navy. The British fleet with 10,000 men was quartered in the town in 1776 and spared only Trinity Church because it wore, as it does today, a crown on its steeple. The battle of Rhode Island took place here in 1778, and the severity of the winter forced the British troops to cut all the timber available. When Newport was evacuated in 1779 it was almost in ruins; only the mysterious "Old Stone Mill," whose origin is unknown, withstood the desecration. Rochambeau occupied the town and entertained Washington at his headquarters. Besides more numerous historical relics than one can list in so limited a space, Newport affords the visitor the sight of Bailey's Beach where society splashes, Cliff Walk past America's most magnificent summer homes, and Ocean Drive (cf. Route 123) by Hazard's Beach, Gooseberry Island, Grave's Point, the site of the country's most exclusive fishing club; Castle Hill, Fort Adams and Brenton's Cove. To Newport that hath so much gaiety has been given a Naval Training and Torpedo Station, and uniforms and the cheer of the service add to civilian life.

A ferry, with frequent boats (half-hourly in season), plies to Jamestown, on Conanicut Island in the middle of the bay, connecting there with another ferry to Saunderstown; thus giving easy access to Newport from the Atlantic Highway to and from New York. In the very height of the season it would be wise to arrive at the ferry dock about fifteen minutes before sailing time, so as to be sure of a place on board.

1691 after the fall of La Rochelle, named the settlement they made for their former home. Only one of the original houses remains, on North Avenue, but the sites of the church, tavern and school may be visited. The old post road from New York to Boston passed through here, and from its opening in 1672 until the building of the new one, all the travel to and from New England went over it. General Washington journeyed over it to take his command at Cambridge. Continental mail was carried by this route. It is not out of place here to say a word about New York as a summer resort. More and more each year people flock to the Metropolis during June, July, August and September, and return home enthusiastic about its climate, its gaiety and its hospitality. There was a day when the city labored under spells of torrid heat—none of long duration, but uncomfortable withal. Now all has changed. The unequaled mass of tall buildings not only induce a constant draught of relatively cool air, but their lengthy shadows prevent the sun from raising the street-level temperatures to anything like their former levels.

Best of all, however, is the change in the life and habits of the New Yorker and its effect on the visitor. There being little if any discomfort during the heated term, many of the best theatres keep open all summer; moving-picture houses, restaurants and cabarets cater to capacity crowds, the only difference being that the percentage of visitors is greater than in winter. All the delights of the numerous shore-resorts are at the disposition of the stranger, especially if he has his car to carry him to and fro. The hotels, also, are somewhat less congested than in winter, and many of them make special rates for out-of-town guests.

Not everyone who has visited New York realizes what a wealth of beautiful country lies right at its doors. Westchester County, adjoining the city on the north, is all hills and lakes—many of the latter artificial—links in New York's great water-supply system. Kensico Dam, only 27 miles from Columbus Circle, is one of the largest and handsomest in the whole country (See Route 9). To the east lies Long Island, between Sound and Sea, with a wealth of scenery hard to equal. The New Jersey suburbs across the Hudson have their appeal, and farther up that noble stream one may revel in Bear Mountain Interstate Park and matchless West Point at the grandest stretch of river-and-hill scenery imaginable. Lastly the sport-lover will find every kind of amusement ready to hand: Baseball daily (at Polo Grounds, Yankee Park or Ebbets Field); golf at Van Cortlandt, Pelham Bay or other parks; bathing at Coney Island, Long Beach, Midland Beach (Staten Island), or a host of other beaches; horse-racing at one of the several beautiful tracks close to town; and everything easily accessible over smooth city pavements or hard State roads.

We shall confine our endeavors to an exposition of what to see and how best to see it.

New York to most people connotes Manhattan Island—an insignificant area bounded by three rivers and the Harbor. The approaches from the west and south are by ferry. From the north and east one enters via bridges over the Harlem or East Rivers.

Manhattan may roughly be divided into three parts; up-town, the hotel district, and down-town. "Up-town" here denotes the section of the island north of 59th Street, including Central Park and the Riverside Drive.

We may here suggest that for strangers all sight-seeing from their own cars be done "up-town." There are few one-way streets to watch out for, and less congestion of traffic. In the hotel district one must constantly be on the "qui vive" for one-way and other traffic regulations, but they are for the most part logical and well-posted. Bear in mind that in a general way even-numbered streets (30th, 32nd, etc,) are eastbound, odd-numbered westbound. 59th, 57th, 42nd, 34th, 23rd and 14th are two-way thoroughfares. So are all avenues, except Central Park West (southbound). Caution to obey light-signals on the avenues. These flash from towers, green for "Go"; red for "Stop."

Except when driving to South Ferry for Staten Island, or to Brooklyn for Coney Island, do not attempt to drive your car down-town. The district is so small, the traffic so congested, that the nervous strain will be tremendous, and no pleasure derived from the trip whatever. Points of interest down-town can best be seen afoot.

WHAT TO SEE UP-TOWN

Van Cortlandt Mansion, Van Cortlandt Park. Pre-revolutionary house, big with history.

Poe Cottage, Grand Boulevard and Concourse. Here the poet lived for three years.

Zoological Garden, Pelham Parkway. The greatest Zoo in the world.

The greatest natural wonder in the East. Here, only 20 miles from Buffalo, the waters of Lake Erie fall 161 feet over the rocks into a narrow gorge, to seethe through the Whirlpool and eventually flow into Lake Ontario. Goat Island divides the river at the brink, so that the stream forms the American and the Horseshoe (Canadian) Falls.

The recent history of this city is that of its sister across the river. Victoria Park is well kept and most attractive, affording the best view of the Horseshoe Falls. Upstream are several large power stations, all in good taste architecturally — one of them a decided ornament even in such a splendid setting. The trolley ride down the Gorge to the Whirlpool should not be missed, nor, in fact, any of the enterprises which have to do with views of the Falls.

To the present-day visitor in Northfield, the turbulent times of Indian raids seem very remote, but from 1673, when the place was settled, until 1712, when the building of Fort Dummer gave assurance of safety, the townsfolk were harassed by hostilities of the red men. Dwight L. Moody, the evangelist, was a native and established the well-known Mt. Hermon School for Boys' and the Seminary for Girls, in whose buildings conferences are held each summer. Well-known literary and religious lecturers attract great numbers of people, who enjoy their schooling in the restful farming village overlooking the Connecticut River.

a delightful residential town. Hotels and boarding houses take care of transients, who ought to make the trip through the orange groves to Silver Springs, six miles away. This is an underground river which at places breaks out of the ground to form a deep lake from which the Silver River flows to the Ocklawaha and through that to the St. John's. Glass-bottomed boats on the spring allow the visitors to see the remarkable mineral and floral formations eighty feet below the surface, as well as the odd fish.

Just south of Portland lies one of the world's finest and smoothest beaches. Its history dates back 300 years, but our interest is in the present. To-day it is popular with those who love surf-bathing, for its firm white sand, hard and smooth, lures the bare feet into the crystal-clear water, wholly free from undertow. There are 69 hotels and boarding-houses here, and a dancing pier and amusement park. Ocean Park, a suburb, is a Chautauqua founded by the Baptists. The Campground at Old Orchard provides religious awakening, and the Country Club offers nine holes to the devotee of the Ancient and Royal Game. All this but five miles from Saco and fourteen from Portland.

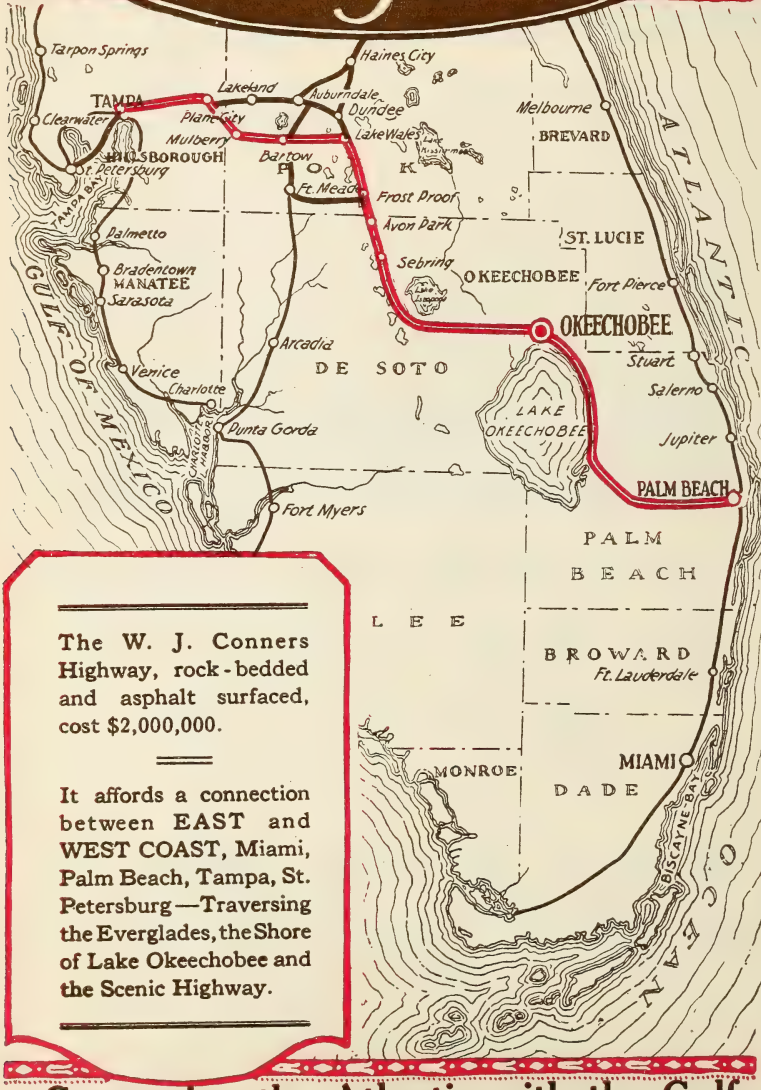
EAST and WEST COAST



The W. J. Conners Highway, rock-bedded and asphalt surfaced, cost $2,000,000.

It affords a connection between EAST and WEST COAST, Miami, Palm Beach, Tampa, St. Petersburg—Traversing the Everglades, the Shore of Lake Okeechobee and the Scenic Highway.

Connecting the Atlantic with the Gulf

PALM BEACH

With Miami Beach the only possible rival, Palm Beach is the greatest winter resort in the world. Here at the great hotels, which are palaces after a manner to please Aladdin, gather the social rulers of the country, and more than occasionally those of Europe. In the scheme of luxurious beauty nature has done her fair share, contributing a rich tropical riot of trees and flowers to the land to enhance the majesty of the Atlantic through which flows the blue Gulf Stream a mile off shore. In the natural gorgeousness of things man has built homes, hotels, roads, promenades, shops, and all other things for convenience and pleasure. Golf links, tennis courts, a shining beach, swimming pools—all the many opportunities for life's enjoyment, are here. Lake Worth, which sparkling stretch of water separates Palm Beach from West Palm Beach on the mainland, floats, yachts, motor boats, house boats of a daintiness and beauty

BEAR MOUNTAIN—HUDSON RIVER BRIDGE

THE only highway bridge across the Hudson south of Albany. Open normally twenty-four hours a day every day in the year.

It provides a direct east and west route to New England, and enables New York City to be reached without the use of ferries. Many traffic delays can be eliminated by use of it.

From the highway on the east side magnificent views of the Hudson are had. The trip over this highway, across the bridge and thence through West Point and over the Storm King Highway is one of the most attractive scenic rides in the United States.

The third city of the United States is indeed a place to visit. Historically only Boston can rival her. In Independence Hall the Declaration of Independence was signed, and the City of Brotherly Love also saw the framing of the Constitution. Ben Franklin, Boston-born, made Philadelphia his home, and so did the Continental Congress, except when driven out by the British during their occupation.

Now the city is largely industrial. A great ocean port and railroad center, Philadelphia builds ships, locomotives, steel products of all kinds—in fact about every industry is here represented.

The tourist will want to see Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell, the U. S. Mint, University of Pennsylvania, Fairmount Park, Valley Forge (surprisingly interesting), the Navy Yard (where some 150 destroyers are laid up for want of crews), and the lovely suburbs. Of these, some of the most attractive are "out the Main Line" (of the Pennsylvania), on Route 499. Most of the streets south of Ridge Avenue and east of the Schuylkill are one-way thoroughfares, except Broad and Market streets.

Note that during 1926 Broad Street will be torn up for subway construction, and, while open for traffic, will be highly congested. Till this work is completed, motorists to and from the north had best use Hunting Park Avenue between Roosevelt Circle and Fairmount Park East Drive; and if bound to or from the center of town, follow that drive and the Parkway. Though longer, this will save time and avoid annoying hold-ups.

The year 1926 marks the opening of the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition, celebrating the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. The Fair will be held in buildings erected near League Island Park, off South Broad Street.

1926 will also see the inauguration of the great Delaware River Bridge, a suspension span constructed jointly by the States of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and far and away the largest structure of its kind in the world. At the moment of going to press the two States have not yet agreed as to whether tolls will be charged or not.

wire manufacturing plant, the largest structural steel plant, the largest electrical manufacturing works, the largest radium and vanadium works, the largest photographic telescope, the largest warehouse, the largest cork plant, the largest aluminum production — Pittsburgh has all these largests besides a dozen others. It is famous the world round for its coal and steel output, and for the beautiful homes and buildings and streets built and blackened by that coal and that steel. Since 1794 when it had a population of 1,565 it has grown to be the ninth largest city. It adds antiquity to its virtues. Major George Washington visited the site in 1753, before the British had built a stockade at the Forks of the Ohio, and the French tore it down to build Fort Duquesne; which in turn the British took and replaced with Fort Pitt. The city was named (1758) by General John Forbes in honor of the English Prime Minister who was so friendly to the colonies. The Block House at the Forks is the oldest building in the city.

The industries of Pittsfield—textiles, General Electric Company, Eaton, Crane & Pike stationery, silk braids, and notably the paper used for U. S. currency and bonds—are out of mind when the traveler is enjoying the city. Broad streets, flanked by green lawns and great trees, summer homes and handsome public buildings. Oliver Wendell Holmes lived on Holmes Road, a mile and a half from the center of the city; Longfellow had a house on East Street, and the present country club, two miles out, was once the residence of Herman Melville, author, mystic and lover of the sea. The Museum of Natural History and Art is full of interesting and valuable things; the library is one of the best owned by any city of similar size.

Most people associate Plattsburg with its services to the country during the World War. Justly so, but its fame antedates Gen. Leonard Wood's outstanding feat of there converting young male citizens into efficient officers in the twinkling of an eye. In September, 1814, Commodore Thomas MacDonough, U. S. N., with a home-made fleet met and defeated the British fleet off Cumberland Head, just above Plattsburg, and thereby contributed largely to ending the War of 1812.

More, perhaps, than any other locality in America does Plymouth make appeal to the senses. Here, on a bleak December day in 1620, the Mayflower anchored, and that gallant company of 102 men, women and children proceeded to lay the foundations of a new civilization in a stern and forbidding country, teeming with hostile redskins and showing but scanty return for their herculean husbandry. But they stuck, with Pilgrim grit, weathering that first grim winter in spite of almost insurmountable obstacles.

One should tarry a while, inspect the Plymouth Rock under its columned canopy; the bronze figure of the friendly Wampa-

Poland Spring is one of the country's great resorts. Among the hills north of Portland, near several lakes, guests play golf or tennis or ride horseback through the hundreds of acres of well-kept grounds, and lead an outdoor life in comfort and luxury. In the winter the ski jumps and toboggan slides bring their own devotees. Poland Spring water is famous the country over.

PORTLAND

Portland is Maine's greatest city. It is located on a peninsula overlooking Casco Bay, an excellent landlocked harbor defended by four forts and enlivened by shipping and the gaiety of summer life on the islands. The city was settled in 1632, was called Casco Neck until Massachusetts, under whose domination it came in 1658, changed its name to Falmouth. Indians destroyed the place in 1676, Huguenots repeopled it in 1678, and in the same year was saved from another pillage by Major Church from the Plymouth Colony. But in 1690 the French and Indians took advantage of his absence and attacked the village, mined Fort Loyall, and carried the inhabitants who survived captive to Quebec. In 1775 the town, which had grown prosperous, was burned and cannonaded by the English, and in 1783 was again rebuilt. The Falmouth Gazette was started two years later to advocate the independence of Maine, and in 1786 the town of Portland was incorporated. After 1832, when it became a city, railway lines were constructed into the back country, and trade with Europe and the West Indies began in earnest. A fire in 1866 gave another setback, but since that time the city has grown steadily, and today has great public buildings, including the city hall with the splendid municipal organ, many fine residences and a flourishing industrial life. Its principal industries are shipping, lumbering, fisheries, canning and the manufacture of toilet preparations. The tourist will wish to see Longfellow's birthplace near the Grand Trunk Station, his home on Congress Street, his statue in the square called after him; Deering Park, the Western Promenade with its White Mountain view, the Eastern Promenade overlooking Casco Bay and its islands.

Boardman House, Portsmouth, N. H.

It required some indiscretion to say, as one man did, "There are more quaint houses and interesting traditions in Portsmouth than in any other town in New England"; but the statement is at least a near-truth. Captain Pring visited the site in 1603, and Captain John Smith in 1614, but the town was not settled until 1623 under the protection of the Laconia Company. It was called Strabery Banke until 1653 from the berries which grew on its hills. The name was changed partly because of its location and partly because Captain Mason, the founder of New Hampshire, had lived in Portsmouth, England. The natural palisades and the forts the settlers built protected them from Indians. In 1739 the townspeople fought the proposed annexation of New Hampshire to Massachusetts, and won their independence. At the close of the Revolution there was "a thin population, many houses in ruins, women and children in rags and everything announcing decline." The shipping industry changed all that; fine houses were built, and Portsmouth Harbor had great ships and a flourishing trade. The embargo, several fires and commercial decline set it back again, and Portsmouth is at present chiefly known for its Navy Yard and its beautiful colonial buildings and doorways. The visitor will wish to see the Wentworth House, built in 1750, the home of

The old Church of St. John, which has a vinegar Bible and a Communion Service presented by Queen Caroline in 1747, and the St. John's Chapel on State Street, containing the oldest organ in America, imported by Thomas Brattle in 1710 and used for eighty years in Kings Chapel in Boston, ought to be visited.

Princeton has three claims to the tourist's attention. Here it was that on Christmas, 1777, Washington took the British by surprise, and secured 1,000 prisoners, mostly Hessians. Grover Cleveland made Princeton his home after his second term as President.

But the chief feature of this lovely town is Princeton University, founded (as the College of New Jersey) in 1746. It now numbers 2,400 students. The lovely grounds and handsome newer buildings are well worth an inspection. Palmer Stadium and (artificial) Carnegie Lake were gifts to the College. James Madison was a graduate.

PROVIDENCE

American school children learn of Providence that it is famous for the production of cotton, jewelry, tools, silver and machines—all of which is true. In the Old State House on North Main Street an act was passed May 4, 1776, constituting Rhode Island the first free and independent Republic of America. The Hopkins houses on Hopkins Street are the respective homes of Esek and Stephen, the one commander of the American Navy, and the other signer of the Declaration of Independence who remarked, "My hand trembles but my heart does not." In the tower of the First Congregational Church hangs the largest bell ever cast by Paul Revere and his son. The Baptist Church was founded by Roger Williams in 1638 and in its turn was largely responsible for establishing Brown University. University Hall was a barracks for American and French troops under Lafayette, and is the building in which Washington received the degree of LL.D. in 1790. The Athenaeum, associated with Poe's visits, contains the most expensive miniature in America—Malbone's The Hours—and paintings by Reynolds. In front of the Old Market House on the east side of Market Square three hundred pounds of India tea were burned in 1775 as a protest against the tax, and when the war was on Rochambeau's troops were quartered here. The Mansion House on Benefit Street has entertained Washington, John Adams, Monroe and Lafayette.

PROVIDENCE

"Rhode Island's Most Famous Hostelry"

Tourists and travelers who for generations have found in the Narragansett their "home away from home," have long since established the pre-eminence of the Providence institution, probably because of the cordial, yet courteous, relations established in the hotel's hospitable, homelike atmosphere. Today you find the "Gansett's" nation-wide prestige undiminished. You find a progressive Management ever on the alert to maintain the standard of service, efficient, yet unobtrusive, which the modern tourist or traveler appreciates to the fullest.

native-born American was the little boy, Peregrine White, who was born on the ship in the harbor. But the Pilgrims didn't stay here on the sandy spit of Massachusetts, where many years before Norsemen had landed, and which Hendrik Hudson and Captain John Smith had both visited. They re-embarked and sailed to Plymouth, but a memorial tower on Tower Hill commemorates their short stay. Of late years Provincetown has been invaded by artists and poets and players, and their studios and shops and theater contrast strangely with the homely simplicity and wholesome naïveté of a Cape Cod seafaring village.

America's only walled city, and without doubt one of the most strikingly situated cities of the world. Quebec is almost wholly a French city—French of the 17th century. Its narrow, winding streets, ecclesiastical buildings and monuments, schoolboys in black soutanes—all betoken the tenacity with which the French Canadian sticks to the ancient régime.

The visitor should see the Basilica (restored after a disastrous fire), the Citadel, Plains of Abraham, Houses of (Provincial) Parliament, St. Louis Gate, Dufferin Terrace; spend an hour or so browsing round the old lower town. By no means should he miss the 25-mile trip to Ste. Anne de Beaupré, the American Lourdes, and on the way arrange to view the lovely Falls of Montmorenci.

the itinerary of the tourists passing over the Great Western Turnpike. Its hospitable hotels have, for over a century, catered to unnumbered thousands. It has an unusually attractive Country Club and Golf Course, daily concerts in Spring Park, and its altitude of 1326 feet make for a refreshing stop-over.

The Great Western Turnpike connects the cities of Albany and Syracuse. It is the straight line route across the Empire State, passing the fertile farms and through the picturesque hamlets of Colonial days. It avoids the congested Mohawk Valley route and directly links the East with the West. This historic highway was built in 1806, and over its course passed the pioneers who settled the Great West. Its history, the picturesque beauty of the country through which it passes, and the unique position it occupies as a part of the direct transcontinental highway, make it one of the great highways of America.

in the neighborhood, has the credit for the first settlement, in 1733. In 1779 it was made the capital of Virginia. Before the Revolution it was the object of many Indian attacks. Later, Patrick Henry delivered here his impassioned speech for liberty; Benedict Arnold was tried here; Washington and Lafayette visited, Cornwallis passed through on the way to Yorktown. In the Civil War, Richmond was the capital of the Confederacy, and the object of numerous Federal campaigns. Jefferson Davis was tried here. Richmond had the first American art academy, the first iron foundry, first electric street car, developed the first submarine and submarine torpedo, and the legislation adding the Northwest Territory to the United States was made here. Nowadays it is known not only for its historical importance, but as one of the South's largest manufacturing, commercial and financial centres. It deals in tobacco, iron and steel, fertilizer, flavoring extract, locomotives, etc.

city was incorporated in 1834 with a population of 12,252. During the Civil War the Underground Railroad passed near the city. Its parks, trees, shrubs and flowers earn for it the name of "Flower City," but it is more famous as the home of the Eastman Kodak Company whose enormous plant is interesting to most citizens. Rochester is the world's largest manufacturer of filing devices and office systems, check protectors, soda fountain syrups, thermometers, optical supplies, kodaks, cameras and films (90% of the motion picture film is made here). There is also a large production of women's shoes, carbon paper, paper boxes, nursery products, and ready-to-wear clothing. The visitor will wish to see the parks, the new Eastman moving picture theatre, the University of Rochester, with its Music and Medical Schools, the upper and lower falls of the Genesee River and the gorge, as well as the conversion of the old Erie Canal into a runway for suburban lines. Lake Ontario is only seven miles away, and the Finger Lakes Region is easily accessible to the motorist.

Since Roger Conant came to Salem in 1626, after a hard winter or two at Gloucester, the stream of history has left such sediment that the town is saturated with the past of men and things. To list places of interest in Salem would tax a fat volume; the Essex Institute prepares an itinerary of some forty-five, and that list is rather suggestive than complete. The Peabody Museum on Essex Street gives its visitors a chance to see relics of Salem's commercial and whaling days; while the Essex Institute nearby is rich in portraits of men who have made her famous, colonial furniture, household and farm implements and vehicles, wearing apparel, books, pictures and manuscripts. Nathaniel Hawthorne was born in Union Street, and the House of Seven Gables on Turner Street, traditionally the one described in his novel, is worth visiting. The Salem Custom House, where he began The Scarlet Letter while an employee, has his surveyor's stencil plate. Broad Street Burying Ground, where Sheriff George Corwin, who executed those condemned for witchcraft, is buried; Gallows Hill, the scene of nineteen executions in 1692; the Common and the statue of Roger Conant facing it; the Old Bakery; the Narbonne House with its lean-to roof and corner shop, and the Old Burying Place on Charter Street where Simon Bradstreet and Captain Richard More of the Mayflower are buried—all these and more call the traveler. The colonial houses round Washington Square are as representative a group as any in New England. Mr. Walter S. Gifford, Pres., American Tel. & Tel. Corp., is a native of Salem.

The San José Hotel
San José - Jacksonville - Florida

Now open, this new million-dollar masterpiece of 1926 is superbly situated in Florida's greatest, newest Semi-tropical Development, nearest to Northern cities—an overnight railway journey away.

It is on a twenty-foot bluff, overlooking the St. Johns River, five miles below Jacksonville and adjacent to the northernmost orange groves in the State. Exclusively American plan, it is devoted to the thorough service, comfort and entertainment of its guests. Private garage on grounds.

Surrounding the San Jose Hotel is a new community, made in six months, with features and conveniences to share with all visitors. The 18-hole Donald Ross Golf Course and the San Jose Country Club are the premier sport and social attractions.

The management of the San Jose Hotel cordially welcomes you to join in the enjoyment of this first brilliant season.

The Adirondacks have many pleasant resorts, but none more delightful or celebrated than Saranac Lake. The Saranac River and Lake offer every chance for boating trips and canoeing, the woods and hills about invite hikers, and well paved highways lead the motorist whither he would go. Winter or summer, Saranac Lake is crowded. Skating is popular and skating championships are determined annually at the Pontiac rink. Admirers of Robert Louis Stevenson will remember that it was here that gaunt and ill man grew better under the fostering care of the late Dr. Trudeau.

With its broad street, gardens, spring-houses and hotels, Saratoga Springs is the American Bath, minus only such English things as cathedrals and Roman ruins. Instead, this American watering place has a race track and gambling pavilion—the last long since shut down. In times past the visitor in Saratoga was one of a motley crowd of persons born healthy, others achieving health, and still others having health thrust upon them by solicitous specialists, not to mention the discreet "bookies" and swank jockeys and ruddy sporting men who were up for the races. However, the crowds are still there, the springs as tonic as when the Indians used them, the hotels as pretentious in their middle age as they were in youth, and the motor has displaced the coach-and-four.

This lovely, elm-shaded old village at the mouth of the noble Connecticut was founded in 1635, and derives its name from its English grantees, Lord Saye-and-Sele and Lord Brooke. It rapidly assumed importance from its location on the water route between New Haven and Hartford. Here ten ministers, Harvard graduates, in 1700, founded Yale College, which in 1716 was moved to New Haven. The highway bridge across the Connecticut to Lyme is now free of toll.

This seaside town, which has grown from a quiet maritime village to a summer resort, is famous for its bathing, fishing and boating. It includes within its town limits some of the loveliest parts of the unrivalled South Shore, from Minots Point to the mouth of the North River (see Hanover). Many of Boston's élite have summer homes in Scituate, and quite a colony of literati occupies Second Cliff. Thos. W. Lawson's estate, Dreamwold, is at Egypt. The Old Oaken Bucket is sacred to Greenbush, also in Scituate town. If the stranger would get an impression of a really attractive Bay State town, let him tarry a while in Scituate.

This time-honored watering-place was held in high esteem by the Indians for the healing qualities of its sulphur springs. Nowadays, with golf displacing medicinal waters, Sharon Springs' appeal lies in its scenic charm and its accessibility. The Great Western Turnpike on which it lies is one of the most popular highways in the Empire State.

Table cutlery, mechanics' tools, knitted goods and maple sugar are the leading products of Shelburne Falls. The town is the centre of the largest hydro-electric development in New England and has several of the main plants of the New England Power Company. These developments make the Deerfield River, which flows through the town, one of the most intensively used streams in the world. Mary Lyon, the founder of Mt. Holyoke College, was born nearby.

Spartanburg and the country immediately contiguous is the greatest cotton spinning locality in the South. There was much fighting hereabouts during the Revolution, but the city is best known perhaps for the fact that here was located Camp Wadsworth, where in 1917-18 the 27th New York Division trained for overseas service.

In the centuries that have gone by Springfield has built up great industries, firearms, toys, paper, publishing, automobiles, motorcycles and railway cars; and at the United States arsenal on State Street the Springfield Rifle, held by many to be the finest military rifle in the world, was evolved and is still manufactured.

The city has many fine homes and public buildings, among the latter the Municipal Group, whose tower serves as a guide to as attractive an example of municipal architecture as there is in any city in the country. In the Art Museum is a representative collection of cloisonné enamels. There are, besides, arms and armor, ivories and rugs and laces; pictures by George Inness, Govaert Flinck, a favorite pupil of Rembrandt, and of special note, a portrait of a Knight of Malta, by Velasquez. The handsome Memorial Bridge, dedicated in 1922, crosses the Connecticut River, cost $5,500,000, and replaces the Old Toll Bridge.

During Stamford's early years, the Dutch of New York molested the settlement, and even so late as 1838 it had only 700 inhabitants. Since that time New York business men have chosen it as a place of residence. Shippan Point has long been a summer resort and boating station.

One of Stamford's great citizens was Col. Abraham Davenport, who, when the Connecticut Legislature on the Dark Day of 1780 moved to adjourn in terror of the approach of the Day of Judgment, rose and said, "I am against an adjournment. The Day of Judgment is either approaching or it is not. If it is not there is no cause for adjournment. If it is, I choose to be found doing my duty. I wish, therefore, that candles may be brought."

This Catskill summer resort with its golf course, mountain scenery and pleasures, is on the Mohican, Rip Van Winkle and Delaware Trails. (1,767 ft.)

Stamford lies in the valley of the Delaware, near the source of that stream. It is, from a tourists' standpoint, easily the most important town in the Catskills, being the hub of a network of roads leading in all directions.

Staunton, lying as it does near the headwaters of the Shenandoah, enjoys a two fold prominence. The city is the centre from which radiate roads to all points of the compass. Its history dates from 1731. During the Revolution it became a sort of recruiting point for the mountain regions roundabout; and in the Civil War was twice occupied by the Union forces.

In 1734 John Sargent came to Stockbridge as a missionary to the Indians, and was followed in 1750 by Jonathan Edwards, who wrote, here, his Freedom of the Will and other treatises on theology and metaphysics. The old missionary house of the former, and the latter's desk, on exhibition in the public library, are among the interesting sights. The town has had many famous residents. The Field brothers lived here; Cyrus W., who laid the Atlantic cable and built New York's first elevated railroad; Stephen D., who patented the first trolley car, and David D., who was a justice of the United States Courts. Daniel Chester French, the great American sculptor, designer of the Minute Man at Concord, and of many other fine monuments; Owen Johnson, the creator of Dink Stover, the Tennessee Shad and other immortals; Frank Crowninshield, Mrs. Oscar Iasigi and Mrs. Joseph H. Choate have all been residents. Stockbridge is a touring center for the Berkshire Hills, the Mohawk Trail, Jacob's Ladder and Berkshire Trail all being within easy reach. The town is very beautiful, with dignified homes on serene streets, wide lawns and enchanting gardens, all tranquil in the gentle air of the Berkshires.

Syracuse was known to the Indians as Websters Corners from 1796 to 1809, and in 1820 was named Syracuse. In 1800 salt wells were discovered here and the city came to be known as the salt city—the only springs, in fact, in the United States for nearly half a century. In the Civil War this was an Abolition centre. Daniel Webster spoke here about the fugitive slave law in the public square in 1851. The two most famous rescues of slaves in the North were in Syracuse and Boston. Syracuse University has a stadium which seats 600 outside rooms—with bath, servidor and circulating ice water. Single rooms, $3.00 up; Double, $4.00 up. Garage half block.

Nineteen miles of excellent road lead to the beautiful village of Skaneateles, the source of the city water supply, and a gateway to the Finger Lakes region. This village is old as well as beautiful. Sleepy Hollow Cemetery of which Washington Irving wrote and in which he is buried, is on a sloping hillside here; Major André, the English spy with whom Benedict Arnold arranged the surrender of West Point, was captured and searched at a spot now marked by a monument; the home of the Phillipses who owned a vast tract of land by grant from the Crown may still be seen; and the old Dutch Church, whose bricks were brought from Holland, is still standing. Besides these historic sights, the visitor will enjoy the view down the river across the green lawns of great estates. Ferry service to Nyack half-hourly.

The fort, at the southern end of Lake Champlain, which in 1909 was opened as a museum, was a storm centre in French and Indian and Revolutionary times. The French built the first fort called Vaudreuil in 1755, and the larger one named Carillon. This, which the English renamed Ticonderoga, fell from the French to Sir Jeffrey Amherst in 1759; and in 1775 Ethan Allen with Benedict Arnold and the Green Mountain Boys captured it from the British, who re-took it two years later under General Burgoyne. Since 1781 it has never been occupied by a military garrison, and today it is a peaceful relic of past warfare.

Besides many delightful residences, imposing public buildings and wide streets, Toronto has many particular claims to distinction. The Canadian National exhibition is held here annually at the Exhibition Grounds. Coliseum was built and equipped by the city to house the Royal Winter Fair, which is famous for its horse and cattle and poultry shows. Sunnyside Beach, on Lake Ontario, is an amusement park of real pleasure without the ugliness that so often marks such places. The view of the city from the nineteenth and twentieth stories of the Royal Bank Building; High Park, Sick Children's Hospital; the Public Library; the Riverdale Zoo; Palm House in Allen Gardens; the Royal Ontario Museum; Centre Island—these and a score of other things will interest the tourist. The University of Toronto, with its affiliated colleges, is the largest in the Empire. The fame of the Medical College of Varsity is increased since Dr. Banting and Mr. C. H. Best have discovered, there, the value of insulin in the treatment of diabetes.

Founded in 1680, the New Jersey Capital has grown to be the first city in the United States in pottery and wire and steel cable, and the second in the manufacture of rubber. The Battle of Trenton was one of the decisive actions of the Revolution. Washington's famous crossing of the Delaware took place eight miles upstream. Trenton is at the head of navigation on the Delaware. The State House and the City Hall are exceptionally handsome buildings. The late John A. Roebling of Trenton built the Brooklyn Bridge.

One-third of all the knitted underwear of the United States is made here, along with ventilating and heating apparatus, toys, brass products, trunks, fishing rods and tackle, auto bodies and accessories, and other things, too numerous to mention. Twelve miles east at Ilion are the plants of the Library Bureau, Remington Arms, Remington Cash Register and Remington Typewriter Companies. The city

Washington Monument

Washington, the Nation's capital and the "city of magnificent distances" is undoubtedly the most beautiful city in the world. Its beauty and magnificence are foreordained to increase as time goes on, thanks to the dreams of the great soldier who located it and the young engineer who conjured its splendid proportions and future glory out of a vast wilderness and seemingly hopeless morass.

The genius of its founder and his dominant personality stand out conspicuously to this very day. Congress had been heckled by stupid inhabitants of cities over which the Federal Government could exercise no control, so that President Washington his creation, he sleeps today.

Due to the initials it uses in quartering the points of the compass, Washington is sometimes considered confusing to the stranger, but after a five minutes' study of its map, it is quite the easiest city to find one's way about in, of all the great metropolises. All streets running east and west in Washington are named consecutively according to the letters of the alphabet. Lying north of East and West Capitol Street and parallel to it, the streets are named A, B, C, etc., and lying south of East and West Capitol Street, the streets are named A, B, C, etc.

The White House, East End

All streets that run north and south are numbered consecutively, beginning at Number 1. All streets lying east of North and South Capitol Streets are numbered, 1, 2, 3, etc., and, likewise, the streets lying west of North and South Capitol Street are numbered 1, 2, 3, etc., in consecutive order so that there are four street intersections of Second and C Streets. They are differentiated from each other by indicating in what section of the city, according to the points of the compass they are located. It is necessary to indicate whether it is the Northwest, Northeast, Southwest or Southeast quarter that such an intersection lies. The initials indicating the quarters of the compass are used after the street and number, and not before. If the compass initials are omitted, the Northwest quarter is presumed, as the bulk of the city lies in this quarter. Most of the Southwest quarter is taken up with the Potomac River, Washington Channel, Tidal Basin, Potomac Park and the Mall, through which very few streets pass.

In the Northwest section lie the White House, the Treasury Building, the Army and Navy Building, the principal hotels and the favorite residence district; the great embassies stand out toward Rock Creek Park, reached generally via Sixteenth Street. The Capitol, Union Station, the Library of Congress and the splendid Post Office Building lie in the Northeast district. Washington Monument and the new Lincoln Memorial are in the Southwest district.

With these points of the compass fixed in one's mind, Washington becomes the easiest city possible to learn, and if General Washington should return to earth he could probably find his way anywhere about the city he founded without having to ask a single question, and would very likely exclaim "just exactly as I planned it."

General Washington had been a civil engineer, and in selecting the wild district for the Nation's Capital, he laid it out in his own mind just as it exists today, with the services of a young French engineer who had served under him in the Revolution, Major Pierre Charles L'Enfant, who designed a city that should forever endure along the plans definitely laid down. Many attempts have been made by powerful influences to change these plans and thus stupidly to ruin the majestic beauty of the Capital City. It was due to vigorous determination, especially of Presidents Roosevelt, Taft and Harding, that the L'Enfant plans were definitely confirmed and it is now too late ever to vary from them.

Washington's faith in the new city never wavered. To accommodate Congress and the government clerks, numbering only a few dozen, he personally erected three large houses and purchased a beautiful site on Rock Creek for his personal town house. It was only his death in 1799 that prevented this home from being built.

The Capital was moved to the new federal district in 1800, and the White House which had been erected under the supervision of James Hoban was first occupied by President John Adams. Meanwhile, the Capitol had been constructed by William Thornton. Washington was destroyed by the British in 1814. The White House was rebuilt by Hoban; and the Capitol, which has grown nowadays into one of the most imposing buildings in the world, was started by Latrobe and Bulfinch. The growth of the city was slow at first. A stupid Congress in 1846 permitted Alexandria, with its three square miles, to withdraw from the District of Columbia, in spite of the Federal Constitution. It was still a poor and unlovely city, despite its splendid and scenic environment, at the outbreak of the Civil War. The Capitol was stately, simple, but incomplete. President Lincoln, notwithstanding the crisis, directed that the dome should be completed as a symbol of faith and hope, and in the dark days of 1863 the great statue of Freedom surmounting the dome, and weighing 15,000 pounds, was unveiled. From that crisis forward the National Capitol began to assume form and shape and splendid proportions, and there have now come into existence the great department buildings and such magnificent city attractions as the Washington Monument, Lincoln Memorial, the U. S. Grant Group, and an almost infinite number of statues and monuments, marking especially the circles at the intersections of streets and avenues. Many other exceptionally beautiful and notable buildings are the Pan American Union Building, the Freer Gallery of Art, the New National Museum, the Corcoran Art Gallery, the Daughters of the American Revolution Building, the Congressional Library, the Senate and House office buildings; and one should include in his perspective the splendid view obtained of the Robert E. Lee mansion surmounting the high bluffs across the Potomac at Arlington, now the National cemetery.

WASHINGTON

Treasury Building

Owing to its broad streets and excellent connecting boulevards, the automobilist can see Washington ideally in his own machine. It would be prudent to employ a guide because of the vast number of houses and places of historical interest and homes that have sheltered famous personages. The pedestrian is not denied excellent opportunities of viewing the city by automobile sight-seeing cars and by trolleys. In either event, one should drive, or go by trolley or boat to Mount Vernon and visit the old home of General Washington, which has been refurnished as nearly as possible to what it was by the Daughters of the American Revolution. One should go by train to visit Great Falls, and by trolley or drive out Sixteenth Street to visit the Zoological Gardens beyond Rock Creek Park. The drive out Sixteenth Street passes literally hundreds of such buildings as the National Geographic Society's quarters, the new United States Chamber of Commerce and scores of embassies and exceptionally fine residences. At the corner of Sixteenth and S Streets is located the great Masonic Temple, and driving beyond the Zoological Gardens one passes Chevy Chase Country Club, where most of the recent Presidents, Supreme Court Justices and members of Congress and foreign diplomats have played golf.

By all means, one should visit the National Cemetery and Fort Myer at Arlington across the Potomac. Time and again one will return to the Washington Monument. It was built mostly by private subscription, over a period of thirty-seven years, a reluctant Congress completing the job. If it happens to be the month of June, one will be entranced for hours at a time by driving through the beautiful agricultural gardens and their multitude of rose bushes in the Mall district, down in the vicinity of the Smithsonian Institution, and if it is later summer or fall or spring, one is delighted at the drives, scores of them, into Virginia, or up into Maryland, or out toward Cabin John or to a dozen parks or picnic groves.

Within the same District of Columbia lies Georgetown, and the Georgetown University, a notable Roman Catholic Institution. Many famous girls' colleges are on the outskirts of Washington.

The people of the District of Columbia have no vote. They are disfranchised and have no voice whatever in their local municipal government. Washington City is governed by three commissioners appointed by the President. One-half the cost of city administrators is raised by taxation and the other half is appropriated from the national treasury. Most of the public buildings and great monuments and memorials have been financed entirely without local taxation either from direct appropriation from the Federal Treasury or from nation-wide contributions.

Motorists from other States are granted four days in the District, after which they should report their cars to the police.

All visitors to Washington should naturally visit the Congressional library and revel in its architectural beauty and enjoy its mural decorations and famous paintings, just as all visitors should go through the National Capitol, where abundant guides are provided to point out the quarters assigned to various departments. In Statuary Hall, which is the very centre of the Capitol, most of the States have placed the statues of one or two of their favorite sons or daughters. A brass marker in the centre of this room shows where ex-President John Adams, then a member of Congress, died after an impassioned Fourth of July oration; and the same spot, curiously enough, marks a mysterious sort of place where one may stand and hear distant whisperings, although if he moves a few steps away the sound waves do not seem to reach him.

WATERBURY

This city in the Naugatuck valley manufactures about 50 per cent of the country's brass, and has the largest clock factory in the world. The first Ingersoll watch was made in Waterbury, as were the Waterbury watches. The city has other industries, too many to mention. The extent of its industrial life may be deduced from the fact that it has the second largest freight tonnage in New England. The green in the center of the city is well-kept, and has, in the New England fashion, several churches.

Waterbury is most advantageously situated with regard to adjacent scenery, being at the confluence of several valleys; no city in the East is blessed with more splendid highways, which radiate from here to all parts of the country

In Revolutionary times Watertown and the vicinity constituted the frontier between the Colonies and Canada, as before that time it had been the battleground of the Algonquins and Iroquois. After the end of the war, settlements from central New York crept northward until this territory was covered. Shortly after this, some French nobles came here and purchased extensive tracts and put up fine buildings in the hope of making this a New France and a home for Napoleon, whose early death at St. Helena frustrated this plan. Many nearby villages retain their French names and some of the buildings still stand. At Sackett Harbor the first gun of the War of 1812 was fired, and a naval battle fought there. The city is at the centre of the paper manufacturing and dairying section of the State.

High on a bluff above a right-angle bend in the noble Hudson, West Point has developed from a Revolutionary fortress into the national school for training officers for the U. S. Army. The Polish patriot, Kosciusko, at Washington's suggestion, designed the fortress which Benedict Arnold commanded and planned to surrender to the British. No American need be told of its record of distinguished graduates, its rigorous standards of honor and study; but few who have not visited it have any conception of its natural beauty, or of the dignity and architectural value of its buildings. The stretch of road between Haverstraw and Cornwall is perhaps the most scenic in the entire Empire State, and the acme of it all is the plateau on which stands the U. S. Military Academy. Parade takes place at 5 p. m.

was killed he made a will providing for the establishment of at that time a frontier fort. The school was founded in 1790 and chartered as Williams College three years later. At present it stands as high as any New England institution, and has maintained a conservative and aristocratic standard of culture and conduct. The tranquillity of its rolling campus in the centre of the valley village is increased by the ivied buildings of old brick and stone. The chapel is nationally famous for its architecture and LaFarge and Tiffany windows. Near the college is the memorial shaft to Samuel J. World's greatest tobacco manufacturing centre. "Camel" cigarettes made here. Home Moravian Church built (1800) by hands of brethren; Washington slept in Washington Tavern.

Salem was settled by Moravians in 1766; Winston incorporated in 1859; the two consolidated in 1913. Now Winston-Salem is the largest city in North Carolina.

In addition to the six highways shown in detail in the Route Section (Route 663 includes two) there are several other scenic trips out of Winston-Salem. One leads into Virginia via Pilot Mountain and Mount Airy; another to Yadkinville, and through picturesque Roaring Gap to Sparta, etc.; a third continues west from Yadkinville to Boone, where one may deviate left to Blowing Rock or right into Tennessee. All this on fine macadam or sand-clay, and through wonderful hills and mountains.

Winter Haven, the city of 100 lakes, is the Venice of America. This city has more water front than any city in the world, not excepting Venice. There are 97 spring-fed, sand-bottom lakes, within a radius of five miles. Seventeen of these lakes are connected by canals, making a 50 mile boat ride.

There are four recreation piers on lakes—several with dancing pavilions. All the lakes abound in fish. There are two golf courses, many tennis courts and all forms of recreation.

This city is one of the principal cities in Polk County, the capital of the citrus industry.

worth of New Hampshire in 1761, and the town was rechartered by New York in 1772. At this time Vermont was a free and independent colony. Many people consider Woodstock the most beautiful town in Vermont, and surely its claim is a real one. Besides the charming houses on the great-treed streets there are the Norman Williams Public Library, a memorial, the D. A. R. House on South Park Street, and the Woodstock Country Club which maintains an exceedingly sporting eighteen hole course.

Woodstock is a residential village, but one of the loveliest in the country. It is an all-year-round resort, lying in the valley of the Ottauquechee River, and is the centre of a network of excellent gravel roads, one more attractive than the other. President Coolidge's birthplace, at Plymouth, is but 14 miles away (Route 229).

There are many large industries: steel, wire, machine tools, springs, grinding wheels, rugs, skates and many others. The Declaration of Independence was read for the first time in Massachusetts directly in front of the City Hall. Eli Whitney, who invented the cotton gin, was born in Worcester, as were the respective inventors of the carpet-weaving machine and sewing-machine, Erastus Bigelow and Elias Howe. The perfection of the modern power loom is largely due to Lucius Knowles. George Bancroft, historian of the United States, was born on Bancroft Farm off Salisbury Street. Worcester has an endowed art museum, with many very valuable paintings and sculptures. Elm Park, a mile from the city, is the first piece of land bought by a municipality in the United States for park purposes. Educational institutions — Clark University, Holy Cross, Assumption College, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Worcester Academy and the State Normal School are all in Worcester.

Residents are fond of saying that Yonkers is next to the biggest city in the country, since its city line joins New York's. The tourist driving through Getty Square might well take the saying seriously, for the traffic is terrific. The city has an immense carpet factory, and plants of the Otis Elevator, and American and Federal Sugar Refining Companies. Manor Hall, former home of the Phillipses who held a grant from the Crown, is a representative colonial house.

A ferry to Alpine, N. J., gives quarter-hourly service to New Jersey points without going through New York City.

Tour Section

THE following pages present a number of the best-known and most popular tours, compiled by different organizations for the purpose of stimulating automobile touring by presenting to the stranger a ready-made itinerary over good roads through interesting and scenic sections. ¶ The ones selected for this book were chosen with a view to covering our territory as fully as possible. The running-directions in detail will be found in the Route Section, front half of book; and the selection of routes can best be made from the Trunk Line Chart (inside front cover) after perusing the suggestions given in the following pages. On the route-maps appear [in red] the names of reliable hotel and garage accommodations en route; further particulars concerning these, and other information are given [alphabetically by towns] in the Index (second half of book).

AROUND CAPE COD

The tour around the "Cape" does not perhaps embrace any very great mileage, but it does offer a rare combination of fine smooth highways, delightful scenery and quaint villages.

Everywhere and on every hand one sees something to arrest the attention. Sometimes it is a tiny harbor, with fishing craft at anchor or a boat race under way; anon a vista of a distant windmill across a mile or so of grass-covered sand dunes. Or the open Atlantic beating savagely across the sandy bars at Chatham, the white spray splitting the silvery sunlight into a hundred vivid rainbows. Martha's Vineyard has an appeal all its own, and Nantucket knows no rival to its eighteenth century charm.

To the stranger Cape Cod is a series of surprises. One may not have expected to find the terrain so undulating, the roads so winding; and the presence of so many tree-fringed fresh-water ponds in the interior, which vie in beauty with the salt-water views of Sound, Bay and Ocean lends a variety to the scenery equaled by few sections in the entire country. The Cape Cod villages are models of attractive neatness and prosperity.

See Route Map 129 for the principal highway on the Cape or write C. H. Brown, President, Cape Cod Hotel Association, Osterville, Mass., for booklet and literature on Cape Cod.

THE CAPITOL TOUR

The itinerary known as the Capitol Tour is the result of years of thought on the part of its promoters, who have sought to lay before the tourist a graphic suggestion which should fill a long-felt want for just such a layout. It directs the stranger through a territory as beautiful as it is interesting, and includes almost all the points of interest (outside of New England) which have loomed large in the early history of our country.

En route we visit four State capitals and the National capital; Philadelphia, the Cradle of Liberty, and Richmond, heart of the

The Capitol, Senate and House Office Buildings and Union Station

Confederacy; and a dozen battlefields of the Revolution as well as twice that number dating from the Civil War.

In the way of scenery this trip offers the Lincoln Highway, the Susquehanna Trail, Shenandoah Valley Pike, Old National Road and the Horseshoe Trail, as well as beautiful mountain roads between the Shenandoah Pike and Hot and White Sulphur Springs.

The east and west roads in Virginia are to a great extent those traversed sixty years ago by Generals Lee, Stonewall Jackson and others in their four-years' maneuvers against McClellan, Grant and other Union commanders. While still not quite perfect, these Virginia roads are by no means bad, and in dry weather make good traveling.

Every mile of this tour is worth while—either from a scenic or an historical point of view, or both. Except as noted, the roads are splendid, and the wealth of hotel accommodations is such as to astonish the stranger who may not have kept informed of the giant strides made in this direction in the past few years.

We unhesitatingly recommend this tour to all who can find time to devote to a wonderful motor trip.

Capitol Tour Booklets are supplied by T. F. McKee, Metropolitan Hotel, Washington, D. C., or by the Secretary, R. V. Alexander, Stevens House, Lancaster, Pa.

ADIRONDACK TRAIL OF THE EMPIRE TOURS

One of the three much favored itineraries known collectively as the "Empire Tours," the Adirondack Trail aims to lead the tourist through some of New York State's most attractive territory. The hundred and fifty miles along the majestic Hudson River joins historic interest with scenic splendor; the banks of the river still reflect their first settlement by the Dutch Patroons. The Inter-State Palisades Park and West Point should be visited—the latter, if possible, in the afternoon, so one may view the daily Evening Parade by the Cadets of the U. S. Military Academy.

Albany, the Classic Capital, Saratoga Springs, of world-wide fame, are of great interest, and the drive through the Adirondack Mountains is one of the loveliest imaginable. Plattsburg, on Lake Champlain, needs no introduction to any American—or for that matter, to anyone else since participation in the World War.

From Rouses Point, at the extreme northeast corner of the State, a two-hour run takes one over the King Edward Highway to Montreal, the ancient and beautiful metropolis of Canada

Lake Placid in the Adirondacks and Whiteface Mountain

(Customs formalities at Rouses Point, N. Y., and Lacolle, P. Q., are nominal, and need deter none from making this trip.)

From Rouses Point the Trail leads westward over flat dairylands through small cities to Watertown, chief city of Jefferson County, and gateway to the Thousand Islands (see Iroquois Trail). This itinerary runs thence parallel to the shores of Lake Ontario to Oswego and Rochester—a country of prosperous farms and fruit orchards. Rochester is a handsome city, most famous for its huge output of photographic and optical goods.

Thence we take a generally southerly course (needless to say, the trail may be followed in either direction) through the beautiful Finger Lake region, not missing a visit to Watkins Glen, a great natural wonder at the foot of Seneca Lake. The road between Elmira and Binghamton closely follows the Chemung and Susquehanna Rivers—then back to New York City through the hills and valleys of Sullivan and Orange Counties.

A Tour Book can be secured from Carl Willmsen, Secretary, Empire Tours Association, Palatine Hotel, Newburgh, N. Y.

IROQUOIS TRAIL OF THE EMPIRE TOURS

The second of the Empire Tours is about fifteen hundred miles in extent and provides a vista of New York State different (except for short parallel stretches) from either of the other two trails.

It takes one to Albany via the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts and enters the Adirondacks via Saratoga like its predecessor. These mountains are extremely beautiful and are everywhere dotted with lakes great and small. From Malone our road approaches the noble St. Lawrence and follows up that stream to the Thousand Islands, whose loveliness must be seen to be appreciated.

Syracuse, the Salt City, is the seat of a famous university; Rochester makes kodaks among a diversity of other products. Thence we follow the "Million Dollar Highway" through several fruit-raising counties (the soil is phenomenally rich here) to Niagara Falls, the greatest natural wonder of the East.

We now take our way to Buffalo over any one of four roads (see Route 471) and continue west for 60 miles to Westfield, in the heart of the great grape belt—frequent views of Lake Erie. Here we may continue on to Erie, Pa., and Cleveland, or skirt the lovely shores of Lake Chautauqua to Jamestown, and thence proceed eastward over the winding and hilly "Liberty Highway" to Watkins, whose magnificent Glen repays a visit many times over. Ithaca, with Cornell University perched on a plateau overlooking Cayuga Lake, has other scenic beauties to display; the drive thence via Cortland to Cazenovia runs through attractive wooded country. Eastward over the newly improved Cherry Valley Turnpike takes us to Otsego Lake, with a ten-mile drive along its entrancing shores to Cooperstown, a delightful, aristocratic village. At Oneonta the trail enters the Catskills, following one valley after another through the thick of the mountains to historic Kingston on the Hudson. We highly recommend a circuit trip around the splendid Ashokan Reservoir, source of New York City's water-supply.

Newburgh is an ancient city, of Revolutionary importance. The "inside" route from there to the Metropolis is very worthwhile.

By writing to C. A. Miner, Chairman, Executive Committee, Hotel Lenox, Buffalo, N. Y., one may secure literature on the Great Lakes Tour.

ONONDAGA TRAIL OF THE EMPIRE TOURS

The shortest of the three Empire Tours, this Onondaga Trail embraces nine hundred miles of State macadam and concrete in New York State, including about one hundred thirty through Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

From New York we follow the new Hendrik Hudson Highway close to the glorious Hudson, passing Bear Mountain and West Point, through Newburgh and Kingston to Albany, the handsome Capital of the State. Thence west along the fertile Mohawk Valley through numerous industrial cities to Utica, and so "across-lots" to Syracuse. Between here and Rochester we drive along the northern edge of the Finger Lakes—Skaneateles, Owasco, Cayuga, Seneca and Canandaigua—and then through flat but immensely rich farming communities to Buffalo—Queen City of the Lakes.

Eastward again to Caledonia, and through horse-raising Genesee County in hilly territory to Elmira and Binghamton. Here we may either travel along the upper reaches of the Susquehanna to Oneonta, and across-country to Albany, or take the marvellous Lackawanna Trail through rugged mountains to Scranton, Pa., and by way of the Poconos to Delaware Water Gap, crossing the State of New Jersey to New York City. The Lackawanna Trail is built on the abandoned roadbed of the D., L. & W. Railroad, and is a wonderfully scenic stretch—smooth and with remarkably easy grades and curves.

By writing to C. A. Miner, Chairman, Executive Committee, Hotel Lenox, Buffalo, N. Y., one may secure literature on the Great Lakes Tour.

FINGER LAKES TOUR

Almost in the exact center of the Empire State lie several entrancing bodies of water—long, narrow lakes running almost due North and South. These silver ribbons bear Indian names, and are called (from west to east) Canandaigua, Keuka, Seneca, Cayuga, Owasco and Skaneateles. They are most accessible to motorists, and their shores are dotted with attractive resorts and towns or cities of greater or lesser magnitude.

In New York's Finger Lake Region near Seneca Falls

Two great State highways connect the cities at the northern and southern extremities, and cross-roads without number form a gridiron of secondary connections. The banks of the lakes are usually high, and the views from the marginal roads are often exceedingly fine.

Among the many and varied points of interest in this delightful territory we may venture to mention Watkins Glen—a State reservation of rare beauty, and Ithaca, the seat of Cornell University. The campus, high on a plateau overlooking Lake Cayuga, is by many rated the finest of any college in America.

All the more important cities and villages are well provided with hotels, inns and boarding houses, offering excellent accommodations to fit any purse; and a week or so spent cruising about this district (with some time devoted to rowing, sailing, canoeing, motor-boating on the lakes themselves—or fishing therein) will make a most delightful holiday for those seeking restful commune with Nature.

An Interesting Pamphlet may be secured from Mr. Frederick C. Searing, Auburn, N. Y.

THE FLORIDA TOUR

Nowhere in the country is the construction of splendid motor roads progressing as in Florida, and we take great pride in offering this suggestion to those of our readers who want to revel in the delights of this winter paradise, with the assurance of the most satisfactory choice of roads.

By consulting Index Map 13 in the front of the book one may get a comprehensive view of the remarkable choice of resorts gathered within the incomparable peninsula that is Florida, and the splendid system of roads connecting them. For the stranger it is well to consider this huge State as roughly divided into three parts: the East Coast—a concatenation of greater and lesser winter resorts extending from Fernandina to beyond Miami, fronting either direct on the Atlantic or on the various entrancing "rivers" which parallel the ocean.

The central part of the State comprises what are known as the "Highlands" and the unsurpassed Lake District. Here are towns, mostly of rather modern growth, set in surroundings of wonderful beauty. Most of these cities have water right in their midst; many of them boast healing or other springs of crystal clearness. All around is garden land where vegetables and fruit flourish the year round, as does golf on innumerable links.

The West, or Gulf, Coast, is rapidly coming into its own. Many people consider the resorts clustered around or near Tampa Bay among the finest in the State. The prevailing west winds, traveling over a thousand miles of semi-tropic seas, temper the climate to a happy medium. The chief sport in this section is undoubtedly fishing (the sporting tarpon abounds in these waters); yet all other forms of warm-weather amusements are at the vacationist's beck and call.

The Florida State Hotel Association, Jacksonville, Florida, will send you literature on this wonderful State.

THE IDEAL TOUR

The itinerary covered by the "Ideal Tour" is one of the oldest in the country, and its immediate popularity has never since waned. Combining as it does an unusual variety of scenic attraction, it covers its territory most fully with the least extent of mileage.

A thousand miles of New England's scenic wonderland.

Leaving New York City over the ancient Boston Post Road, we keep to that thoroughfare through some of the pleasantest suburbs of the metropolis to Bridgeport, whose industries are diversified to a greater extent than those of any other city in New England. Thence up the scenic Naugatuck Valley to Waterbury, the brass centre of the country. Northward leads through the enchanting Litchfield hills to where they merge into the matchless Berkshires, and farther along to the Green Mountains of Vermont. Here the tour turns east at Manchester (try a round on the Ekwanok Links). Over hill and dale to the Connecticut Valley and sparkling Lake Sunapee.

At Franklin, near which Daniel Webster first saw the light, we follow the Pemigewasset north into the White Mountains, past the Flume and the Profile into the very heart of the mountains. At Bretton Woods we have a choice of two ways to Poland Spring—by way of the Dixville Notch, magnificent in its setting, or down the exquisite Crawford Notch and into Maine. From Portland, stunningly placed at the head of Casco Bay, through numerous resorts to historic Portsmouth, and south along the shore to Boston. From the Hub we direct our steps west, by way of Worcester, Springfield and Hartford to Waterbury and so to our starting point, New York.

The Ideal Tour is published by Almon C. Judd, The Elton, Waterbury, Connecticut, where copies can be secured.

GREAT LAKES TOUR

This is a combination of scenic drives between the score of great cities on the banks of Lakes Ontario, Erie, Huron and Michigan and including the shore drive up and down the East bank of Lake Michigan. It is a portion little known to the average motorist who does not hail from that section of the country or of Canada; and will prove of great interest in opening a vista of what has been done in that territory in the comparatively few years since it was first settled.

The great cities of Toronto, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago each have their own peculiar allure; and many of the smaller ones are equally attractive each in its own way.

The large towns and cities along this tour are all provided with hotels of the highest type—indeed some of them quite startle one with their air of quiet charm and comfortable luxury. The prices, however, are almost always remarkably fair, and the stranger will be pleasantly surprised at the excellent accommodations available at moderate cost.

By writing to C. A. Miner, Chairman, Executive Committee, Hotel Lenox, Buffalo, N. Y., one may secure literature on the Great Lakes Tour.

STATE OF MAINE TOUR

We do not pretend to display here all the manifold glories of the Pine Tree State, but content ourselves with guiding the stranger over good gravel roads through as great a variety of scenery as may be covered in so moderate a mileage. The "stern and rock-bound coast," the dense pine forests, lakes large and small, rivers, streams, cities and villages; and as a climax Mount Desert Island, all are only a few of the galaxy of scenic delights to be enjoyed within the thirty-odd thousand square miles of the State of Maine.

Portland, Maine's chief city, is one of the great touring centres of the country; its location on Casco Bay is inspiring, and the city is the hub of a network of good roads which lead to the east, north, west and south. In an easterly direction the Atlantic Highway bears along the coast through Brunswick, Bath, Wiscasset and Rockland to the mouth of Penobscot Bay, then up that noble stream to Bangor, and down to Ellsworth, whence a short side-trip brings one to Mount Desert, with Bar Harbor and other lovely settlements. From Ellsworth on to Machias and the St. Croix River at Calais—the gateway to the Maritime Provinces. North one may run from Portland to Augusta, the tidy capital of the State, and thence to Moosehead or Rangeley Lakes; northwest through Poland Spring, one of America's really great resorts, and Bethel to Umbagog and Dixville Notch; or else via Naples and the intervales of the Saco through Crawford Notch to the White Mountains. Westerly, the Ossipee Trail skirts Sebago Lake en route to Lake Winnepesaukee; and south one follows the matchless Maine Coast past an unbroken line of shore resorts to Portsmouth, N. H. (the Atlantic Highway).

The Maine lakes and rivers, the virgin forests at the feet of Mt. Katahdin, and en route to Quebec City; the fertile plains of matchless Aroostook County; hunting and fishing in season, and camping all the time—all lend Maine an attraction for the tourist that no one with an able-bodied car can well afford to miss.

Write the Maine Publicity Bureau for any information regarding Maine.

NEW ENGLAND TOUR—"A"

This tour aims to supplement the two succeeding ones by including Cape Cod and the State of Maine in its scope. It also embraces the coast line complete from Bar Harbor to New York. This feature will prove an immense appeal to lovers of salt-water scenery, and in justice to them we beg to suggest that they allow a sufficient extra margin of time to be able to make frequent detours en route. For the road is not always close to the shore—even on waterbound Cape Cod the ocean is often not in sight; and to get the most out of the trip one will want frequently to leave the main highway and visit the myriad beaches and shore resorts a mile or so to seaward.

In Maine the coast is so serrated that the Atlantic Highway is often miles from the ocean, but good gravel side-roads everywhere branch off to the east or south, leading to some of the most attractive towns and resorts in all America. Nevertheless one does get from the main route long stretches of gorgeous waterviews of Casco, Penobscot and Frenchmans Bays, and of the many tidal rivers which are crossed by long viaduct bridges.

The north and south shores of Massachusetts are closer to the main road, and in New Hampshire one is nearly always close to the Atlantic.

The balance of tnis tour lies almost wholly in the State of Maine. A beautiful territory, with myriad lakes, large and small; fast-flowing rivers, wooded hills and great pine forests.

By no means should one omit a visit to Bar Harbor. Mt. Desert Island, on which it is located, is by many held to be the most beautiful spot in the East. Within its limited confines it displays the most remarkable variety of scenery imaginable, and one should arrange to devote an extra day or two to its exploration.

The section in New Hampshire leads one through the marvellous Dixville and Crawford Notches, and (mostly on the Vermont side) along the lovely valley of the Connecticut. Between Waterbury and the Sound at Bridgeport we wind along the scenic Naugatuck Valley over a broad, smooth boulevard, through as rugged a country as one may wish.

The new England Tours, A, B & C, are published by the New England Hotel Association, Herbert G. Summers, Boston, Mass. —where tour folders can be secured.

Moat Range and Ledges Near the Golf Links at North Conway, N. H.

NEW ENGLAND TOUR—"B"

Like the succeeding tour, this itinerary (green on the New England Hotel Association map), was chosen for its variety of points of interest. It parallels the other in three places, which makes it possible to combine the two into a longer trip than either alone affords. The same applies to Tour A; and tourists who have plenty of time to devote to New England may with profit use all three together and thus take in practically all the sights of these six fascinating States.

The Green Tour leads one over fine State roads through the reservoir district of New York and the upper Naugatuck Valley in the Nutmeg State; the Litchfield and Berkshire Hills, with their delightful old villages; up among Vermont's Green Mountains to the shores of Lake Champlain at Burlington. Thence by either of two ways across the State to the White Mountains, and down the Crawford Notch past the "Intervales" of the Saco River, and down a succession of valleys to historic Portsmouth, New Hampshire's only seaport. Boston, Hub of the Universe, needs no introduction; one may well plan a stay of several days to "do" the sights. Westward a winding and rolling boulevard leads to the Connecticut at Springfield, where the road turns south to Hartford and back across the Connecticut plains to the seat of Yale College, and along the Sound to New York.

Except for the 56 miles between Portsmouth and Boston, the Hartford-New York run provides the only stretch of straight and level road on the whole tour—one of the greatest charms of driving in New England is the splendid way in which their broad and well-paved highways wind and roll over the hilly terrain. Yet from end to end the visitor will not encounter a single grade he cannot negotiate "on high," nor are there any curves sharp enough to be considered hazardous. Good State gravel in Vermont and New Hampshire; balance hard-surfaced macadam and concrete.

The New England Tours, A, B & C, are published by the New England Hotel Association, Herbert G. Summers, Boston, Mass. —where tour folders can be secured.

NEW ENGLAND TOUR—"C"

The itinerary, which follows the blue line on the map-folder issued (gratis) by the New England Hotel Association, has been carefully selected to embrace the greatest possible variety of scenery lying within five of the six New England States. (Maine and its attractions will be found in Tour A.)

This selection takes the motorist through that section of New York City's reservoir district which lies east of the Hudson River, and into the Berkshires by way of the extreme northwest corner of Connecticut. Poets have sung the praises of the Berkshire Hills to such good purpose that it would ill become us to attempt a description here; suffice it to suggest that nowhere in America can one enjoy more fully the combined works of nature and of man.

The approach to the Green Mountains of Vermont, via Manchester, under Equinox Mountain, is rivaled by the beautiful drive east from Rutland down the winding valley of the Ottauquechee to the Connecticut, whose course we follow into the White Mountains (more fully covered in the previous two tours). Thence down the Franconia Notch, past the famous Profile and Flume, to the Lake Winnepesaukee country, and so over the Daniel Webster Highway, to Concord and Boston.

Following the Atlantic Highway, our course runs through Providence, ancient and interesting, down Narragansett Bay to Narragansett Pier, and west along the shore of Long Island Sound to New York City.

A worthwhile variant is provided which had best be incorporated in the tour as a whole. This takes in the three crossroads through the Berkshires (from south to north, Jacob's Ladder, Berkshire Trail, Mohawk Trail), and the scenic and interesting roads along the Central Connecticut between Hartford and Hanover.

The roads shown are all State highways, gravel in Vermont, macadam and gravel in New Hampshire, the balance all hard-surfaced macadam or concrete. They are as good wet as dry.

Due thought has been given to the hotel accommodations, and tourists will find a satisfactory luncheon or night-stop almost anywhere en route.

THE NEW JERSEY TOUR

The itinerary suggested by the promoters of this tour aims to guide the stranger through the State, taking in practically all the more important points of interest and the scenic sections of this small but worthwhile commonwealth. In order best to accomplish this a few options are shown which traverse short stretches in contiguous States.

In planning the tour the promoters have borne in mind the necessity of plentiful stopping-places catering to the material wants of the motorist, and our readers will everywhere find hotels, inns, restaurants, to suit their taste, whatever that may be.

To attempt a detailed description of this popular tour would require more space than we have available; suffice it to append a short resume of its diverse character.

Starting, for example, from New York, one has a choice of roads to the Coast, one via Newark, the first, and Elizabeth, the sixth, of Jersey's great cities; the other by way of Staten Island and the Amboys.

The New Jersey Coast is a revelation to most people. Wonderful estates, often right on the open ocean, alternate with great resorts; splendid hotels, casinos, amusement parks, and less imposing but scarcely less attractive summer colonies, extend in an unbroken line for thirty miles along the broad Atlantic. The banks of the Navesink and Shrewsbury Rivers are likewise covered with the homes of the well-to-do.

Long Branch and Asbury Park have grown tremendously in recent years, and are cities of no mean dimensions. South of Spring Lake the road proceeds inland to Lakewood, a charming spot among the pines, and there turns south to Atlantic City, the foremost resort city in the country, if not in the world.

The roads throughout the tour are macadam and concrete, except for stretches of gravel in Southern New Jersey; but this gravel is wide and well drained, so that even wet it is unbelievably fast and smooth.

Copies of The New Jersey Tour may be secured from Mr. Fred C. Hall, Hotel Montclair, Montclair, N. J.

A PENNSYLVANIA TOUR

Not many wandering motorists are as yet aware of the fact that the Keystone State has entered the ranks of tourable territories. The strenuous and capable work of the Highway Department in the years following the war has given Pennsylvania a gridiron of splendid through highways not excelled by any State in the Union, while in scenery and choice of accommodations she has but few equals in the East.

This tour has been selected with a view to familiarizing the stranger with the Keystone State as a whole. It embraces parts of all the historic trails within her borders, and leads through the several scenic sections and to many diverse points of interest.

To make the complete circuit one may best start at any one of three points—Pittsburgh, Erie or Philadelphia—though of course there is no limit to where one may join the tour. The roads (every mile is smooth concrete, brick or macadam) run through mountains or hills almost all the way, often winding along the valleys of rivers or brooks, sometimes over rolling farm-lands, and frequently through woods and forests. The Lincoln Highway, William Penn Highway and Lakes-to-Sea Highway, are as scenic in their way as the Susquehanna, Lackawanna and Horseshoe Trails.

Almost contemporary with the modern highway system are the many new and excellent hotels which add so much to the pleasure of any tour. Nearly every city of any importance can boast one or more up-to-date hostelries to please the meticulous, and the rates are generally moderate enough to fit the most modest purse.

REAL TOUR OF THE BERKSHIRES

The aim of the originators of this tour is to present to the visiting motorist a land that has been sung by poets and pictured by artists far beyond our "power to add or to detract."

One of the most famous Berkshire roads is the Mohawk Trail, which name is generally used to designate the newly located road that climbs over Hoosac Mountain between North Adams and Charlemont. The views from the summit are unusually fine and comprehensive.

Scarcely less well known is the east and west road over Jacob's Ladder—a mountain lying between Chester and East Lee. The height is not so great as that of Whitcomb Summit, nor is the road quite as winding, but one may enjoy views from the top that fall not far short of those farther north.

A third east and west link is called the "Berkshire Trail," lying about midway between the other two. This is as wild and beautiful as either of the others, and equally good as to pavement.

Supplementing the above approaches from the east are numerous other well-defined lines of travel. A delightful drive leads north from Winsted, Connecticut, through Otis and Becket to Dalton, whence one may run west or north or east over fine State roads; other equally scenic and well-paved highways enter the Berkshires from the Green Mountains of Vermont by way of Williamstown; from Albany and Troy via Lebanon Mountain; from the Hudson Valley past the slopes of Mount Everett; and from the Harlem Valley or the Litchfield Hills through the Housatonic Valley villages of Canaan, Sheffield, Great Barrington and Stockbridge.

All these roads are hard-surfaced, and the villages are in most exquisite taste. Lakes and brooks sparkle in the valleys and present pleasing contrasts to the surrounding hills.

The Real Tour Association, Roswell M. Curtis, Secretary, Lenox, Mass., will supply booklets on this tour.

Covering Entire Territory

Distances between all important points in the territory covered by this book; Chicago on the West—Miami, Fla. on the South—Quebec, Ottawa, on the North—Nova Scotia on the East.

Where two distances are shown between two terminals, they refer to the most direct and the optional route.

For convenience the following charts cover distances between the more important points in their respective territories:

Chart No. 1—Only the larger cities in entire territory.

Chart No. 2—New England and adjacent territory.

Chart No. 3—New York State and adjacent territory

Chart No. 4—Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and all points south, including Florida.

The distance between any two cities in this chart is found in the square at the point where the horizontal line of figures from one of your cities crosses the perpendicular line of figures, directly under your other city.

Pennsylvania, New Jersey and all points south, including Florida

Distances between all important local points and the more distant important points outside this field.

For convenience, the following charts cover distances between the more important points in their respective territories:

Chart No. 1—Only the larger cities in entire territory.

Chart No. 2—New England and adjacent territory.

Chart No. 3—New York State and adjacent territory.

Chart No. 4—Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and all points south, including Florida.

The distance between any two cities in this chart is found in the square at the point where the horizontal line of figures from one of your cities crosses the perpendicular line of figures, directly under your other city.
